CHICAGO, WORLD AUTO HUB, TOILS TO RUSH TRAFIC

Plans Outer Bridge, Elevated Highway.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago, as the greatest crossroad center of automobile trafic, passenger and truck, in America, which means in the world, has two pending projects regarded of more than ordinary importance. These are:

1. The outer drive link bridge over the Chicago river mouth.

2. A west side elevated highway to afford high speed for through travel.

Both projects are units in various plans to make Chicago first among world cities and hub of the finest system of highways.

When the automobile era began to hit its stride and the horse and buggy started to disappear from the country roads, Chicago naturally became a center for hard surfaced roads as they spread. Trunk lines followed the trade routes hither, much as in the days of the Indian trails and the bateaux of the voyageurs, and later in the coming of the railroads.

Enterprise Gets Results.

As chief marketing place of the Mississippi valley, Chicago was a point towards which the new hard roads aimed. Moreover, enterprise was shown by Chicago and Illinois.

The faster Chicagoans bought automobiles the louder clamor they raised for roads that would take them some place without bumps and dust. Concrete, dustless highways began to creep over Illinois faster than in most other states.

Now eleven federal highways converge here, while fifteen high speed routes, 40 feet wide, lead out of the city. As in the case of Rome, all roads lead to Chicago. More than 150,000 automobiles enter and leave the central business district each day between dusk and dawn. At the city limits an average of 250,000 cars move through the gateways every 24 hours.

Arteries of Commerce.

Michigan avenue bridge is the busiest bridge in the world—55,000 automobiles pass over its six lanes in a day. Agriculture and industry fill the highways with commerce. Poultry, produce, fruit, milk move by truck.

At the stockyards more than 10,000 trucks arrive monthly, the average haul being 110 miles, bringing cattle, hogs, sheep, horses from eight states. In 1934 trucks brought 3,193,599 animals to the stockyards. It was almost one-fourth of all stock received, and was equivalent to 55,208 rail car loads.

In fitting itself to automobile trafic, Chicago had an advantage over many other cities. Older eastern towns were cramped with narrow streets. With water on three sides of Manhattan, New Yorkers take to bridges, a tunnel, ferries—with tolls. After the theater to walk is faster than to taxi.

City a Population Center.

Detroit is one city with facilities comparing favorably with Chicago's. Detroit makes the cars, the Mississippi valley buys and drives them, and within 200 miles of Chicago are 13 million people; 300 miles, 22 million; 500 miles, 45 million. And the concrete leads to Chicago.

Development of the lake front and the outer driveway greatly eased the congestion. Chicago's outer drive is the fastest in the heart of any city, but it has a missing link. A bridge near the river mouth to connect north and south driveways and keep through trafic away from the congested section was taken up with the Federal Public Works administration. A loan of $6,877,000 was allotted but was withdrawn. City and state are to renew negotiations at Washington.

West Side Situation.

Weakest part of the trafic system is the west side. Here trafic slows down in ratio to congestion. For years the proposed remedy has been a four-lane elevated roadway in Randolph street, without grade crossings, parking or local trafic, on which 40 miles and more an hour would be possible. This plan also is to be taken up at Washington.

Meantime, while Chicago has been talking of a high speed elevated highway, the New York metropolitan area has been building two express roadways, the west side elevated and the Newark-Jersey City viaduct.

STUDENT HANGS SELF TRYING TO RE-ENACT STORY

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Paul Warren, 15 year old Roosevelt High school student, was found dead today in his home, in the Bronx, the victim, his parents believe, of an attempt to experience the sensation of a hanging as depicted in a detective story magazine drawing.

Paul was hanging from a short rope made fast to the hinge of his bedroom door. An overturned chair was under his feet and on his bed lay the detective magazine, opened to a story titled "Time to Die." A police emergency squad tried for a half hour to revive him.

The picture at which Paul had been looking illustrated a story of mountain feud and showed two victims of the feudists, one on a bench and the other in a well, so trussed that if either moved both would be strangled. Paul apparently was attempting to reproduce the position of the man on the bench.

Clothing Fits Burglar, So He Puts On Party

Until a week ago Dorothy Mackey, 19 years old, worked in a laundry. As she ironed away in the steamy atmosphere she used to wonder if she would ever be wealthy enough to wear fine lingerie like the kind she worked on.

Stanley Seward, 24 years old, 2617 Blaine place, promised to make her dreams come true. Shortly after they met in a tavern he told her:

"That laundry work is too hard for a pretty, black haired girl like you. You pal up with me and you'll wear the best, silks and satins, and diamonds."

Dorothy Gets a B. P.

To Dorothy, Stanley looked good, so she said she would be his girl friend. He bought a drink and took her out and spent money freely. Saturday he told her they would go on a big party.

"Don't bother about anything," he said. "We'll hit all the live spots and I'll get you some fine new clothes."

Stanley, as it turned out, was not exactly what he seemed. [He is a paroled burglar, just a year out of Joliet penitentiary.] But because Dorothy had faith in him he decided to make good.

Shortly after 6 p. m. Saturday he crawled through a transom into the apartment of Harry J. Pinter at 654 Wellington avenue. Nobody was home. Stanley took a shower bath, changed into fresh linen and a newly pressed suit belonging to Mr. Pinter's son. It was a perfect fit. To the ensemble he added a hat and an overcoat.

Not neglecting Dorothy, he filled a suitcase with dresses and silky things. Then he thoughtfully stole about $200 worth of silverware.

The party was held. It continued, in several cafés, into the morning. The money ran out.

"I have two confessions to make," he said. "I am now broke and I am a burglar."

Dorothy Seconds Motion.

"It's been a nice party," said Dorothy. "It seems a pity to stop."

Together they went to the Consumers store at 4900 Lincoln avenue, where Stanley broke a window with a brick and found some money. The party continued until this was expended, and then the two decided to try another burglary. Stanley chose the Meadowbrook Dairy store at 2412 Blaine place. The choice was unfortunate, as Sergt. Leroy Carrier of the detective bureau and his squad were passing and ended it all.

Stanley, it was said, will be returned to Joliet as a parole violator, and Dorothy, if nothing worse happens to her, will go back to the laundry.

HERE'S A CHILLY TALE ABOUT WIFE AND NIGHTMARE

Usually Louis Goldschlag of 809 South Springfield avenue is a sound sleeper. But he must have eaten something heavy last night. At about 11:45 p. m. he began to shout and throw his arms about as he fought off a nightmare.

His wife, Florence, became greatly alarmed. She leaped up, lightly clad, and ran to the front door, where she cried that her husband was dying. While she was screaming the brisk wind slammed the door behind her. The temperature at the moment was 8 above zero and her screams became louder.

At 11:53 p. m. the Fillmore street police received a telephone message to the effect that at least a murder had been committed at 809 South Springfield avenue. Policemen Charles Janousek and George Dombrowski hastened to the scene and listened while Mrs. Goldschlag chattered out her story of tragedy. Mr. Goldschlag would not answer the door and the policemen forced open a window and entered. On being awakened he told the suffering Mrs. Goldschlag that it was all foolishness calling policemen to quell nightmares.

ICY WIND WHIPS CITY; FORECAST 5 ABOVE TODAY

A cold wave swept into Chicago late yesterday afternoon on strong north winds. From a mark of 30 at 4 p. m. the mercury fell to 8 [unofficial] at midnight, and Forecaster W. P. Day said that a low of not more than 5 above zero would be reached by daybreak.

Today, according to forecast, will be generally fair. Rising temperatures and probably snow are expected tomorrow.

In Minnesota and the Dakotas, which had heavy falls of snow on Saturday, skies had cleared and extreme cold prevailed. At Bismarck, N. D., the minimum was 12 below, at Devil's Lake, N. D., 16 below, and at Williston, in the same state, 20 below. Montana points reported temperatures of 10 to 18 below zero.

New York, in contrast, had rising temperatures, and a snow which began in the morning changed in the afternoon to rain. Heavy storms from the north forced water over sea walls near Seattle, Wash., and caused damage to beach property. In West Seattle the waves poured inland for a block or more.

Chief Red Feather Mixes Gasoline and Firewater

Chief Red Feather, 40 years old, 4231 Lake Park avenue, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, was arrested at 41st street and Lake Park avenue early today on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated The arrest was made by Detective Erskine Hill of the Hyde Park station, whose ancestry was three-fourths Indian.

EXPECT SCRIPT TO TRIP FISCH KIDNAP THEORY

Expert Goes Back on Stand Today.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—The prosecutors of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today marshaled witnesses to contend with the announced defense assertion that Isidor Fisch, deceased German furrier, would be shown to have written the notes demanding ransom for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Albert S. Osborn, handwriting expert, will resume the stand tomorrow morning as the trial enters its eleventh day. He already has stated positively that Hauptmann wrote all fourteen ransom notes. His testimony also will be extended, it was announced, to an assertion that Fisch did not write the notes.

Other handwriting experts for the state will follow and confirm Osborn's testimony. It is possible a court ruling may prevent introduction of evidence at this time showing that Fisch did not write the notes. In that case evidence regarding Fisch would be saved for the state's rebuttal after the defense experts have testified that Fisch wrote them.

Chicagoan to Be Witness.

One of the handwriting experts to follow Osborn on the stand will be a Chicago resident, whose name the state would not disclose, but who was described as possessing an international reputation. Another expert is from San Francisco and still another from Germany.

Not only corroborative of Osborn's testimony but furnishing additional proof that Hauptmann wrote the ransom notes will be the evidence of a German handwriting expert from Birmingham, Ala., the state revealed.

It is probable the handwriting testimony may take several days for the state alone. Attorney General David T. Wilentz declared he thought the jury was one which would not be surfeited by such evidence despite the wearisome and lengthy testimony which it involves.

Hits Defense "Smoke Screens."

The prosecutor repeated his statements that the many announcements by the defense counsel concerning various theories in the case were merely "smoke screens" put out in a "desperate attempt to becloud the issues."

"We will completely disqualify any alibi from the defendant involving Fisch as the man from whom he obtained the ransom money," he added.

When the testimony of handwriting experts is in the record, the prosecution will make a fresh effort to have the so-called kidnap ladder introduced as evidence.

To date the state's attempts in this direction have failed. The ladder was accepted as an exhibit for identification, but the state has failed to prove to the satisfaction of Justice Thomas W. Trenchard that the ladder, built in three sections, actually was used in the abduction.

Reveal Clemency Offers.

The prosecution also will try to show that the nails used in the ladder were of the same make as those used in the Bronx garage built by Hauptmann.

It was learned tonight the state twice has offered Hauptmann clem-

Miss Earhart in Los Angeles on Flight East

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Blonde Amelia Earhart, heroine of an amazing solo flight from Honolulu, late today flew her mud-spattered monoplane to this city—the home of her mother—on a leisurely trip to Washington.

Unfavorable weather to the east prevented the aviatrix, who yesterday added a trans-Pacific flight to her Atlantic record, from continuing on to the national capital at once.

A crowd of 3,000 or more persons was at the air terminal to cheer her upon her arrival from Oakland, at which city she landed in completing her 2,400 mile overseas hop.

Surprised by Crowd.

"I didn't expect any one to be here," she said. "I had my heart set on flying to Washington today, but decided to come here because of the weather along the northern route east."

Storms over the central transcontinental route sent her to Los Angeles to study the possibility of making the trip by way of Arizona and New Mexico, but she found conditions along that trail disadvantageous also.

A blizzard raged over the high mesas near Flagstaff, Ariz., so the 36 year old flyer pulled a pocket comb from her heavy flying suit, ruffed her golden locks, and decided to rest.

Orders Plane Serviced.

A few hours after her arrival she had disappeared and officials at the Union Air terminal, Burbank, where she landed, said she did not tell them when she would be back. She left orders for her high-winged ship to be tuned up and filled with gasoline immediately after her arrival and it was assumed she planned to go directly to the home of her mother, Mrs. Amy Otis Earhart, in North Hollywood.

Miss Earhart did not go there, however, and her mother said she did not know whether she was coming tonight.

It took the aviatrix three hours and seven minutes to make the 375 mile trip here from Oakland. She arrived at 4:28 p. m.

"I just zigzagged along the trip down," she told mechanics to whom she intrusted her plane. "I was wasting time and reducing my gasoline load.

Ship Sticks in Mud.

She had between 250 and 300 gallons of gasoline in her tanks when she encountered difficulty at the Oakland municipal airport. The big monoplane bogged down on a soft spot at the end of the surfaced runway. A tractor pulled it out and she got away for Los Angeles at 1:21 p. m.

She said she might abandon the flight to the nation's capital if the weather delayed her too long.

"I'll be here at least part of the night," she said. "I want to go on if possible, of course."

Attendants at the air terminal said she did not tell them the purpose of her trip east. Her husband, George Palmer Putnam, who saw her off from Honolulu last Friday night, sailed the following day for Los Angeles, and is due here soon.

CompanionsLeaveShooting Victim at Hospital and Flee

A man about 36 years old, with a bullet lodged near his spine, was left in front of the Alexian Brothers' hospital last night by two strangers who fled before they could be questioned. Papers in the shooting victim's pockets indicated that he is Arthur Swanson, a former member of a coast guard crew at Seattle, Wash. He told the police that he had been shot in a quarrel at Belmont and Ravenswood avenues, but declined to give any further information. His condition was regarded as critical.

500,000 GO TO POLLS QUIETLY; RIOTS FOLLOW

League Judges Will Count Vote Today.

Saar Wirephoto

A picture of Saarlanders standing in line to vote yesterday's plebiscite will be found on the back page. The photo was taken in Saarbruecken, rushed to London by plane, and sent to New York by radio. It was transmitted to The Tribune by Associated Press wirephoto.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 13.—Rioting broke out in Saarbruecken tonight while the ballot boxes containing the votes cast in today's plebiscite were being brought by soldiers of the league of nations' international army to Wartburg palace where they will be counted tomorrow.

MAX BRAUN.

Nazis, confident of having returned the rich basin into Germany's possession, and the separatists, desperate over what they consider an illegal poll, clashed. The rioters were dispersed by the police with clubs after repeated charges. Many were injured.

Minor disorders flared throughout the territory and anti-Nazis declare civil war threatens if the league does not intervene.

Calm During Plebiscite.

Up until the polls closed at 8 o'clock [1 p. m., C. S. T.] the plebiscite was conducted in complete order. No serious disturbance was reported anywhere.

One foreign observer found there was not enough excitement for him. He was Prof. James K. Pollock of the University of Michigan and president of Saarbruecken's voting bureau No. 13.

"I am a little disappointed," said the professor facetiously. "I am used to elections in Chicago and Pittsburgh, and this one seemed tame to me."

More than a half million men and women voted in the plebiscite to determine whether the Saar would be returned to Germany, become a part of France, or remain under the jurisdiction of the league.

98 Per Cent Go to Polls.

The secretary of the plebiscite commission in a semi-official statement said that 98 per cent of those eligible took part in the vote.

"I believe this to be an all time record for any country with a secret ballot," he added.

The high average vote served as indication that less than 11,000 of the 543,323 eligibles failed to go to the polls. Saarbruecken precincts averaged 98 per cent. Many precincts reported 100 per cent.

Anti-Nazis Admit Defeat.

Shortly before midnight leaders of the United Front, anti-Nazi organization opposing reunion with Germany, virtually conceded a Nazi victory, although they do not think it will reach a majority of 75 per cent. They believe that a minority vote of 25 per cent or more would raise grave doubts in the mind of the league on whether the territory should be turned over to Germany.

"We will not let the Saar become part of Adolf Hitler's third reich under any conditions," Fritz Pfordt, chubby, bellicose communist chieftain, said. "We will fight to the end to save our partisans from being massacred and we will not hesitate to use any means."

Even the more responsible Max Braun, Socialist leader, uttered a warning that the situation is critical.

Braun Visions Civil War.

"I do not think the workers will stand for Nazi provocations much longer," he declared. "We are drifting toward civil war and if the league of nations does not act promptly it may break out within forty-eight hours."

The anti-Nazis were brought to a fighting pitch by the so-called failure of the plebiscite commission to prevent the Nazi German Front from exercising allegedly illegal moral pressure on the voters.

Braun charged that notorious Nazi partisans, including Schutz Staffel police, imported from across the border, were allowed to help the regular police maintain order throughout the territory. Firemen, members of the village volunteer fire departments, in gaudy uniforms and brass helmets, were also used as auxiliary police inside the polling places, the Socialist leader charged.

"These volunteer fire brigades are officially affiliated with the German Front," he said.

Claims Nurses Influenced Voters.

Moreover, the territory swarmed with Nazi Red Cross nurses and stretcher bearers who aided in carrying the aged and infirm into the polling places. In several cases, Braun declared, Nazi nurses tried to influence the votes of old women.

The Socialist leader admitted the actual conduct of the voting was flawless, but declared the plebiscite was a "farce" on account of the high pressure methods used by the Nazis.

"It did not fulfill one condition of a really free vote," he added.

"I have already protested to the plebiscite commission, which says it was powerless to prevent such tactics and we reserve the right to take further steps shortly," Braun said, referring to the possibility of an appeal to the league council to invalidate the plebiscite.

The anti-Nazis want the league council to take their charges into consideration when that body decides what to do about today's vote, which is merely an indication of what the people desire.

Tonight's trouble started at 9 o'clock when the first truck manned by soldiers approached Wartburg palace with a load of ballot boes. Disregarding the driving snowstorm, hundreds of Nazis gathered in front of the Rathaus—local parliament—and Wartburg palace singing and shouting triumphantly over the anticipation of victory. Each truck entering the courtyard of Wartburg was greeted with singing and "Heils."

Driven Back by a Tommy.

Once the crowd started to surge through the open gates. A lone nervy British Tommy drove them back at the point of a bayonet.

Meanwhile communists had organized counter demonstrations. There were frequent clashes around the corner from Wartburg palace. The Nazis raised a swastika flag on a housetop and the Reds tore it down and trampled it.

At this point police came on the run and cleared the streets, driving the demonstrators down alleys.

The destiny of the Saar is contained in the 860 ballot boxes which are being transported to Saarbruecken. Trucks, armed with British, Dutch, Italian and Swedish soldiers, are rumbling over the roads with their precious cargoes.

In distant parts of the territory the trucks will deliver the votes to special trains which before morning will convey them to this city for transfer to Wartburg palace.

There at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the counting will begin. The result will be made known on Tuesday.

ANTI-NAZI CHIEFS FLEE

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 13.—As the followers of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler claimed an overwhelming victory in today's plebiscite in the Saar it was revealed that many Socialist, communist, and anti-Hitler Catholic leaders have taken residence in Forbach, across the French frontier and only ten minutes' journey from Saarbruecken. They are commuting between Forbach and Saarbruecken and live in a hotel in the French city. Herr Sollman, former member of the reichstag, is the only anti-Nazi leader who refused to leave the territory. He sleeps in the offices of the Socialist newspaper Volksstimmung.

At the same time the French tightened the border restrictions, canceled visas, and ordered all those wanting to enter the country to get new ones. This was taken as a sign that prospective refugees were active.

Five passports of British and American subjects disappeared from rooms in their hotel and later were found in possession of one man, who was arrested.

Soldiers in Background.

Although 3,500 soldiers of the International army were alert and ready for any emergency during the voting, they were kept discreetly in the background. Most people saw not a single bayonet, machine gun or piece of barbed wire during the balloting, but newspaper men closely scanning the territory occasionally detected a troop lorry or armored car.

Conspicuously absent near the polling places were political handbills and bearers of placards urging status quo or reunion with Germany.

In many places, however, a placard reading "hold your tongue" greeted voters as they entered. Such a placard was not in violation of the plebiscite rules, since the commission itself had warned the voter, although in politer language, not to drop any remarks in the polling places which could be construed as an indication as to how he intended to vote.

Saarlanders were warned that the penalty for a single "Heil Hitler" might be disqualification.

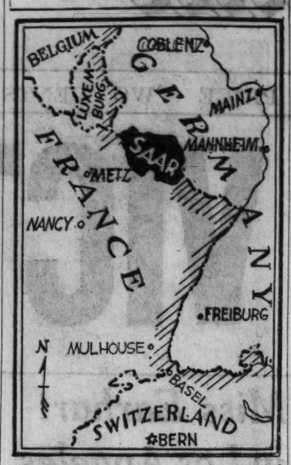
French Guard Border.

STRASSBOURG, Alsace, France, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Double police forces were kept on the alert today guarding the Saar border.

Week-end leaves from garrisons in the vicinity were canceled and police and gendarmes with long leaves were recalled.

About 7,000 Saarlanders in France crossed the border during the day to participate in the plebiscite.

NAZIS CLAIM SAAR



Dark portion of map shows rich Saar basin where 500,000 inhabitants voted in the league of nations' plebiscite yesterday. Nazi leaders claim the population voted in favor of returning the basin to Germany, while foes of the Hitler regime admitted defeat. The votes will be counted today and the results made known tomorrow.

PAPEN IS SILENT ON HOW HE CAST BALLOT IN SAAR

WALLERFANGEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Franz von Papen, Adolf Hitler's minister to Austria and former reich commissioner for the Saar, voted today with other Saarlanders, and like them, was silent on the subject of how he cast his ballot.

Von Papen received visitors at his country home and avoided any discussion for publication of politics and the plebiscite except to say he felt the results would have an important bearing on Franco-German relations and might play a vital rôle in efforts toward European peace.

BERLIN CONFIDENT SAAR VOTED TO RETURN TO REICH

Plebiscite Day Passes Quietly in Germany.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 13. — A reichswehr [regular army] band played a concert in Saar street in Berlin today to pay homage to the Saar on plebiscite day. The band played its best, but only a few persons came to listen. The Germans feel that the Saar's return to the fatherland is certain, and propaganda chiefs of the government controled radio system vainly attempted to stir up a fever of excitement.

Extra edition of newspapers tonight displayed such headlines as "100 Per Cent Participation of Voters," "Saar for Germany," or "Perfect Discipline Shown in Saar."

Hire Plane for Voter.

The only flutter of excitement was at the Templehof air field, when Frau Ida Mondenach of Shanghai rushed through the capital en route to the Saar. She was delayed because Saar authorities sent an acknowledgement of her right to vote too late for her to catch a steamer.

"Generous countrymen" hired an airplane to enable her to catch a trans-Siberian train. The train was delayed two days by snow. When she arrived in Berlin this morning, she was received by representatives of the foreign office and a representative of the Saar club.

An auto rushed her to the airport from where the Lufthansa's speediest plane carried her to Saarbrucken. Saar authorities granted a special permit for the plane to land.

Berlin's former "royal porcelain manufacturer" has completed special chinaware to commemorate the plebiscite. Stacks of dishes are ready for distribution on the day of the "liberation of the Saar" and its return to Germany.

Radio Aids Saarlander.

The radio staged fraternization scenes today. A 70 year old guardsman of the Saar told radio reporters he was in Berlin as a young soldier. He expressed the wish to see the capital and Potsdam before he dies. Immediately a Berlin doctor offered his home to the Saarlander. Another offered his auto for excursions. The radio company offered to defray the man's traveling expenses and Lufthansa offered him a free plane ride.

Tonight, radio speakers started agitation for the immediate ousting of German refugees and political opponents from the Saar. They also demanded dismissal of the Frenchman, Heimburger, who directs the department of interior in the basin, charging him with "conniving with the refugees."

Gen Werner von Blomberg, minister of defense, gave a "plebiscite party" tonight for his leading officers. Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Schutz Staffel and the GSP [secret police] and other high Schutz Staffel officers were guests of honor. The party was termed as "an evening of comradeship." Official quarters placed emphasis on the word comradeship in an effort to discredit rumors of friction between the army and the Schutz Staffel.

ITALY IS UNEASY; FEARS TROUBLE OVER SAAR VOTE

Wants Land Given to Germany at Once.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 13.—Although it was expected here that the Nazis would obtain a large majority in the Saar plebiscite today, the repercussions of the events which will immediately follow the Saar vote are awaited with uneasiness in Rome.

A spokesman for the Mussolini government said the league of nations' most thorny problem would only begin after the result of the vote is known. He expressed the hope that the transfer of the Saar to Germany will take place immediately after the vote is counted.

The Italians said the Saar was Europe's greatest danger spot. They add that its elimination as a bone of contention between Germany and France would obliterate one of the worst pages of the treaty of Versailles.

The Italian public is unusually interested in events in the Saar because of the presence of 1,000 of Premier Mussolini's soldiers. Newspapers devoted many columns of space to the plebiscite.

Fears are held here that Nazi exuberance over a victorious vote in the Saar might lead to excesses elsewhere. The Italian government is watching uneasily for signs of a renewal of Nazi activity in Austria.

The news that the Austrian Nazi legion was being re-formed within the borders of Bayaria and that the Austrian government has reinforced its frontier guards has reached here.

Mussolini's spokesmen continue to deny that Italy has sent military reinforcements in the direction of the Austrian border.

Holland Will Turn Back Saar Refugees at Border

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Holland, Jan. 13.—The Netherlands government ruled today that refugees from the Saar who flee before the Saar is delivered to Germany—if the league of nations so decides—will not be admitted to Holland. Dutch guards were reënforced to turn back the flood of refugees expected after the results of the plebiscite are announced.

SAAR FACES NEW ADJUSTMENTS ON MONEY MATTERS

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Any American who has traveled abroad and found it difficult to become adjusted to the use of anything except dollars and cents has little to complain about compared with Saarlanders today.

A middle aged Saarlander, during his childhood and early manhood, looked upon marks as the only real money. The mark meant to him about what the dollar always has meant to an American. About all he knew concerning foreign money was that it took five French francs to make four marks.

Then after the war he found the mark was not as much as the franc—first it was one and one-half marks to the franc, then two, three, five, twenty, 100 marks; and finally the government told him marks were no good at all. Moreover, the franc was worth only a fraction of what it used to be. Then there was the new mark, which the Saarlander did not get in his country, but which he heard was worth six francs.

If the Saar goes back to Germany, the citizenry will have to make new adjustments. They will have to pay 40 marks for a suit of clothes instead of 350 francs, or 25 marks in pre-war days, or anywhere from 50 marks to 40,000,000 in the post-war period.

ARMS EQUALITY FOR GERMANY URGED IN BRITAIN

London to Seek Berlin's Return to League.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Early action to get Germany back in the league of nations by granting it equality in arms and asking it to sign a general pact limiting arms, was predicted today in London.

It is widely believed here that with the Saar removed as a danger spot—the Saar's return to Germany is considered certain—the next step in the pacification of Europe should be Germany's return to the league on a basis of equality.

It also is believed that the time has come when Germany's rearmament ought to be recognized by abrogation of military restrictions of the Versailles treaty and then limited along with the arms of other nations.

May Offer Full Equality.

There will be a meeting of the cabinet tomorrow morning, for which Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon is returning from Geneva. The Sunday Dispatch asserts the cabinet may decide to offer Germany full equality, meaning the right to rearm. A foreign office spokesman described this prediction as pure imagination, but the general tone of other newspapers is that some such step is likely in the near future.

No definite action is expected, however, until the result of the Saar plebiscite is made known on Tuesday morning as there is a possibility that there will be a strong minority vote for the status quo, which would oblige the league to act to protect the anti-Nazis. Action is likely to be delayed until Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France make their forthcoming visit to London.

Early Arms Parley Seen.

If the French agree to grant Germany equality, Simon, it is said, will make the announcement before the league council and call a meeting of the disarmament conference early in February.

Writing in the Observer, Scrutator, who favors giving Germany equality if it returns to the league, goes a step farther by approving the German belief that the league ought to be reorganized.

Great Britain, he says, should ask the Germans about their ideas for reform.

5 Youths Held in Slaying Name Their Tutor in Crime

Sam Elaschnik, 50 years old, 14609 South Sawyer avenue, was arrested yesterday and identified by five youthful robbers as the man who schooled them in crime and with whom they split the proceeds of their robberies. Two of the robbers, Frank Kelly and Russell Faragol, have confessed that on Oct. 17 they held up the tavern in East Moline, owned by Mrs. Veronica De Cadestecker, 65 years old, who was struck on the head during the holdup and who died a week later. The other three are Joseph Cosco, Harry Orr, and Edward Quinn. The five have been identified in 17 south side robberies.

200 Army Planes Leave Miami Today After Races

Miami, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Miami will witness two, perhaps three, tries for new world air records tomorrow, if weather favors. The army will try for a mark of its own in getting approximately 200 service craft off toward home fields. The movement of army planes is the backwash of the annual all-American air races here, attended by between 300 and 350 fighting ships, which closed yesterday.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MILAN, Italy, Jan. 13.—Mario Borsa, the London Times Milan correspondent, was released tonight from jail, where he had been since Friday. The reason given for his detention was that he had criticized, in conversation, the recent Franco-Italian agreements and that he had said France would probably now make a loan to Italy. Dr. Borsa signed a declaration that the charges were false, and that he could not understand how they could have been made.

HERO CHAPLAIN OF MAINE DIES IN NEW YORK; 71

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Patrick Chidwick, hero chaplain of the battleship Maine when it was blown up in Havana harbor, died tonight in St. Vincent's hospital.

One of the leading Roman Catholic clergymen of New York, an adviser to Patrick Cardinal Hayes, the monsignor was 71 years old. He underwent an operation for a thyroid ailment early in November.

Monsignor Chidwick was on board the Maine at the time of the catastrophe and immediately gave absolution to all who had lost their lives.

He again attracted national prominence in 1928 when he announced from the pulpit at St. Patrick's cathedral, when Alfred E. Smith was a candidate for President, that a Catholic who takes the oath of office to administer the affairs of a state is bound by that oath "no matter what interest, party or friend might try to swerve him."

For a number of years Gov. Smith was a worshipper at the monsignor's church—St. Agnes' in East 43d street.

Born and reared in New York, Msgr. Chidwick was ordained a priest in 1887 and soon afterward was made chaplain of the United States navy.

Falling Shotgun Kills Brooklyn School Girl

Lawyer to Retell Dillinger Story on Stand.

How far a criminal lawyer may go in protecting his fugitive client may be determined by a jury in the federal court of Judge William H. Holly late today when the jurors consider the guilt or innocence of Attorney Louis Piquett, charged with harboring John Dillinger.

If Piquett is found guilty, the conviction will be appealed to the higher courts on the basis of the defense contention that Piquett's association with Dillinger was the legal relationship of defendant and counsel.

Piquett to Take Stand Again.

Piquett, former city prosecutor and a political power in the Thompson régime, will return to the witness stand to reiterate his story to the effect that he had hoped to surrender Dillinger to Indiana authorities before the gangster's career was ended by police bullets July 22.

Judge William Murray of Crown Point, Ind., will be called by United States Attorney Dwight H. Green in rebuttal to deny Piquett's previous statement that he talked with Murray concerning the intended surrender of Dillinger early last summer. Closing arguments will follow, with Piquett himself assuming the burden of the defense plea to the jury.

Conspiracy Charged.

The government charges that Piquett conspired with Arthur O'Leary, an investigator employed by him, and with Dr. Wilhelm Loeser and Dr. Harold Cassidy to perform a series of plastic operations upon Dillinger designed to alter his face and fingerprints. O'Leary and the two doctors have pleaded guilty and testified for the government against Piquett.

Participation in this operation or knowledge of it, the government will contend in closing arguments, constitutes harboring the fugitive Dillinger and is beyond the bounds of the legal relationship of lawyer and client.

The case is the first in which an attorney is accused in the government's campaign to punish all persons who hid or otherwise aided Dillinger gangsters.

Piquett, if found guilty by the jury, is subject to a sentence of two years, a fine of $10,000, or both.

RENO SPORTSMAN IS SEIZED AS SHIELD OF 'BABY FACE' NELSON

Reno, Nev., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The arrest of Henry O. [Tex] Hall, Reno sporting man on a charge of conspiring to harbor the late George [Baby Face] Nelson, was disclosed here today. Hall was arraigned and released under $35,000 bail.

The third person to be arrested here in connection with the hideout activities of Nelson before he was slain in a gun battle with federal agents in a Chicago suburb several week ago, Hall was taken into custody late last night.

Just after midnight he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Anna M. Warren. Two officials of the Bank club, Nevada's largest gambling casino, provided his bail.

Hall long has been associated with James C. McKay and William Graham, owners of several gambling casinos and night clubs in this vicinity, including the Calneva Lodge.

Three Others Arrested.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The arrest here of three persons accused of harboring "Baby Face" Nelson, recently slain gangster, was announced tonight by William Ramsey, department of justice chief.

He said they were Thomas C. Williams, manager of the Vallejo, Cal., general hospital, and Anthony "Soap" Marino and Louis Tambini, San Francisco bartenders.

FIVE SOUTH SIDE PUPILS ADMIT 25 BURGLARIES

Five boys, one of them on juvenile court probation, were under arrest at the Kensington police station last night. They were said to have admitted between twenty-five and thirty burglaries on the south side.

Four of the boys are students at the Van Vlissengen school. Gus Nicholas, 14 years old, 10753 South Michigan avenue, who is on probation for purse snatching, is a pupil of the Pullman Technical school. All were arrested on Saturday night after Charles Miller, 14 years old, 10721 Eggleston avenue, was found shooting a revolver in an alley. He admitted several burglaries and named his accomplices.

The three other boys are Thomas Wilson, 13 years old, 343 West 110th street; William Mendel, 13, of 11324 Stephenson avenue; and John Fox, 14, of 49 West 111th place.

NEW DEALERS SEE FATE IN SUPREME COURT

Nine Justices Holding the Center of Stage.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—The nine old men who compose the United States Supreme court suddenly have taken the limelight away from the President and congress.

Until next June, when it takes a recess for the summer, that court will continue in the first page newspaper headlines as it grinds out decisions that will determine the fate of the New Deal and shape the future of our country.

Already with its decision of last week knocking out the oil section of the National Recovery act and casting doubt on the validity of much other New Deal legislation, and with its critical attitude toward the Roosevelt monetary policies manifested during the hearing of the gold clause cases, the court has aroused in the administration profound apprehensions of untoward happenings to the President's program.

Talk of Packing Court.

Such are these apprehensions that the hitherto sub rosa talk among the New Dealers of packing the Supreme court to procure reversal of adverse decisions and assure a favorable attitude on New Deal legislation in the future has come into the open. The project is to put a bill through congress adding two or more members to the court. Of course, the additional places would be filled with none but blown in the bottle New Dealers. One of the likely selections would be Donald R. Richberg, well known liberal, labor lawyer and now No. 2 man in the New Deal.

There is as yet, however, no indication that the administration is seriously considering resort to such tactics, the reprecussions of which might be far more disastrous to the President's prestige than the action of the court to his program.

Baltimore Speech Recalled.

As far as is known, the President never has given the slightest encouragement to the suggestions of packing the court emanating from New Deal zealots. In this connection it is recalled that in his Baltimore speech in the 1932 campaign he accused the Republicans of exercising political control of the court.

On the other hand, with the Democrats executing a coup d'etat in Rhode Island, which included the complete reconstitution of the State Supreme court, and with Huey Long establishing a dictatorship in Louisiana, the suggestion has been heard in more than one quarter that the time may be ripe for a display of ruthlessness in Washington.

Recalls Legal Tender Case.

Only once in our history have suspicions been aroused of the packing of the Supreme court to influence a decision. Curiously enough it was in connection with the legal tender cases, of which the gold clause cases in the Supreme court last week are reminiscent.

In 1870 the court, which then consisted of seven members, declared unconstitutional the legal tender act of 1862 which made greenbacks legal tender. The court divided four to three on the decision. The decision was denounced by the Radical Republicans as legal and political heresy. There was as great an outcry from the corporations whose long term bonds the decision made payable in gold as from the corporations of today at the possibility of being compelled to pay their bonds in the present equivalent of gold.

On the very day that Chief Justice Chase delivered the decision in the legal tender cases President Grant appointed two new members of the court —Justices Strong and Bradley—to fill two additional places recently created by congress.

Grant Arouses Criticism.

Grant was charged with packing the court to influence the decision of the legal tender cases. It does not appear, however, that the attitude of the court was known when the legislation increasing its membership from seven to nine was passed or when the two new justices were appointed.

Whether Grant had advance information has been a much controverted question. There is reason to believe, however, that he knew his two appointees regarded the legal tender acts valid.

No sooner had the court been increased than steps were taken to procure the reopening of the cases. Within two months after the first decision the court reversed itself, holding the legal tender acts constitutional by a division of five to four. The reversal created much bad feeling among the members of the court. The whole episode impaired for a time the prestige of the tribunal.

Contradicts President's Words.

Incidentally Mr. Cummings' assertion in the course of his argument in the gold clause case that the United States was forced off the gold standard by international complications wholly is at variance with President Roosevelt's statement that "when the United States went off gold in April, 1933, we did deliberately what other nations, including Great Britain, had been compelled to do against their will."

No less than 25 New Deal cases have reached or are soon to reach the Supreme court. They involve almost every controverted question involving the validity of the President's recovery measures.

The housing division of PWA will ask the extent of its power to condemn property for slum clearance. Federal Judge Dawson at Louisville having denied its claim that it could do so for a private project in the general welfare. The railroads have questioned the legality of the Crosser pension and retirement act.

Auto Trading at Issue.

The case against the Spielman Motor Car corporation is to determine the right of the NRA code to fix trade-in values for used cars and discounts on new motors. Hours and wage fixation in the lumber and timber industry is in controversy in United States vs. W. E. Belcher, which Federal Judge Grubb in Alabama already has decided adversely to the government.

In the lower courts the government has been victorious in an argument over wage and hour limitation under the hosiery code, and the issue comes up to the Supreme court from Georgia labeled Richmond Hosiery Mills vs. Camp.

Then there is the celebrated situation of Fred C. Perkins, the Pennsylvania electric battery man. This is a code dispute about wages and hours. A jury found Mr. Perkins guilty of violation and the lower court fined him $1,500.

From Colorado the government brings an equity suit, United States vs. Ballard Gerhert, whom it vainly sought to enjoin from selling coal below the rate fixed in the bituminous coal code.

Five cases growing out of milk licensing in New York and other states are on their way to the Supreme court. There are one or two growing out of the cotton-ginning restrictions of the Bankhead act.

Hunt Four Pickpockets in Murder of Another

Four pickpockets were being sought last night as suspects in the murder yesterday morning of Frank Panio, 38 years old, 3033 Princeton avenue, a pickpocket with a long record. Panio was shot to death and apparently thrown from an automobile at 60th street and Frontenac avenue. The men sought are Maurice Quirk, Edward Galvin, Frank Fazio, and Robert Cassino. Police suspect Panio was slain for failure to split up loot.

TRAP EX-CONVICT JILTED BY GIRL DANCER IN CAFE

A paroled convict from the Joliet penitentiary was trapped last night by two detectives and a young woman who accused him of threatening to kill her when she jilted him. Seized with him were two other men, both possessing criminal records.

The rejected suitor was "Dago Mike" Prociante, 26 years old, 351 South Homan avenue, and his companions, Leonard Kaifano, 26 years old, 2122 West Taylor street, an alleged auto thief, and Daniel Tuffano, 44 years old, 1112 South Albany avenue, a counterfeiter.

Miss Alice Ryan, 19 years old, the young woman, who dances in a loop café, called Detectives Arthur March and William Qurik of the Fillmore street station to her room in the Kilbourne inn, 4501 West Washington boulevard, last night. There she told them of meeting Prociante three months ago, and, after a few "dates," jilting him when he boasted of numerous tavern robberies he staged. Friday, the girl said, Prociante came to her room, choked her, attempted to throw her from the window, and then threatened to kill her.

At the detectives' request Miss Ryan telephoned Prociante and asked him to visit her. March took the place of the night clerk, and when the three men came in the police seized them.

Miss Ryan said Prociante tried to give her a mink coat he stole in a street robbery recently, and once attempted to make her keep his sawed-off shotgun in her room overnight. The young woman said she was the daughter of a Dubuque, Ia., judge. All three men were held without charges.

Volga Area's Public Enemy No. 1 Sentenced to Death

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 13.—The trials of gangsters at Samara, on the Volga, ended today with the death sentence for Fedor Mironoff, who by his tactics had become public enemy No. 1 of the Volga region. His trial, which was attended by crowds, revealed that he and a band of some forty rowdies had taken part in many robberies, murders, and brawls. Four other members of the gang were sentenced for five to ten years. Several of the rival gang with which Mironoff's band battled were sentenced last week to moderate prison terms.

TOWNSEND AGE PENSION SCHEME UNDER ATTACK

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The "Townsend plan" for paying pensions of $200 a month to persons over 60 is termed "economically and socially unsound" in an interview with Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, which will appear tomorrow in the American magazine.

"Its supporters are utterly reckless in their use of figures," she says of the backers of the Townsend plan. "Under it there would be distributed 2 billion dollars a month in pensions.

"Why, the entire national income in 1933 was less than 40 billions. This pension scheme alone would be annually 24 billions. It would give to 9 per cent of our population more than half the entire income of the country."

The secretary of labor said it was difficult to determine "what adequate old age pension is economically possible."

ELDERLY WOOER IS KILLED BY SIGN 'NO TRESPASSING'

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 13.—(AP)—A "device of death" shot and killed William Cavin last night. Cavin was 58 and a county road foreman.

Cavin's body was found at the foot of a "no trespassing" sign at the farm of John Nardo, 61. Nardo lives there with his daughter, Marion, 27.

County detectives say that Nardo told them Cavin, married and the father of two children, had persisted in his attentions to Marion Nardo, attractive divorcée, and so Nardo fixed up a sign with a concealed pistol connected with it.

Cavin grabbed the sign to tear it down, Nardo was quoted as saying. An early milkman found Cavin's body.

Arrest Youth for Quiz on Woman's Drug Death

Hallet Schultz, 22 years old, was arrested by Town Hall policemen last night at Wilson avenue and Broadway for questioning in regard to the death of Mrs. Marie June Miller, 28 years old, on Aug. 14, 1934. Mr. Miller died, apparently of an overdose of drugs, in a flat at 4423 Sheridan road. Schultz, who is alleged to have been in the flat a short time before her death, fled from Chicago and had just returned when he was arrested.

BORAH PLEADS FOR RETURN TO U. S. BASIC CREED

Opposes Both Reds and Fascists.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration was indirectly criticized tonight by Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] in a speech in which he said: "We need a swing toward the principles and policies of Jefferson."

The Republican independent, who only recently was rebuking conservatives within his own party, said in an address that "for the last forty years the trend in government has been Hamiltonian, regardless of the party in power."

Borah warned against "the spread of communism and Facism," commenting that "the public is being well supplied these days with prophecies calling for the destruction of our form of government and the end of the rule of democracy."

One Offsets the Other.

"I have always thought it was almost a divine interposition that both Hamilton and Jefferson lived in the formative days of our government," Borah said. "Hamilton perhaps would have carried the government too far toward centralization, and Jefferson perhaps too far toward decentralization. But welding the theories of both into one great government, we approached as nearly perfection as possible in the formation of a government."

Senator Borah said he did not regard pessimistic prophecies as to democracy's future as being "a way out of either our problems or dangers."

Facing Similar Crisis.

The senator said application of Jeffersonian principles was most successful after the war for independence, and added "our situation today is no different from that in those times.

"Now we are facing another similar crisis. European nations failing in their industrial and political economy have gone to the sword and suppressed popular discussion, freedom of speech, and popular appeal. Once more in the United States we find two groups clamoring for the strong arm way. Both groups appeal to the perils of violence in order to effect what they call an answer to our economic and social ills.

"Again we must appeal to the intelligence, the democratic feeling of the third and larger group. We again must resort to the principles upon which our constitution was drafted, and must use the same methods of proposal, discussion, and appeal—and forget the sword."

FOUR GIRLS FACE RAPE SUSPECT IN COURT TODAY

Four young women will confront Thomas McCarthy, 28 years old, 5527 South Lincoln street, this morning in the Felony court, where he is to be arraigned as the rapist who terrorized the Chicago Lawn and New City police districts last week. McCarthy was arrested in his home Friday after police received an anonymous letter. Two of the young women were raped near their homes. Two others succeeded in fighting off their assailant. One woman bit McCarthy on the hand so severely that a tooth was dislodged. The imprint on McCarthy's finger led her to identify him as her assailant.

ROUT THAT COLD

Let It Not Hang on Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Beware of the "common cold"! The "common cold", doctors will tell you, is the cause of more serious trouble than anything else.

Many a person who is in a pneumonia jacket today had but a "common cold" yesterday!

Neglect no cold. Take no chances with your treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is, first of all, a cold tablet, made expressly for colds. Secondly, it is internal medication, fourfold in effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in treating a cold.

Second, it checks the fever in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

When you feel a cold coming on, trust to no makeshift methods.

Adopt the course of safety and take Bromo Quinine. Taken promptly, it will break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speedy action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. It is sold by all drug stores. The few pennies' cost may save you a lot in worry and medical bills. Say "no" to a substitute.

SAG OF DOLLAR WILL BOOST U. S. PAY ROLL ABROAD

Dip on Foreign Exchange Affects Employes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—The sag in the American dollar in foreign exchange will cost the government $3,900,000 in the form of extra compensation to officers and employés abroad during the next fiscal year.

An appropriation to that amount is included in the independent offices bill passed by the house last Friday and up for consideration in the senate tomorrow.

Authority for the payment was vested in the President by the last congress. Wilbur J. Carr, assistant secretary of state, made the plea for the appropriation in hearings conducted by the house subcommittee that ground out the bill. The hearings have just been published.

Tells Effect of Cut.

"Our service almost broke under the impact of that devaluation of the dollar," asserted Carr.

He told the committee that when the United States went off the gold standard and the dollar dropped in foreign countries the amount that the officers could exchange for foreign currency was substantially reduced. An example given was that before April 1, 1933, an officer in France obtained 25 francs for his dollar and now the same number costs him $1.60.

10,000 Employés Affected.

The first plan, Carr said, was to ship gold abroad and pay it through the American Express company, but this method soon proved cumbersome and difficult.

The number of employés affected will be 10,863, according to the estimate. Nearly 7,000, mostly marines, are stationed in China or along the Chinese coast where the Yuan is the monetary unit. Nearly 3,000 state department employés are sprinkled throughout the countries of the world.

The published hearings in connection with the normal governmental units show a huge increase in cost due to the mushroom growth of New Deal burocracy.

Mrs. Jewell W. Swofford, chairman of the employés' compensation commission, testified that the increase of $365,000 for this activity could be traced almost entirely to the new agencies of the government.

Cites Increase of Records.

"For a number of years the commission has received annually an average of about 26,000 reports of new injuries to employés in the federal service," Mrs. Swofford stated. "During the past year the commission received nearly 163,000 reports of injury from the Civil Works administration alone, most of them within a period of 6 months.

"In addition, more than 10,000 reports of injury have been received to Oct. 31, 1934, from the Civilian Conservation corps and the reports received from other departments and establishments increased from 24,731 in the fiscal year 1933 to 29,561 in the fiscal year 1934."

The appropriation for the general accounting office of the government rose in the new bill to $4,970,000, a half million dollar increase. Many of the 2,724 persons employed in the divisions of this office will be kept busy during the year auditing new agencies.

220,000 Out of Civil Service.

Under the questioning of Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth [Rep., Mass.], Kenneth C. Vipond, assistant chief examiner for the civil service commission, told the subcommittee there now were approximately 220,000 workers in the federal government not subject to civil service requirements. Vipond said that of this number about 32,000 were in emergency agencies.

The number subject to civil service, Vipond stated, was 461,000. It was estimated that it would cost $124,000 for the examination of the 32,000 employés in the emergency agencies.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY ASKS INQUIRY ON LOW BIRTH RATE OF SWEDEN

[Copyright: 1935; By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 13.—The uninterrupted decline in the Swedish birth rate, which fell from 29.4 per thousand in 1880 to 15.4 in 1930, has been forced to the front of politics by the Conservative party's bill urging the riksdag to appoint a commission to consider the whole population question.

Three days ago it was announced that the Swedish town of Orebro had the lowest birth rate in the world—6.39 per thousand. Since 1913 the number of school children in Orebro has fallen from 848 to 284, a decline of 66⅔ per cent.

The Conservative bill recommends increasing the tax exemption limit for breadwinners with large families, discusses the possibility of revising the present system of mothers' pensions and infant welfare, and raises the question of improved housing at reasonable cost.

TWO FUGITIVE OHIO CONVICTS CAPTURED HERE

Two men, who escaped last Thursday from the Ohio State Hospital for Criminally Insane at Lima, were captured here last night in front of a Western Union Telegraph office at 308 South La Salle street. They were awaiting receipt of a money order from the sister of one of them.

The escaped convicts are Joseph Green, 23 years old, of Canton, O., sentenced to seven years for receiving stolen property, and Walter Gideon, 21 years old, of Cleveland, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a young schoolmate in 1929.

After their escape the pair stole an automobile at Fort Wayne, Ind. At Muncie the machine ran out of gas, but they made their way to the home of Green's relatives in Gary. Police there learned that Gideon telegraphed a sister in Cleveland, and notified Chicago police to watch the office here where the money was to be sent. Both men were recognized as they waited outside the office.

MANUFACTURERS OPPOSE NRA IN PRESENT FORM

South Demands Labor Rule Be Clarified.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—The composite opinion of southern industry is that the NRA must be modified drastically or abolished altogether, according to returns from a questionnaire sent to 6,000 manufacturers by the Southern States Industrial council.

Over 34 per cent of the manufacturers reporting wanted the act modified, 43.4 per cent wanted it abolished, and 22.4 per cent were for the NRA as it is.

"Since 85 per cent of the manufacturing plants in the south employ fifty or less workers, it is safe to assume that the statistics reveal in a large measure the criticism of small manufacturers throughout the country," the council stated.

Want 7A Clarified.

Every manufacturer was emphatic in his insistence that section 7A of the recovery act be clarified, although collective bargaining received approval. The southern manufacturers, the statistics show, is not against the collective bargaining of his employés, but insists that those with whom he bargains should be "representatives of his plant and not an organized labor group or a representative of such a group from some other section of the country."

Although the questionnaire did not request information in regard to government interference in business, more than 20 per cent of those reporting volunteered the opinion that "there should be less interference in private business by the government and less supervision of industry."

Changes Are Suggested.

Several outstanding suggestions for modifications of the NRA were made by the majority of those reporting, which were summarized as follows:

Great flexibility in maximum hours to allow more freedom during peak periods of production and greater flexibility in regard to minimum wages.

A subnormal wage should be approved for low class labor.

The small manufacturer should have more voice in the planning and administration of codes.

Complexity of codes and code authorities should be reduced to avoid confusion when one manufacturing plant must operate under five or six codes with different minimum wages in each.

There should be a better administration of the codes.

Price fixing provisions of the NRA should be eliminated. Open price schedules should be provided for, and there should be government supervision to see that goods are not sold below cost.

New Deal Printing Costs U. S. Taxpayers 2 Millions in Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—More than two million dollars or one-sixth of the government's 1934 printing bill of $12,600,000 was spent by the New Deal alphabetical abracadabras. This was disclosed today in the annual report of Public Printer A. E. Giegengaek to the 74th congress.

The 54 new federal agencies in rush orders for propaganda pamphlets and brain trust blanks taxed the facilities of the public printer to the utmost. The total number of press jobs during the year reached 77,000, an increase of 40 per cent over the 55,000 of 1933.

Record Costs $698,945.

The cost to taxpayers to preserve the mouthings of senators and representatives in the Congressional Record was $698,645.

The record also reflected the advent of the New Deal. Its average size for 139 issues was 94 pages, the highest since war days.

All in all, congress exceeded the recovery groups in printing costs. The total congressional printing and binding charges amounted to $2,890,000, an increase of $190,635 over 1933. In addition to the record the total includes the cost of printing bills, calendars, committee reports and various congressional forms.

Members Buy Less.

Although there was more oratory by pages in 1934, the quality would seem to have fallen, according to Printer Giegengaek. Members of congress paid only $38,867 for reprints of speeches, where they paid $40,345 in 1933.

The public printer ran out 20,921,715 copies of the 2,557 codes—the largest single item in the year's business.

A million and a half two color blue eagle code cards were run from the presses. The President's reemployment agreement called for the printing, cutting and folding of 6,000,000 circular letters and a like number of accompanying slips. At the same time 22,000,000 copies of consumers' cards were printed and cut. Both these jobs were completed within five days.

"One of the newest ideas of the NRA is a four column tabloid weekly newspaper, called the Blue Eagle running either four or eight pages and having a circulation of about 50,000," Printer Giegengaek reports.

2 YEAR EXTENSION OF RFC LENDING LIFE CONSIDERED

Washington, Jan. 13. — (AP) — Informed congressional sources said today that "in a few days" administration officials would ask congress to extend the lending life of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for two years.

That extension, however, it was added, would contain a proviso permitting the President to put the organization out of business by proclaiming the emergency ended at the conclusion of one year.

The congressmen, who preferred that their names not be used, reminded that something must be done promptly, for at midnight on Jan. 31 the RFC's authority to make loans expires. Thus only 16 working days remain for both house and senate to act on a bill and for the President to sign it.

It was indicated there might be coupled with the extension plan a section doubling the length of time for maturity of loans the RFC may make. The present limit is five years. Likewise, it was said, the RFC might be permitted to extend instead of renew existing loans, provided the security's value is unchanged.

EXPECT SCRIPT TO TRIP FISCH KIDNAP THEORY

Handwriting Expert Back on Stand Today.

ency if he can and will give them a complete story of the kidnaping and name those who may have been implicated.

If he made such a confession and then was convicted, an official source said, the authorities promised to exert their influence to obtain a modification of sentence. Hauptmann, however, responded to neither offer, and the prosecution finally reached the conviction that he perpetrated the kidnaping unaided.

Defense handwriting experts today finished their examination of the many handwriting exhibits already introduced. An announcement concerning their findings was expected later from Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly, who already has predicted the ransom notes would be shown to have been in Fisch's script.

Relatives of Fisch, reported sailing here from Germany to testify, may be saved by the state for rebuttal testimony, it was indicated. They will testify, it was reported, that Fisch never had any large sums of money and that he died in comparative poverty. This would conflict with Hauptmann's story that Fisch left with him the $14,600 found in his possession.

Plans to Use Curtis Evidence.

The defense also plans to use evidence brought out at the trial of John Hughes Curtis, in an attack upon the state's theory of the crime, it has been made evident. C. Floyd Fischer, who defended Curtis on a charge of obstructing justice in the Lindbergh case and who is assisting in the defense of Hauptmann, pointed out that the state, in convicting Curtis, presented the theory that a gang had kidnaped the child.

"If the state was right then, where is the rest of the gang?" he asked. "If Hauptmann is the 'lone wolf' in this case, as the state contends, then Curtis was not guilty."

Hope for Disagreement.

Defense lawyers, it was apparent, hope to throw a "reasonable doubt" as to Hauptmann's guilt into the minds of at least a few jurors. This might result in a disagreement of the jury, and a disagreement in a case which has cost New Jersey so much and taken so much time might be equivalent to an acquittal. There would be some hesitation in proceeding with a retrial, it was admitted.

As on other Saturdays and Sundays when there has been no session of the court, many wild and unfounded rumors were circulated. The public may well be mystified that numerous "predictions" have not been supported by subsequent developments at the trial.

The fertile imaginations of some of the newspaper men on the scene have been responsible for a few of these reports, but the vast majority of such rumors have resulted from the extraordinary willingness of all the defense attorneys and one of two minor members of the prosecutor's staf to discuss the case at length and to indulge in suppositions and surmises.

Reilly Leads Field.

Leading all others in the issuance of statements has been Defense Attorney Reilly. The jovial lawyer is particularly ingenious in his announcements late in the evening, after protracted conferences with his associates.

Because of lack of accommodations, Reilly sometimes is forced to gather with his partners in taverns and other places of a similar character where refreshments are to be had for a price.

On one such occasion last week Reilly announced with solemnity that on the following Thursday he would name in court the four members of the gang which actually kidnaped the Lindbergh child. He said two of the gangsters were women and two were men. He hinted that at least one member of the Lindbergh household would be involved.

As the days went by Reilly, in his cross-examination of the various state's witnesses, attempted to throw suspicion on almost every one mentioned in the testimony. But Thursday passed without the sensational announcement he had pledged.

He was unabashed when reminded of his promise and immediately issued a statement that Fisch, the furrier friend of the defendant, would be shown positively to have been the kidnaper and collector of the ransom.

More difficult to trace is the origin of such rumors as that today Hauptmann had started a hunger strike. This probably was started by some unknown who had read that the prisoner had lost thirty pounds since he has been in jail and that he has lost his appetite at various times after telling testimony has been recorded against him.

MADE LADDER FOR HAUPTMANN, BRONX CARPENTER ASSERTS

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A Bronx carpenter has informed authorities, the New York American says in a copyright story, that at the request of Bruno Richard Hauptmann he built the ladder used in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

The carpenter, Abe Samuelsohn, said he also made for Dr. John F. Condon [Jafsie] the box in which the $50,000 ransom money was carried the night of payment to "John."

Samuelsohn said fear of gang reprisal kept him silent until after Hauptmann's arrest.

State Discounts Story.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Commenting upon a report that Abe Samuelsohn, Bronx carpenter, asserted he built the Lindbergh "kidnap ladder" at the request of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan of New Jersey tonight declared the state has checked on Samuelsohn, "and as far as building the ladder is concerned it appears to be the bunk." Attorney General David T. Wilentz declined to discuss the ladder story. He admitted, however, that Samuelsohn built for Dr. John F. Condon the box in which Dr. Condon delivered the ransom money.

ACCUSED SLAYER OF FIVE WILL GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Morrison, Ill., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Accused of slaying five persons last Sept. 4, Fred Blink, 45, will go on trial tomorrow for the murder of John Hamilton, one of the victims.

The slayings are alleged to have resulted from an argument over a $40 debt.

The state charges Blink went to Hamilton's farm to collect the $40 he claimed was due from Hamilton. Hamilton was not at home. Angered, Blink is alleged to have shot to death Mrs. Jennie Walters, Hamilton's housekeeper; Web Collier, her brother; Mrs. Irene Corrick of Des Moines, Ia., a visitor at the Hamilton farm home, and Harry Minje of Belvidere, Ill., a railroad crossing watchman.

Then, it is charged, Blink met Hamilton at a nearby farm and killed him.

Jimmie Walker and Wife Seeing the Sights in Spain

MADRID, Jan. 13.—(AP)—James J. Walker, one time New York mayor, and his wife, the former Betty Compton, left Madrid for Malaga today, planning to remain a week or two. "The doctor said Betty is in a run-down condition and needs sunshine," Walker said. They planned to go to historic Seville and Granada, and possibly make a sightseeing trip to the Spanish and French Moroccos before returning to England.

Joseph Michalich, 50 years old, 10734 Hoxie avenue, was arrested by the east side police. Santangelo was taken to the South Chicago hospital.

7 NATIONS EYE 1935 DIVISION OF CONGO RICHES

Affects 40 Million People, Open Door in Africa.

ROME, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A golden apple, consisting of the fertile Congo valley, with 40,000,000 inhabitants, 3,000,000 square miles of territory and a foreign trade of $250,000,000 a year, will be thrown into the laps of seven eager nations, including the United States, at an important conference during 1935.

The other nations are England, Belgium, France, Italy, Japan, and Portugal. The date and place of the conference have not yet been fixed.

The meeting is to revise the convention of St. Germain of Sept. 10, 1919, which established complete commercial equality among these nations with regard to the territories constituting the basin of the Congo and its tributaries in the heart of Africa. This is the principle of the open door applied to Africa.

Many Areas Included.

In the territory are included a part of Italian Somaliland, Zanzibar, Kenya and Uganda, Nyasaland, Portuguese East Africa [Mozambique], part of North Rhodesia, Belgian Congo, part of Angola, middle Congo, Ubangi-Shari, and Chad.

Here is a "practical paradise" of cotton, rubber, coffee, cocoa, sugar cane, and bananas. Under this gorgeous carpet lie rich mineral deposits of iron and copper. There is also the more concentrated wealth of gold and diamonds. An idea of its importance may be seen in the fact that its imports in 1933 were $115,000,000, and its exports $130,000,000.

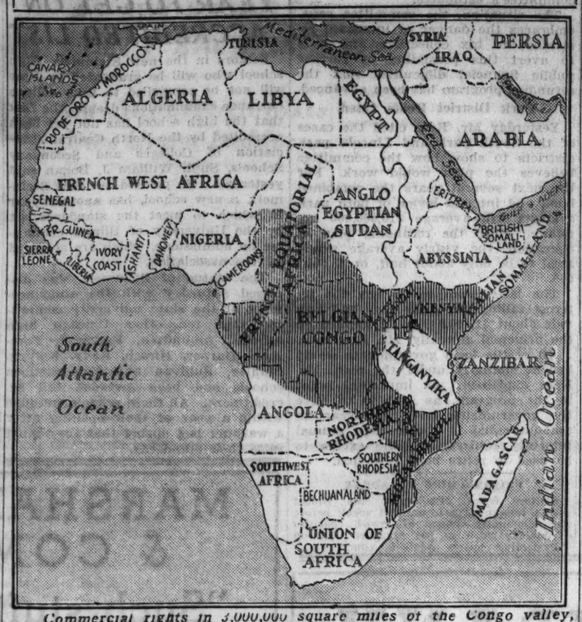
The forthcoming conference promises to be not so friendly as the previous meetings leading to the convention of St. Germain, because objections have begun to rise against the idea of the open door. Kenya and Uganda would like to see the abolition of the equal duties and their substitution with preferential tarifs.

Italy Opposes Division.

Italy, which only now is developing her market in the Congo region, is going to protest strongly against any move which would seek to split up the Congo territory into commercially exclusive regions.

Japan, which is making a formidable penetration in Africa, will likewise protest. Whatever may be her attitude toward the open door in the far east she will insist on keeping the portal open in the Congo. There is some probability of Germany asking for a seat at the conference table.

RIGHTS IN AFRICA UP TO CONFERENCE



Commercial rights in 3,000,000 square miles of the Congo valley, designated by the shaded area in the map above, will be determined in a conference to be held in 1935. The "open door" in Africa affects the trade of five European nations, the United States and Japan and the prosperity of 40,000,000 people in the African area.

SLY HALSTED ST. BUTTONHOLERS DEFY INJUNCTION

Piratical Salesmen Hide; "Abduct" Reporter.

BY EDWARD KENNEDY.

All was quiet in the business section of Maxwell and Halsted streets yesterday. Because of an injunction issued recently by Judge Benjamin P. Epstein in the Circuit court, merchants along Halsted street, between Roosevelt road and Maxwell street, with a few exceptions, refrained from using "buttonhole" methods of urging prospective customers into their places of business.

The practice of "buttonholing" or "pulling" on Maxwell street is nearly as old as that shabby street, where everything from food to furniture is sold from stands that clutter up the sidewalks and streets. These salesmanship tactics have been taken up by a number of the better class merchants in Halsted street in recent years.

Street Has Good Crowd.

A reporter who visited the district yesterday found a few Halsted street merchants still trying to bring customers into their places of business by this forbidden method. Sightseers, Sunday purchasers, and the usual Ghetto mendicants were crowding this bazarlike section. Sunday in this neighborhood is a busy day for the merchants.

The reporter paused at the display window of a clothing store near Halsted street and Roosevelt road. An employé, who stood in the arcade of the building, invited the window gazer to step into the arcade and inspect a suit of clothes on display there.

Courageous Clerk Forgets.

The window shopper said that he was "just looking," whereat the "buttonholer" turned his attention to several others who stopped to look. The owner of this place was fined $250 for contempt of court by Judge Epstein last week when it was charged that he sent his employés out to the sidewalk to "drag" customers into the store.

As the reporter watched the employé of the store grasped one of the window shoppers by the lapel of the coat and was coaxing him into the place to try the suit for a fit.

"And for $15. You couldn't buy it on State street for $35," he was telling the prospective customer as he led him into the store.

Another Little Incident.

The reporter stopped at another store window farther down the street.

"Would you be interested in a suit or an overcoat?" a young man asked him. The "puller" or "buttonholer" evidently had been concealing himself near a parked automobile, as the reporter did not notice him at first.

"I was thinking of buying an overcoat," said the reporter, posing as a prospective customer, eying an old overcoat. At that the youth seized the reporter by the arm and hustled him into the store, where another employé took charge and the "buttonholer" returned to the sidewalk.

How to Get Out.

The clerk showed the reporter a $15 overcoat which was "too expensive," then said he had many for $10 in "our stock of 18,000 coats." When the newspaperman explained that he had only $1 and would be unable to pay for the garment for two weeks, he promptly found himself ushered to the street.

PROSECUTOR TO GIVE TALK.

Edward A. Fisher, assistant United States attorney, will speak on criminal law and practice in the federal courts at a meeting of the Jewish Men's Club of Ravenswood at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the River Park fieldhouse.

NEED EMERGENCY LAW TO OPEN NEBRASKA'S PARALYZED TREASURY

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 13.—(AP)—With a half million in state salaries unpaid and the treasury paralyzed, Nebraska legislators tonight found themselves driving toward an emergency appropriation to pay the doubled premium on a million dollar surety bond necessary to qualify George E. Hall as state treasurer.

For a week the state treasury has neither disbursed nor received money.

Gov. R. L. Cochran will ask the legislature to submit to the conditions set up by the bonding companies, and tomorrow an effort will be made to appropriate the $10,000 premium in a one day emergency enactment that will let the treasury open Tuesday.

Hall, reelected last November, technically lost his right to office, in the opinion of Attorney General William H. Wright, when he was unable to present a new million dollar bond on inauguration day, Jan. 3. Bonding companies informed Hall the $2,500 premium fixed by law was too low.

Mystery Clouds Death and Illness of Three

Putnam, Conn., Jan. 13. — (AP) — Joseph Luzak, 43, was found dead today and his wife, Helena, 45, and their two sons, Chester, 7, and Raymond, 5, in a semi-conscious condition suffering from exposure under mysterious circumstances in their home.

Authorities refused to comment until after an autopsy has been performed on Luzak.

The medical examiner said there was evidence of the mother and two children having been ill. In a box at the rear of the kitchen stove a little white dog lay dead. In its cage, also in the kitchen, a canary lay lifeless.

JEFF DAVIS' WATCH CHARM IS PROPERTY OF CHAMPAIGN WOMAN

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Jefferson Davis' watch charm, worn at the time of his flight from the capital of the confederacy in May, 1865, is tucked away in a safety deposit vault of a Champaign-Urbana bank. It is the property of Mrs. D. S. Condit, 510 West University avenue, Champaign-Urbana.

It was handed down to Mrs. Condit from her father, the late Dr. Henry Conkling of Bloomington who served throughout the civil war as one of the outstanding union surgeons.

The charm is made of English gold, heavily chased with oak leaf, rose and acorn design and believed to be handwrought by English jewelers in the early 19th century. Value of the piece has been variously estimated as high as $10,000 or more.

Dr. Conkling purchased the charm from a soldier, who had appropriated it as a souvenir.

SON CAN'T FIND GARCIA MESSAGE IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The original message to Garcia—inspiration of a story by the late Elbert Hubbard which became a classic—is "lost" in Washington. Garcia's son has come from Mexico to find it.

Carlos Garcia-Velez, 67 year old son of Gen. Calixto Garcia, to whom the original message was delivered by Lieut. Andrew Rowan at Bayamo, in eastern Cuba, in 1898, today explained that the message is in a maze of historical documents stored at the Cuban embassy.

He cannot find it, he explained today.

The original message was from Russell A. Alger, President McKinley's secretary of war, to Gen. Garcia, advising him of the United States' decision to land forces in Cuba, and inquiring as to ports of debarcation.

Garcia, now Cuban ambassador to Mexico, received the famous message from Rowan and passed it on to his father for reply. The reply, a copy of which he also has but cannot find at the moment, is drafted in the younger Garcia's handwriting. This reply, in turn, was delivered by Rowan to his superiors.

BEER, BOOZE, BOODLE AND DREWRYS ALE

Beginning this year, we are making a considerable reduction in the price of Drewrys Ale.

Considering the fact that from forty to eighty per cent of the brewers of America are already "broke" (depending upon who gives the statistics) and the remainder are trying to raise their prices, this announcement of Drewrys' reduction of price is almost as startling in news value as the story of the man who bit the dog.

But Drewrys, strangely enough, has had a highly profitable year, it has completed the big and exceedingly costly job of distribution throughout America, and its profits will in no wise suffer when it again increases its volume by reducing its price.

The story of the past year of Repeal should be highly interesting to you and quite amusing in spots, in spite of its many financial tragedies.

Almost literally on the day that beer was legalized, if you will recall, a great part of it came hot from the vats, green as a green apple, some of it with as little alcohol content as even Mr. Volstead could desire.

And the brewers, after waiting sixteen years for their ship to come in, found themselves facing disaster within ten days after it hove in sight. One week after Repeal a nationally known Chicago store called up the Drewrys company, begging us to use our influence with a certain brewer in getting some thousands of cases of beer that had been promised them. They had sold twenty-five hundred cases on the previous Saturday. On Wednesday, ten days later, they called us again, begging us to use our influence to get some thousands of cases taken back by the brewer who had delivered it. They had sold exactly twenty-three cases on the previous Tuesday.

The result of this public reaction was inevitable. Immediately there followed the destructive beer price wars which have continued ever since. Today in some places you can buy beer—such as it is—for a nickel a bottle.

★ ★ ★

The financial districts got busy, too, in this merry excitement of a free country in 1933. Beer stocks were floated in practically every section of America. And an enormous percentage of these left the dear public "holding the bag" as badly as in the debacle of 1929. Today, many of those beer stocks are hardly worth the paper they are written on.

★ ★ ★

A comparatively small handful of more intelligent brewers made a most determined effort to assure the high quality of their product and to stabilize its method of distribution. Foremost among these, of course, were the two great national brewing concerns—Schlitz and Anheuser-Busch—whose heirs direct in line are still responsible for their good names. And, when beer does return to the profit and prestige of the old days, it will be due largely to the efforts of this comparatively small handful of intelligent men.

When final Repeal arrived, the hard liquor people found themselves rocking in the same boat. Green whisky was everywhere. The bootleggers' hootch was nectar compared to some of the products of Repeal. The poor consumer tasted and swore, and burned his throat and swore some more. And the trouble began all over again.

But the hard liquor people were quick to profit by the bad experiences of the beer people. They moved fast to stabilize the quality of their product and their methods of distribution. And today there are not only a number of good beers to be had, but a goodly number of hard liquors as well. But it is their business, and not ours, to tell you where and how to get them.

Next in the line of disaster, which seemed to follow fast and follow faster, came the "lawmakers."

As if the poor brewers and distillers did not have enough trouble to start with, every Repeal state in the Union stepped in and made its own separate laws. And if any one doubts that many of those laws were made for a purpose, he has only to read them. Shipping a case of ale, beer or liquor across a state border became almost as much of a problem as shipping to a foreign country. Most of the brewers were beside themselves, and still are, trying to meet the different demands of state laws.

★ ★ ★

And this was the troubled sea in which Drewrys Ale, coming down from Canada, launched its ship on American waters.

We were late in getting our American production under way. We saw how the green beer products were rejected by the American people. And we determined to age our product until it was thoroughly ripe and ready.

But we were helped in this in a way which we didn't expect and which we certainly didn't desire. After all our vats were filled to over-flowing with thoroughly mellow Drewrys Ale, we found that we couldn't get it out of the vats. There wasn't a bottling machine to be had for love or money. And there the stuff stayed, stewing in its own juices, until it almost cost us our sanity. But it made our fortune.

And when we saw how the public liked it, we at least had wisdom enough to keep it that way.

We also were wise enough to maintain our price until we knew our costs; or rather, because we didn't know our costs. That was what caused the great percentage of all the beer failures in this country. We had to meet almost every kind of competition. Nearly every kind of ale was sold to tavern keepers at almost any price they were willing to pay. And the tavern keepers, being mostly new as merchants, bought and still have literally millions upon millions of dollars' worth of unsold and unsalable merchandise. They have not had enough experience with "dead stock" to know what to do with it. Tens of thousands of tavern keepers have already "gone busted," certainly in large part as a result of their enormous quantities of "dead stock." If they had been "seasoned" merchants, they would have long since offered it at a nickel a bottle and gotten it out of the way.

★ ★ ★

The American venture of Drewrys Ale has made money, of course. Not nearly as much as we are reputed to have made—but enough.

But it has taken us a year and a half to get even a fair idea of what the unknown costs of a business like this are bound to be. No one could have guessed them. Not even the shrewdest auditor could have made an estimate.

But now at last we at least have sufficient knowledge of those hidden costs to make an intelligent reduction in our price. And as our figures become more certain, the price will come down again; and keep on coming down as often as the costs and the volume justify. That is a matter of good business which all good business institutions from brewers to automobile manufacturers have learned to employ.

SANITARY BOARD PROJECTS TO BE FINISHED BY 1939

Program to Fall Short of Court's Order.

The sanitary district's $150,000,000 building program to insure partial treatment of all sewage arising within its boundaries will be 70 per cent complete by the end of 1936 and the entire project should be ready for operation before 1939, Horace P. Ramey, assistant chief engineer, predicted in his semiannual report, made public yesterday.

The Supreme court, in its decision which ordered the reduction of the flow down the Illinois waterway from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic feet a second by 1939, demanded full treatment of all district waste, but this will not be possible unless the district finds means for financing nearly $70,000,000 of additional construction, Mr. Ramey said. The only source of such additional funds is through the sale of the sanitary district channels to the federal government for navigation purposes, he declared. A proposal for the sale of the channels, at a price of $90,000,000, is now pending before the congress.

Progress and Plans.

The loan and grant of $42,000,000 from the federal Public Works administration to the sanitary district, completed in December, 1933, has given great impetus to the district's construction program, the report said.

During 1934 the district awarded contracts totaling $15,597,000 on two major projects, the Calumet treatment works and sewers, and the west side intercepting sewers. In 1935 the district proposes to award contracts totaling $30,000,000, chiefly on the southwest side sewage treatment works and connecting sewers which will drain the Packingtown area.

The Calumet treatment works and sewers will be ready for operation by July of this year, the report indicated. More than $22,000,000 has been expended on the work. The north side works and sewers, costing $37,122,000, are now complete, and the west side works and sewers, built at a cost of $42,388,987, are now affording partial sewage treatment for the west side.

The Southwest Side Plant.

The major project on which construction will be started this year is the southwest side treatment plant and sewers, on which most of the $30,000,000 appropriated by the district for construction in its 1935 budget will be expended.

"We expect to have let $10,000,000 of contracts on the southwest side projects before April of this year," Mr. Ramey said. "Three contracts totaling $2,239,000 will be awarded within two weeks. Contracts on two sections of the southwest side sewer, estimated to cost $4,200,000, should be ready for letting in February.

"We are working on plans for aeration tanks for the southwest side treatment works which will cost nearly $5,000,000, and we should call for bids on the work in March. In addition, we expect to start work on the $1,200,000 substructure for the treatment works in early spring.

Spend $109,000,000 to Date.

"We expect that we will have fully 50 per cent of the southwest side project under construction before the end of 1935, and 40 per cent of the project should be completed."

The sanitary district has now expended $109,000,000 on its general sewage treatment program, Mr. Ramey reported. The $30,000,000 of construction contemplated for this year is financed under the terms of the federal loan.

Following is the tabulated report of construction which, on Dec. 1, 1934, was complete. Aproximately $1,500,000 of work has been finished on scattered projects since that date.

Calumet project	$ 24,085,344.99
North side project	37,122,381.52
West side project	45,270,919.85
Southwest side project	353,614.68
West-southwest treatment plant	223,946.21
Miscellaneous plants and sewers	506,188.86
Chicago river controlling works	53,415.78
Total	$107,724,809.74

"The problem before the district," Mr. Ramey said, "is to finance approximately $70,000,000 of sewage treatment construction which must be completed before 1939 to meet the decree of the Supreme court.

"Since the district has already reached the statutory limit of its bonding power, we see the sale of the sanitary district drainage channels to the government as our only hope for carrying out the full treatment construction program.

"The district already has taken such a proposal before congress, and the war department is now investigating it and will make its recommendations following a public hearing on Jan. 15.

"Projects to be included in this $70,000,000 program will include the improvement of the west side works for final treatment of sewage, the construction of controling works at the mouth of the Chicago river, the building of the Des Plaines and west towns sewers, and the extension of the south side sewers."

TELLS BENEFITS OF PUBLIC DEBT REFUNDING PLAN

Rees Cites Advantages for Bondholders.

John O. Rees, director of the citizens' committee on public expenditure, yesterday pointed out some of the benefits that would accrue from a comprehensive 20 year bond refunding plan proposed by the committee for helping the major local governments out of their debt difficulties. The program would be of advantage both to the taxpayer and the holder of public securities, Mr. Rees said.

Taxpayers, he said, would be benefited by a sizable reduction of their tax bills through the spreading out over 20 years of a great concentration of bond principal and interest payments which are scheduled in the six year period just begun. Bondholders, he declared, would be benefited by the clearing up of $30,000,000 in defaulted principal and interest, and by the removal of the possibility of future defaults for a long time to come. Under the plan defaulted bonds would be refunded with the others.

"There is every indication," said Mr. Rees, "that where such a plan is put into effect, the bonds affected will promptly come up to par or above in the market."

Hopes for Quick Action.

The committee on public expenditures has proposed that the bond refunding plan, for which approval of the state legislature is required, be put into effect by next August for the county, forest preserve district, sanitary district, and the old Lincoln park, south park, and west park districts. The park districts, though now consolidated under a central park board, have their old obligations to meet. The city and the school board, the committee hopes, also will join the general refunding plan eventually.

Details of the proposed readjustment of the huge bonded debt of the local governments were made public on Saturday. The total which will fall due on this debt within the six years from 1935 to 1940 is $450,000,000. This does not include the operating costs of the governments, which will raise the total tax bill to $1,050,000,000 for the six years, according to the committee's estimates.

The situation, the committee says, embraces the danger of increased resistance to tax collections and it is to avert this possibility of further public financial difficulties that the refunding program has been advanced.

Park District Debts Cited.

Yesterday Mr. Rees cited the cases of the South park and Lincoln park districts to show how the committee believes the plan would work. For the next several years the combined bond and interest levies of both park systems will average $10,500,000 annually. With the refunding plan in operation, the yearly average would need to be only about half, or $5,690,000.

The latter sum would pay the interest falling due each year and provide about $1,400,000 to be applied on the principal annually, Mr. Rees said.

All of the local governments would benefit similarly under the plan, Mr. Rees explained. An important point in the program, he said, is to have the governments levy each year an amount equal to twice their annual interest requirements, the excess to be used to retire bond principal.

STEINMETZ HAS YEAR TO GET ON ACCREDITED LIST

Seniors in the new Steinmetz High school who will be graduated in June will not be compelled to take college entrance examinations despite the fact that the high school has not yet been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Supt. William J. Bogan said yesterday. He pointed out that Steinmetz, a new school, has another year in which to meet the standards set by the University of Illinois committee on admissions, which are accepted by the association.

The status of Steinmetz was disclosed Saturday with the announcement of the state university committee that ten other Chicago high schools, Amundsen, Farragut, Foreman, Harper, Hirsch, Kelly, Kelvyn, Manley, Sullivan and Von Steuben schools had been awarded full accreditment. All these schools qualified within a year of their opening after a warning last spring that they must raise their standards.

BYRD GEOLOGY PARTY WITHIN 180 MILES OF POLE

Finds Leverett Glacier Is Sub-Plateau.

[By Mackay Radio to the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.]

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Jan. 13.—The geological party of the Byrd expedition, under the command of Quinn A. Blackburn of Seattle, Wash., came swinging into Little America yesterday morning at the end of a sledging journey of 1,410 miles. The trip carried them within 180 miles of the South Pole. With Blackburn were Stuart B. Paine, young Yale graduate, and Richard Russell.

The eighty-eight day journey was the deepest sledging penetration into the antarctic since the polar journeys of Capt. Robert F. Scott and Roald Amundsen. They discovered extensive deposits of coal and fossilized plants, leaves and sections of prehistoric tree trunks from a foot to eighteen inches in diameter.

Identify New Plateau.

The party made the striking geographical discovery that eastward of Thorne glacier a stream of ice lying between the foothills and the tabular, glacier-ridden masses forming the main escarpment of the Queen Maud range, which was previously identified as Leverett glacier, appeared to be part of an intermediate plateau, a 2,500 foot terrace, lying between the Ross ice barrier and the high polar plateau.

Looking eastward from a peak near the mouth of Thorne glacier, Blackburn said the party could mark the trend of the unexplored mountains in that direction. The peaks appeared to diminish gradually in height both east and west of the glacier.

The main front of the Queen Maud range, which has been explored by other expeditions, is made up of superb tabular and dome-shaped masses rising to elevations of 10,000 to 15,000 feet. The longest valley glaciers in the world pour through them, fed by the reservoirs of the polar plateau. The party reached an elevation of 7,000 feet.

No Peaks to South.

Blackburn and his companions saw no sign of the mountains which a previous expedition had reported to extend in a southeasterly direction. The white dome of the plateau occupied the southern horizon. The indications were that eastward the pleateau was dipping gradually.

The geological party had its share of vicissitudes on the outward journey. Immediately after leaving Little America the explorers encountered temperatures of from 40 to 50 degrees below zero. These rigorous temperatures lifted as the season wore on.

They had narrow escapes from blind crevasses. Once six of Paine's nine dogs hung over the side before they could be pulled to safety. The winds from the southeast almost never let up, blowing with a velocity of from twenty to sixty miles per hour.

Ship Misses Ice Pack.

S. S. BEAR OF OAKLAND, En Route to Little America, Antarctica, Jan. 12.—[Delayed.]—(AP)—[Via Mackay Radio.]—This supply ship for the second Byrd antarctic expedition was steaming southward today through an area usually thickly strewn with packed ice, but no ice was sighted. Apparently it had been broken up by gales and drifted out of the Ross sea. It is phenomenal to find open water in these latitudes. Moderate southerly winds prevailed, with excellent weather.

HOODOOS QUAKE AS SWORN FOES DEFY EACH ONE

Anti-Superstitionists Dine Under Ladders.

Thirteen vice presidents of the Anti-Superstition society slid into their banquet chairs at L'Aiglon restaurant at exactly 13 minutes past 5 o'clock last night.

The old hoodoos meant nothing to them, for two ladders were erected over their heads, three members lit cigarets from the same match, four opened umbrellas indoors and two spilled salt on the tablecloth.

Gayly they taunted one member who instinctively started as Nathaniel Leverone, president, smashed a mirror with his gavel. They applauded as Leverone, summarizing the tenets of the organization which they founded on Jan. 13, 1933, stated that superstition seemed on the wane.

The Preliminary Rites.

With pride they recounted their achievements of the last thirteen days. They had let black cats cross their paths and spilled salt without throwing any over their shoulders to counteract bad luck. Always they had passed under rather than around ladders in their paths.

E. B. Thurman, a massive white bandage around his head, arose to explain the result of his explorations in mirror breaking.

"I found," he reported, "that the average man may break the usual thin mirror with a hammer with no ill results, but that when he breaks a rear view mirror he has trouble with his head.

What It All Means.

"However, even the effort of breaking rear view mirrors holds no terrors for a member of this fraternity, for all he has to do is wear a 5 inch derby!"—and he jubilantly pulled the bandages from his unharmed head.

"You can see," President Leverone arose to say, "that thirteen consecutive days of defying superstition bodes only good."

Just then a messenger handed him a note. Leverone read it. He flushed darkly. He broke a second mirror to attract attention.

"Gentlemen," he said, gazing reproachfully around the table. "It has been called to my attention that some one in here has in his possession a symbol of superstition, carried to ward off arrests for traffic violations.

The Horrible Climax.

All eyes turned on Municipal Judge Jerome Dunne, who jumped to his feet in denial. There were loud accusations from both parties. And in the judge's left hand vest pocket was found the left hind foot of a rabbit appended to a gold charm which certified in engraved letters that rabbit was killed in a graveyard at midnight in the dark of the moon.

"What have you to say, judge?" demanded Leverone.

"I've been framed," said Judge Dunne.

"Maybe so," replied Charles Darney Cory, "but I vote that as punishment we make him holder of the rabbit's foot."

Exonerated Too Late.

And so the members dubbed Judge Dunne "holder of the rabbit's foot." Not till too late did they learn that the rabbit's foot had been placed in Dunne's pocket by Mr. Leverone himself.

After the banquet, at which Teddy Majors, host, was made an honorary member, the society went to the Chicago Stadium as guests of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin.

Rockford Council to Debate Removing Tax on Vehicles

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—When the city council meets tomorrow night to balance the 1935 budget it will consider proposals to eliminate the city vehicle tax and to reduce water rates 10 per cent. The requests from department heads are $40,000 above anticipated revenues. City officials and employes ask pay increases from 10 to 15 per cent. The city has a balance of $193,000 left from 1934.

PLAN TO BATTLE TUBERCULOSIS IN COLORED GROUP

The Chicago Tuberculosis institute is to embark on an educational program of tuberculosis prevention among the colored population of Chicago during the next few months as one of its important endeavors for 1935.

Heading the campaign, according to the announcement yesterday, will be Mrs. F. C. Williams, formerly associated with public health work in North Carolina and Arkansas.

Already two strong colored organizations have indorsed the movement, the Illinois Housewives' association, which has an estimated membership of 50,000, and the colored Parent-Teacher association of Chicago and Cook county.

"We believe we have found the best groups with which to work," Mrs. Williams said, in commenting on the initial steps of the program. "One takes us directly to the housewife and the home, the other to the child and his teacher."

400,000 GET HELP THROUGH SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU

More than four hundred thousand applications for relief received by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission in Cook county during 1934 were cleared through the Social Service exchange of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, Lee M. Lyons, relief administrator for Cook county reported yesterday. Each of these names was checked against a list of names of all persons receiving relief from one hundred and twenty public and private welfare agencies.

"This system of clearing names through a central bureau," Mr. Lyons said, "makes it practically impossible for a person to fraudulently obtain relief from one agency when he is already receiving aid from another social organization. It also aids in working out a program for a family that has previously received relief from some organized charity."

Most men provide for the dispersion of what they have acquired within their lifetime.

Not so Marshall Field. His will was an instrument of creation, not disposition. The astute and far-seeing instructions which he provided have led to the leadership of the Estate of Marshall Field in Chicago building properties. The Conway Building, the Pittsfield Building, 700 North Michigan Avenue, the Marshall Field Garden Apartments, the great Field Building and a host of other properties are visible evidences of the enduring and creative power of Mr. Field's last will and testament.

Sound and adequate financial policies have at all times and under varying economic conditions lifted these properties into the realm of security and permanence. More than this, in their management and very structure, these buildings exemplify the principles for which Marshall Field was known: quality, service and stability. These policies have been maintained so consistently and for so long a time that to occupy space in a property operated by the Estate of Marshall Field has come to be of itself an endorsement of character.

NUDISTS ASKING AL SMITH FOR FULL HEARING

Cite Legion of Decency New York Attack.

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—An effort to win Alfred E. Smith over to a belief in the high moral purpose of nudism has been made by the international nudist conference in a letter made public today.

DR. ILSLEY BOONS.

The conference in its letter to the ex-governor expressed concern over the bill in the legislature to make nudism a misdemeanor. The bill is fostered by the Legion of Decency of the archdiocese of New York and Smith is chairman of the advisory council of the Legion.

Cite Volstead Law Repeal.

"We consider nudism a great moral advance as you considered repeal of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment," said the letter, signed by the Rev. Ilsley Boone, executive secretary of the conference. "We accordingly echo the words you used in your speech at Milwaukee, Wis.: 'We regard this as a great moral issue, and we appeal to the people of America, regardless of party, to put aside any preconceived notions they may have about it and to approach it fairly, without passion and without prejudice, with open eyes and with open minds.'"

The letter recalls how customs and practices have changed with the years, citing the views about witches, and price fixing under the NRA codes.

Asks Ten Questions.

The letter asks Smith ten questions, among them whether he has read the "principles and standards" of the international nudist conference? A copy of them is inclosed and Smith is asked whether he has read certain books and articles.

The letter quotes Prof. Howard Crosby Warren, the late head of the psychology department of Princeton, to the effect that "social nudity is not productive of eroticism."

The letter quotes from Smith's speeches to show that he has favored individual liberty and freedom, and asks him, "Are you willing to judge nudism on the evidence and not on the theoretical verdict on it passed by yourself or by the church or other authorities?"

Finally Smith is asked whether he will receive "a deputation of intelligent and responsible men and women who have personally tried nudism" and question them about it?

RICKETS CAUSE FAULTY TEETH AMONG YOUTHS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—A new clew to causes of faulty tooth development, showing that defective teeth often are an aftermath of severe rickets, the bone disease of childhood, was reported today by the children's bureau.

Scientists of the bureau, in examining two groups of children, one group of whom had had severe rickets in earlier years and the other had been virtually free of the disease, found many more defective teeth among the children who had been rickets victims.

Rickets often results in bow legs and other deformities, and attacks young children in the formative stage. It results from lack of vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin," which regulates proper use of calcium and phosphorus by the body in the growth of bones. The disease prevails among children who get little or no sunshine and no cod liver or other fish oils containing vitamin D.

The government scientists found that pits and cavities in the tooth enamel, known as hypoplasia, were much more frequent among children who had had moderate to severe cases of rickets several years before. Most of the children examined were between 6 and 8.

Boys Have Most Sense, College Men Declare

Harlan County, Ky., Mine Hearing Starts.

Pineville, Ky., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Charles B. Barnes opened the bituminous coal labor board hearing today with a minute of silent prayer. "It is very regrettable that we are compelled to hold hearings on Sunday, when we should be in church," he remarked.

Then he arose to his full height and said:

"If I know there is a man in this house with a gun I am going to take it off of him. I may be old and not very strong, but I am going to take it off of him."

Hearing Over Wages.

The board was hearing witnesses in the controversy between the United Mine Workers of America and certain Harlan county operaters over wages under the soft coal code.

William Turnblazer, district president of the union, told Barnes that miners feared discharge if they testified before the board. Barnes said such disharges would result in fines or imprisonment for operators.

William Clontz, a union organizer, testified that pistol and rifle shots had been fired into his house near Wallins Creek in Harlan county, and that attempts had been made to dynamite it. Clontz said he informed Sherif Middleton, but the sherif advised him to leave the county rather than be killed.

Cleanup Is Demanded.

Van A. Bittner, labor representative on the bituminous coal board, declared that if Gov. Laffoon "failed to clean up" Harlan county President Roosevelt should be requested to act. Bittner and others charged Sherif Theodore Middleton, according to Adjt. Gen. H. H. Denhardt's report, with appointing 191 deputies, most of whom are being paid by the coal operators. Meanwhile Lawrence Dwyer, union organizer at Pineville, announced that an affidavit, signed by a group of Harlan county citizens in support of charges of acts of violence against Sherif Middleton, was being mailed today to Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

DR. J. M. DORAN TO TALK HERE AT LIQUOR MEETING

Dr. J. M. Doran, former United State prohibition commissioner, will speak before the national conference of state liquor administrators at the three day meeting opening in the Hotel Sherman next Thursday.

Municipal Judge J. M. Braude, chairman of the conference, said nearly every state would send delegates to the conference, at which problems of liquor administration under repeal will be discussed.

John L. Huntington, head of code enforcement for the federal alcohol control administration, also will address the group.

The heritage of our loved ones

..WELL GUARDED!

THE security of our families . . . the safety of our own savings . . . these are the human values. the real values. which stand out clear and warm and comforting in these figures . . . the 50th Annual Statement of Northwestern National Life. To thousands of policyholders. this statement will bring a tremendously satisfying sense of security . . . a sense of the real strength of the institution to which they have entrusted the future of their dependents . . . and the security of their own savings for old age independence.

Notice first . . . LIQUIDITY

. . . a word which accountants use to describe a simple but very important quality—when a policyholder wants his money, it is ready and waiting. Here's proof: If every policyholder had demanded the guaranteed cash or loan value of his policy on December 31st—an impossible contingency—the bonds held by the Company, alone, if sold at actual market values on that day, together with the cash on hand, would have paid every such demand in full, leaving many million dollars in other sound assets untouched.

Then . . . DIVERSIFICATION

. . . another technical term, which means simply this: The funds which you have invested in NWNL policies are spread over so many different fields of enterprise and in so many different items that the risk of loss is reduced to a minimum. NWNL's largest single investment, aside from U. S. Government Bonds, is in its Home Office Building, representing only 1.2% of its total assets.

And . . . QUALITY OF MANAGEMENT

Reserves have been established to protect policyholders against every contingency. There is constant, informed watchfulness of investment trends. These same careful yet progressive methods are evident in every department of the Company's business—even in the close control which enables NWNL to be the first life insurance company to publish its annual statement each year. In all these things there is evidence of a management which consistently administers the Company in the interests of its policyholders. This is one asset which cannot be shown in a balance sheet . . . yet in the last analysis it is at the root of the strength and growth of this Company . . . particularly evident during the last five hard years.

NWNL policyholders will find in this 50th Annual Statement comforting evidence that the Company, on their behalf, is truly "INVESTING FOR SECURITY."

LOESCH FAVORS U.S. APPOINTMENT OF POLICE CHIEFS

Urges Closer Co-operation of Enforcing Agencies.

Frank J. Loesch, veteran head of the crime commission of Chicago and one time member of President Hoover's Wickersham commission, yesterday gave approval to a proposal that a federal board appoint police chiefs in all cities of 75,000 or more population. My means of such appointments, he said, fuller coöperation can be obtained between federal and local law enforcement agencies, in contrast to the clashing of authority in many cases through the government agents' activity in instances where their work conflicts directly with that of state and city officers.

Mr. Loesch exhibited concern last week over the fact a group of federal agents raided a Chicago apartment without previously having notified local police, killed a criminal in an exchange of shots, endangered innocent persons, and narrowly escaped a gun battle with police, who had no way of knowing whether they were government detectives or gangsters.

Points to Loose Coöperation.

The government, Mr. Loesch said, appears to be expanding its police activities without coöperating with city police authorities.

Therefore, Mr. Loesch explained yesterday, he concurred in the plan for federally appointed police, chiefs—of which he disclaimed authorship—on the theory it would help to correlate federal and civic police work.

The installation of such federally appointed police chiefs would be voluntary on the part of mayors, city councils, or other city agencies having the usual power of appointment, he said, and the selections would be made by a federal police board.

"The federal police board, which should be nonpolitical in makeup, would have the duty of supervision of federal police chiefs," Mr. Loesch stated. "It would supervise and bring about coöperation in the apprehension of criminals and interchange of information with the department of justice, postal inspectors, and other federal agencies.

How the System Would Work.

"In order to be eligible to federal appointment as a city police chief, a man should have at least one year of active service in some federal investigating bureau. After appointment he would be jointly responsible to the federal police board and the local authorities. The local machinery for the selection of policemen should not be disturbed, but the chief should have the selection of his lieutenants, who should come from the ranks.

"In that way the 'beat man' could be a 'career man' capable of working up to assistant chief of police. A provision that after a period of unblemished service any policeman could be transferred into federal service to obtain the year's experience, would then make the former "beat" man eligible to become a chief.

"Progressive cities, troubled with graft and crime and the influence of ward politicians, could speedily avail themselves of the opportunity to acquire trained federal men as police heads. The government and local authorities could split the salaries of the chiefs.

"In this way, instead of opposing the government's encroachment, cities could outflank the government and obtain efficient police forces, and bring about coöperation between cities as well as with the government bureaus."

WANTS CENTRAL FEDERAL POLICE TO CURB RACKETS

Senator Copeland Asks Roosevelt Action.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Consolidation of all federal police units—numbering about 22,000 men—into one powerful, close knit organization was urged tonight by Senator Copeland [Dem., N. Y.]. He is chairman of the senate anti-racket committee.

"President Roosevelt could do it by executive order—one stroke of the pen," Copeland declared. "I think he should." He said that was why there was hesitation in pressing a bill for unification.

Twenty-five Federal Agencies.

At present there are 25 federal police units, including the treasury's secret service, anti-narcotics, customs, and internal revenue agents, the justice department's division of investigation, and the postoffice inspection service. Other agencies have investigative staffs which perform less dramatic work.

"I imagine there is a lot of jealousy between the various departments' investigative units," Copeland said. "There should be one force with one boss."

Copeland said local police organizations don't like federal agents. "A federal officer is like a skunk at a wedding when he goes to a local jurisdiction," Copeland said.

Cites Lindbergh Case.

"The Lindbergh case was jumbled up with various police officers, including those from branches of the federal government working in a manner that was not coöperative."

Copeland wants a special school for training of state selected students as detectives who would return to their home states and operate with state power, but under justice department supervision.

MUSSOLINI UNVEILS PLAQUE TO FASCISM'S MILITIA AND COUNCIL

ROME, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini commemorated in marble today the laying of two corner stones of his Fascist state—the Fascist grand council, next in power to himself, and the Fascist militia.

On the 12th anniversary of the founding of the two organizations, the former the highest legislative and executive body in Italy, the other the "protector of the national security," Il Duce unveiled a marble plaque in honor of their formation on Jan. 13, 1923. He praised them as "corner stones of the new Roman order."

The diplomatic corps, representing most of the governments of the world, as well as the great of Italy's one political party, attended the impressive ceremonies in the Grand hotel. The United States was represented by Alexander Kirk of Chicago, chargé d'affaires here.

POLICEMAN AND ROBBER SHOT IN HOLDUP ROUNDUP

Policeman Herbert Laube of the Cicero police was slightly wounded in the leg yesterday in an exchange of shots with one of three men he and another policemen had surprised in a robbery of the Liberty pharmacy, 4930 West 30th street, Cicero. The robber was wounded in the right lung, and is not expected to live. His two companions were arrested as they endeavored to hide in the store.

The wounded robber is Peter Jakstawich, 34 years old, 1906 South Union avenue. The others said they were James Wojcik, 25 years old, 3634 South 52d avenue, Cicero, and Andrew Kowski, 23 years old, 1114 South Des Plaines street, Chicago.

Isadore Cam, owner of the store, who had been forced into a rear room after the robbers took $31 from the cash register, pressed a button that sounded an American District Telegraph alarm and the police responded. Parishioners leaving St. Valentine's Catholic church nearby witnessed the pursuit and shooting.

LOSS TO THIEVES RISES IN 1934 AS TIMES IMPROVE

During 1934 property valued at $3,499,901 and $1,476,347, a total of $4,976,248, was reported lost or stolen by Chicago citizens, as compared with $3,066,807 in 1933, an increase of $1,909,441 acording to police department statistics made public yesterday.

The jump follows declines in losses reported in the depression years of 1931, '32, and '33, and is at least partially attributable to the fact that with more jobs and better times, there is more personal property and cash which burglars and robbers might reach, according to James P. Allman, commissioner of police.

The amount of property losses reported to the police reached a high mark of $375,574 in October.

During 1934 the amount of property and cash recovered by police totaled $454,869. Of this amount $374,576 is in merchandise and personal property, and $80,293 is in cash.

There were 5,960 policemen in the Chicago department in 1934 as compared with 6,074 in 1933. The appropriation for the department in 1934 was $14,453,654, an increase of $52,000 over the previous year.

THE LAW OF POLITICAL SPENDING.

Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican sitting in congress for President Roosevelt's home district in New York, drew first blood from the New Deal by attacking the government's outpourings of public money and its failure to keep its campaign promises. In undertaking to answer him Tom Blanton of Texas tried some disarming candor and wanted to know how any one expected to spend public money without wasting half of it. The point is cynical, and, worse, it is truthful.

The law of politics is different from the law of private enterprise. If private enterprise wastes money it goes broke and there isn't any recovery. If politics doesn't waste money it goes broke politically. For a long time it can keep from going broke financially because it has taxes back of it. There is an end to that, but it may be postponed, and it is the rule of politics to go as close to the breaking point as possible. The political strength of the New Deal is one of subsidies. Mr. Farley stated the case during the campaign in words which compress into the following argument: "You have got yours. Now vote for us." Gratitude as a lively sense of favors to come gave the Democratic campaign manager 3 million majority in all the congressional districts combined over the temporarily penniless Republicans, and that majority was enough to make the Democratic slie of both houses of congress almost unmanageable in numbers.

Mr. Fish could not be answered on the score of campaign pledges because no one can deny that all of them went out of the window as soon as the new government took possession in March, 1933. There are various ways of explaining this but none of denying it, and the maintenance of an inviolable currency and of a balanced budget were only two items in the flight of solemn promises.

YARDSTICKS.

The administration justifies the construction of government public service facilities to duplicate private plants—the Tennessee Valley project as an outstanding example—on the theory that they will serve as yardsticks to measure the efficiency and service charges of the privately owned institutions. The politician argues, "We are satisfied that the power interests are gouging the public, so we, the people, will build a modern experimental plant of our own to be operated as a yardstick. Then we shall know all about power costs." To the citizen the argument seems very much like having the government build him a second home to prove that the original contractor was dishonest. He doesn't want two homes and he knows that he cannot assume the taxes to build another. Further, he may be just a trifle suspicious that the yardstick may prove nothing. The federal barge line and railway projects certainly did not, and the country is strewn with municipal undertakings frequently regarded as white elephants. He might well remark, "All this interest in my family budget is very flattering, but can't you think of some less expensive way of proving that my bill for electricity is too high? After all, it is a relatively unimportant item."

The administration certainly can find a wealth of information on the subject if it will take the trouble to look around a bit. Other countries have been experimenting with public utility yardsticks for years and it is not necessary to go very far to find them. As an instance we might suggest a trip over Canada's railway system to its capital at Ottawa, Ontario, then to proceed through a palatial government station and a government owned subway to a government owned hotel within a block of the seat of government. There is an abundance of yardsticks here available for study.

Canada has two principal railways, one government owned and one privately owned. There is no substantial difference between the operated mileage of the two systems—both extend from coast to coast. No matter where one may be riding on the government road, the private road is not far away. Every city of any consequence in the entire breadth of the land is served by both lines. If any advantage of location exists, it favors the national road, which being the older is better entrenched in the thickly settled eastern provinces than its privately operated competitor. The national also has more profitable connections to points in the United States, notably its line through Detroit and across the state of Michigan to Chicago.

Here is one yardstick. The national road has amassed a public indebtedness of three billion dollars and in the last nine years has failed by $456,000,000 to pay interest on the private capital originally invested in it. Operating under the same rates and fares, the privately operated Canadian Pacific has paid interest and dividends of $401,000,000 in the same period, all of which has been added to the wealth of the nation, and of course subjected to income taxes. Is any better yardstick needed to show that the politician's alleged "exploitation of the people for profit" cannot be cured or even demonstrated by public construction and operation?

THE CHACO AND OTHER WARS.

Bolivia is drawing on the last man to continue the Chaco war with Paraguay. To the world, outside of the emotions and interests involved, this is a dismal struggle imposed upon both peoples with like injustice, but the leaders of the combatants find it of vital importance and drearily continue it. What part it has of real interest and what of dreadful vainglory the rest of the world knows little. However, there it is and it goes on interminably.

One difficulty in approaching the general subject of war is the disposition to oversimplify it. People who try to prevent it seem, first, to seek some one malevolence, personify it, and then put it in the pillory to make it shameful and disgraceful. Sometimes a specific theory is taken, given an industrial or commercial background with some known agents as head devils, and the whole business is thus charged up to definite influences. The habit is to isolate a cause which must be universal and then find persons who are deliberately manipulating the machinery to bring about wars. Sometimes the munition makers are selected, sometimes the financiers, manufacturers, traders, or promoters; almost any stirring group of profit seekers will do for the responsibility.

Obviously, causes must vary with periods. The Greeks made war for colonies and had a commercial bent. Tyre traded and didn't fight much. Rome expanded for conquest and kept going with the spoils of empire. In and after the middle ages war was an employment. Great armies of mercenaries were for hire because the men in the ranks knew no other way of earning their living or no other way that they preferred to military service. Lands were governed by them, as the French period of English history reveals. Industrialism offered an escape from the trade of war. Men could find their livelihood making goods.

Warlike movements of peoples have been caused by the desire for better grass, pleasanter climate, more arable soil, by the necessity of escaping a powerful invader, and by the opportunity to take the goods of a weaker people. Wars in the 17th and 18th centuries were caused by the ambitions of monarchs, the desire for foolish glory, the itch for colonial possessions, and the search for royal revenues. The trader had his part in them, but it would have been everything to the real interests of France, for instance, if its fighting kings could have stopped before their taxes mounted to half the country's annual income.

At present it must be admitted that Japan presents the most perplexing problem in a world considerably disturbed by other doubts and fears. Americans must concede that for some reason or other they have been selected for the post of honor as Japan's bête noire. Now Japan and the United States seem to have every commercial and industrial reason for being in the best of relations. They complement each other in many important respects. Contrariwise, Great Britain and Japan are not on the best of terms in trade and have actually been trying to cut each other's commercial throat. Moreover, Great Britain is crowded in upon Japan's essential trade routes, with fortifications and territorial holdings, whereas the United States is not only not fortifying but is withdrawing, yet no one can fail to perceive that it is the United States which seems to give the greatest irritation. Americans, not being within the Japanese mind, cannot understand it.

The peaceable solution of problems which have made war and may do so again will not be found by oversimplification of the affairs involved. We may chase all the vermin up one tree and set the dogs to barking at them and in this preoccupation miss the chance of dealing effectually with real causes because not enough intelligent attention has been given to understand them. Any theory of war which devotes itself to certain exclusive economic phenomena is more than likely to take off in the wrong direction and be found chasing the wrong scent.

Editorial of the Day

EVERLASTING FAME.

[Providence Bulletin.]

May we give you a tip from Virginia Woolf about the new diary? Simply write down the most commonplace things you can think of and you may be sure that in the years to come you will be famous.

"The good diarist," says Virginia Woolf, "writes either for himself alone or for a posterity so distant that it can safely hear every secret and justly weigh every motive."

Therefore put down faithfully what you see in the shop window, how favorably you are impressed with the looks of the bus drivers, what you had for breakfast, how narrowly you escaped death at the hands of a motorist, and what you can buy for a dollar. You might put down what you are now paying for eggs. And by all means describe one or two of the women's hats.

Don't say anything about your moods or reactions to sunsets, trees, stars, and the like. But be voluminous about the obvious. And you may be sure that some three or four hundred years hence your wormeaten diary will be held reverently in the hands of scholars and kept under a glass case when not being consulted by antiquarians.

For you are living in an age which is taking the long view of things. Some of the present schemes for social justice—the banishment of selfishness and dishonesty, for instance—will just about begin to flower when your faithful picture comes to light. And people will be eager to know what sort of creatures we were to take such a noble view of life.

Of course, if you are one of those who prefer "to take the cash and let the credit go," you will not gloat, as Virginia Woolf says, "over the fame that will be yours only in the grave," but will desire to see a little immediate result from your heavy taxes. In which case we advise you not to keep a diary at all, for it will be filled with reflections which will do nobody—not even yourself—good to read.

BACKED THE LIMIT.

"I say," said one of the men gathered round the bar in the village inn, "have you ever backed a horse?"

"Yes, once," said his fellow tankard holder.

"Did you win or lose?" asked the first interestedly. The other grimaced as he recollected the incident.

"Well," he replied, "I lost £5. I backed him into a shop window."—Exchange.

PERFECT FOR IT.

Mother—You were a tidy boy not to throw your orange peel on the floor of the bus, but where did you put it?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THINKING SOME MORE of Congressman O'Malley's bill in congress that in the next war it will be Private Ford, Private Rockefeller, and Private Morgan in the front ranks, makes the prospect of another terrible carnage lose a lot of its terror. It looks better every time you think of it. What a joy it would be to go down a company street and say, "Where's a guy named Hank Ford?" And then when a soldier poked his head out of a tent and said "I am Private Ford" to be able to reply, "All right, Hank. Tha top kick says you didn't have yer gun cleaned yesterday nor yer puttles on straight an' you was seen outside o' camp with two buttons o' yer blouse unbuttoned. An' you don't know how to salute a 'nofficer. Jest fer that the top says you go over to the kitchen an' do five days' kitchin' police. An' snap into it; there's about four bushels o' spuds a-waitin' for you an' the cook is sore as boiled oil." Oh, what a joy that would be!

And then when Private Ford goes down to the cook shack and looks mournfully at the great piles of potatoes all around him the top sergeant will yell "Hey! you can't stand there, soldier! Gitthell outten there with them there spuds. Hey! youse two guys that are scrubbin' up this dump! Private Morgan and Private Rockefeller, drag them buckets in and scrub this here floor. Cumon now, let's have some action!"

And about this time a second lieutenant will poke his head in the door and yell "Hey there! where's that guy what's named Ford you've got a-peelin' spuds? Understand he knows somethin' about motor cars. Hey you, Private Ford, do you know anything about ottermobiles?"

"Yessir," says Private Ford, saluting.

"All right," says the second lieutenant, "in that case as soon as you git through takin' the feathers off these spuds you come out back here and wash my car."

And wait until a pompous captain or a strutting colonel runs across Private Ford and Private Rockefeller and Private Morgan. No matter how they try to salute it's going to be all wrong. "Hey!" shouts the great man, "don't know how to slute yer sperlur officur, huh? Hey, you M. P.'s, take these birds to the guardhouse and let 'em slute about five hunnerd times. I'll teach 'em how to be soldiers."

Yes, indeed, with Private Ford and Private Rockefeller and Private Morgan in the ranks grim visaged war, at least to the other buck privates in the company, is going to lose a lot of its old time horror.

MEDITATION.

This iridescent flame from oily coal
Was ancient sunlight on a dripping fern
When dinosaurus arched his neck to stroll
Knee deep in flora difficult to learn.

It fell beside a hungry asphalt lake
That swallowed bones where mammoth ferns uncurled,
With sage solicitude for science' sake.

How pleasant is the fire's low purr within—
No prehistoric mammals rant outside,
Nor beat membranous wings in slimy din,
No quaint fat serpents in my bathtub slide.

It's long since these converted ancient rays
Shone on strange ferns that now are cubes of coal—
For barriers of years and quiet days
I'm thankful from my noncombative soul.

ALL THE JURY, Jafsie, Betty Gow, and other people who figure in the Lindbergh trial are said to have been offered big pay for appearance in vaudeville after the case is finally over. I don't think I would pay for seeing any of them, but I would march right up to the box office and buy a ticket if the spectators at the trial were corraled and taken around on the hoof and exhibited on the stage. I would like a chance to stand up in the theater and say to the trial spectators: "What the heck did you find to snicker about in an awful crime such as kidnaping the Lindbergh baby?"

NOR LOCKS NOR BARS.

Nor locks nor bars are there in Hell—
Men marvel that it's so.
The souls that ever therein dwell
Have sought their bed of woe.

Though each bronze hinge be glowing red
From swinging to and fro,
Those doors halt none by Satan led,
Should any wish to go.

For ruth of Christ can reach each pit
Where souls repentant be,
If even one but yearn for it,
One wraith in agony.

Gehenna's gates swing inward wide,
But they that stay therein
Are those by their own folly tied
And love God less than sin.

Nor locks nor bars are there in Hell—
The bonds are on the soul
That's forsworn candle, Book, and bell
To reek with sin and dole.

Then cling to candle, bell, and Book,
God's Holy Rood hold fast.
His Light can search each fiery nook
To save your soul at last.

AND THOUGH they vote with loud cheers for the $8,520,000,000 budget I believe I'd wait a long time before I'd ask one of those congressmen if he'd let me have four bits 'til next pay day.

UREMIA.

THE terms uremia and uremic poisoning are used so generally that we would like to know more about the condition to which they are applied. Many symptoms are associated with uremia and we ordinarily think of them as due to some failure of the kidneys or to some interference with the normal outflow of urine. Symptoms of uremia may occur in chronic and long continued inflammation of the kidneys that is followed by a gradual loss of kidney function.

There are three general types of uremia. The first is characterized by headache, drowsiness, fatigue, and prostration. On examination the blood is found to contain a high concentration of nitrogen. A second type is characterized by convulsions to which the name eclampsia is sometimes applied. Occasionally these convulsive attacks simulate epilepsy. Not infrequently this type is due merely to the retention of water, with a swelling of the brain, and we say the patient has a "wet" or "water-logged" brain. The third type is marked by changes in the mental response of the patient. He is at first confused; he does not get things quite straight; sometimes he sees things that are not present or hears sounds that do not exist. After some days, weeks, or even months in this situation the patient may sink into deep unconsciousness.

General symptoms include headache that is persistent and of considerable severity. We must understand, of course, that an occasional headache or, in fact, many types of headache do not indicate uremia. But when headache exists for days or weeks without some other explainable cause the urine and the blood should be investigated. Whenever headache is associated with nausea, intermittent vomiting, restlessness, and delirium, the combination usually means a uremic condition.

Among the chief causes must be mentioned the retention or suppression of urine. When we use the term suppression we mean that the kidneys are failing in their function. When the term retention is used it means that the urine has been excreted but is retained in the bladder or somewhere along the urinary tract by some obstruction, such as calculus (stone) in the bladder, tumor growth, or an enlarged prostate.

As a rule the diagnosis is not difficult. There is a very excellent test of the function of the kidneys which is performed by injecting a particular dye. This dye is excreted in the urine and by measuring the amount the function of the kidneys can be determined. Should the dye test show but 50 per cent of the normal output, means must be found of relieving the load on the kidneys in order to prevent the onset of uremia.

As we have noted, unconsciousness or, as it is sometimes called, coma—preceded or accompanied by convulsions—may indicate uremia. Unconsciousness may come from so many different causes, however, that physicians are careful before pronouncing the case one of uremia. If the diagnosis is well established and the patient is unconscious or has recently shown signs of convulsions, old fashioned bleeding is one of the very best remedies. Not only should blood be taken from the circulation but fluid should be removed from the spinal canal. In a strong, muscular person a pint of blood can be withdrawn without danger.

Hot packs to promote sweating are sometimes dangerous, as they may increase the concentration in the blood of poisons that are not eliminated through the skin. If they are used water should be given freely by mouth, by rectum, or under the skin.

As soon as the acute uremic attack has been conquered careful attention should be given to the underlying cause, whether it be kidney disease or heart disease with kidney complications or merely some obstruction to the urinary outflow. The diet should be the same as that used for chronic kidney inflammation unless it is proved to be inadequate. In many cases this means that proteins will be decreased and carbohydrates correspondingly increased.

Prevention lies in a careful examination of the urine at least once a year, with adjustment of diet, exercise, and physical and mental load to meet the situation should damage to the kidney be detected.

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Mrs. L. O. B. writes: My sister took down with sleeping sickness at the age of 16. Will she outgrow the effects of it?

REPLY.

Unfortunately many persons who have had encephalitis [so-called sleeping sickness] suffer after effects, such as Parkinson's disease, characterized by muscular rigidity and tremor. Much can be done to relieve these symptoms.

WINTER ITCH.

W. P. S. writes that he was troubled with winter itch until he put ground mustard into the bath water. His symptoms then disappeared.

REPLY.

This treatment may be all right for thick-skinned persons. It is not to be recommended for those with sensitive skins, unless the amount of mustard used is very small.

RIGHT TO INSURANCE.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband has a son and daughter by a former marriage and a daughter by me. 1. What would happen in the event of his death? 2. Would these two children by the first wife be able to cause any trouble about my husband's insurance and household furnishings, car, etc.? The insurance is made out to me and he had a will drawn up about fourteen years ago giving all his possessions to me after all just debts are paid. 3. Can they claim their share of two-thirds which, I understand, goes to the children? 4. If they can claim and collect as things stand, what should we do to prevent this? H. B.

1. Rights on the insurance would depend on the wording of the policies.
2. If this originally belonged to the children's mother then the children would be entitled to a share. If it belonged to the father then they would have no claim during his lifetime, but if he makes no will they would have a share at his death.
3. Depends on the facts.
4. See 3.

JOINT SAFETY BOX.

Belvidere, Ill., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man and wife own a safety deposit box jointly accessible. In case either is removed by death [1] has the survivor the right to open the box, or is there some legal procedure necessary? If legal procedure is necessary as above mentioned [2] what can be done now, while both are alive, to make the box accessible to survivor? Our only heir is a son. 3. How can we arrange to have the box so he can open it in case we are both removed by death? M. W. J.

1. Yes, after there has been an inheritance tax examination.
2. The possibility of arranging your affairs so that there would be no inheritance tax would depend on the amount of the assets and on complex facts not before us. We would advise you to go over these facts in a personal interview with an attorney.
3. See preceding answers.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—If a child was brought to the United States from South America by her parents when she was a few months old and the father took out a declaration of intention [first paper], does that make the child an American citizen, also the mother? C. R.

No; if the father took out a declaration of intention only, he did not become a citizen, nor was citizenship conferred upon the child or the mother.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

"PROMISE TO PAY."

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A provision in a trust deed reads as follows: "Whereas the grantors, J. B. and A. B., his wife, are justly indebted upon one principal promissory note bearing even date herewith, payable to the order of bearer, in the sum of $2,000 and due on or before five years after date, with interest at 5 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, and providing for payments of $100 or more on any interest date." Can holder of mortgage force grantors to pay $100 on each or any interest date? D. A.

The more common wording promising to pay "on or before" a certain date is similarly ambiguous, but is uniformly construed as giving the option to the debtor. We would construe your ambiguous wording as giving the option to the debtor, hence we would answer your question in the negative.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I did some remodeling on a piece of property which is owned in joint tenancy by a husband and wife. I received a judgment note for $50 signed by the husband only. The note is about nine months old and no payments have been made. 1. Can I get an attorney and have him confess judgment and [2] levy on the property? 3. Can I levy on his interest or on both? 4. How much is he exempt? 5. Do I have to put up one thousand dollars for his homestead rights? 6. Is he also exempt $400 personal property? R. E. L.

1. Yes.
2. Yes, as to the husband's one-half.
3. See 2.
4. The homestead exemption is a $1,000 life interest.
5. You can make your judgment a lien on the title without putting up the $1,000.
6. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Visitors at zoos often pity the polar bears, which they think are suffering from the heat of our climate. The truth is that these bears really do not mind the heat and quickly get used to the change of climate. The thick layers of fat which keep them warm in the arctic regions are quickly lost, and then the animal is quite comfortable, the keepers tell us.

IMPLICATIONS OF THE BUDGET.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—An article on the financial page today is headed, "Budget Points to Inflating Bank Credit." It also points definitly and inevitably to currency inflation. It would seem the height of folly if not of insanity for any private enterprise to first depreciate and discredit any securities which it may contemplate issuing, yet that is exactly what the government has done by repudiating the gold clause in its outstanding bonds and then offering a tremendous volume of securities without any guarantee that it would not further depreciate the dollar with which they are to be repaid. Naturally such securities would not be purchased extensively by individuals, or any bank except on compulsion, the public knowing also that the market price of those securities was being stimulated at the will of the treasury department.

That money thus borrowed by the government, almost wholly from banks over which it had obtained control, consists of the deposits of individuals or of business concerns, and although it would return to the banks in deposits when expended by the government, it would not be returned by the original depositors, but by new ones receiving it. Thus the same volume of money would have increased the number of depositors entitled to withdraw it, and that policy repeated several times with that same volume of money must eventually leave the banks with government bonds as the principal, if not their only, asset.

If the depositors become uneasy and ask for cash the government may have to start its printing presses to redeem from the banks the bonds with which they are overloaded, redeeming them with money that has no established value.

That article, which pointed out the expansion of credit, did not carry the analogy to its inevitable conclusion, nor did it nor does the government by this process take into account that the money of the original depositors is required by business and industry if this country is ever going to emerge from the depression. Nor does the government realize that its only income and the employment of our people depend wholly on private enterprise and not on the expenditure of other people's money. It has none of its own. F. H. W.

IT DOES.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 8.—Does it fill you with new hope and a bit of cheer to know that our Supreme court does not consider the constitution of the United States of America just another "scrap of paper"?

Since reading THE TRIBUNE this morning this world has seemed a much better place in which to live than for many months past.

FROM COUSIN EVE.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—A contributor to the Voice of the People tries to correct me as to the location of Palazzo Salviati, which I had mentioned on Dec. 30 as being in the Corso.

Here is Baedeker: "Here in the Corso is the beautiful east façade of Palazzo Doria. Opposite rises Palazzo Odescalchi in the Florentine style. Adjacent is the Palazzo Salviati, by Carlo Rainaldi, occupied in 1725 by the French academy. The last corner house on the right is Palazzo Bonaparte, where Napoleon's mother, Mme. Laetitia, died in 1836."

Our reader must have been thinking of the Collegio Militare in the Lungara, across the Tiber, formerly Palazzo Salviati, centuries ago. COUSIN EVE.

GREETINGS TO THE PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—On Jan. 30 our nation will celebrate the birthday of our present day leader. To Mr. Roosevelt this day may only mean just another day of hard work trying in every human way possible to solve our problems of assuring better conditions for us all. As an individual let me make a suggestion. Why not all get together and wish our President a very happy birthday? Many of us possibly have not the means to send a telegram or fancy greeting cards, but even a few kind words written in a letter will be greatly appreciated, I am sure. Although Mr. Roosevelt holds the highest office in our land, he is human just as you and I, and will be ever so pleased to receive kind words of greetings.

EDWARD ROEHRICK.

THE WEATHER EXPLAINED.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—I see by the paper that over in England it is very warm when it should be cold. This is caused by some freak of the trade winds blowing up from the tropical regions; so say the experts.

Now we are having the same kind of weather here in good old Chicago. I fully believe it is a trade wind blowing up from Washington, D. C., and it looks like a very warm session to me.

OLIVER BORCHARDT.

THEY JUST LOOK ALIKE.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—I am one who adheres to the belief that the late technocrats were not entirely looney. In support of my belief I recently had only to glance at the new radio studio building which THE TRIBUNE is constructing. For some time I had looked vainly for the construction force, but the other day my patience was rewarded. I espied the force, at least I surmised that he was the mechanic who is doing the work. Is this one man going to put up the entire structure? J. S. SWANSON.

TROTZKY CLAIMS KIROV SLAIN BY GPU CONSPIRACY

Declares Stalin Backed Political Plot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The local white Russian weekly newspaper, "Seven Days," today published a long statement by Leon Trotzky in which the latter denies allegations of soviet authorities that he was connected with the murder of Sergei Kirov, soviet leader, in Leningrad on Dec. 1. Trotzky has been in hiding in France for some months, lately changing his place of refuge frequently.

The document is the first Trotzky statement since he left Barbizon, and was supposedly delivered in Paris on Jan. 5. Trotzky says in it that the attempt by Josef Stalin to link him to the Kirov murder is a Machiavellian move to throw him into disgrace by coupling him with the "world's imperialists."

Denies Assassin Wrote Him.

The former soviet military leader scoffs at the declarations of the tribunal that the assassin, Leonid Nicolaieff, attempted to write to him through the medium of a "consul for a foreign power." Trotzky says he has never approved of individual terrorism and denies that Nicolaieff wrote him.

"If we believe the soviets, and the letter really was written, then what became of it?" asks Trotzky. "Then it merely remained in the archives of the GPU [Russian secret police] as a weapon no longer useful."

Trotzky claims that the entire plot against Kirov was upon provocation by the GPU.

A GPU Conspiracy.

"I am absolutely certain that the GPU financed Nicolaieff with the aid of a genuine or invented foreign consul and attempted in this way to connect Kirov's assassination with me. I am sure the GPU was informed that Nicolaieff was preparing the terrorist act. Their object was to catch as many of his accomplices as possible and compromise all of Stalin's enemies.

"They needed the consul to link the terrorists and my friends, the Trotskyists, with foreign imperialists. Certainly the GPU was back of the plot."

It is hard to say whether the "Seven Days" statement is genuine because it is doubtful whether Trotzky would make such a declaration in a White Russian paper.

BANDITS FIRE ON CAR OF GOVERNOR IN TRANSJORDAN

JERUSALEM, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Abbas Bay, governor of Amman, capital city of Transjordan, barely escaped death last night as a barrage of bullets from masked desert highwaymen stopped the car in which he was riding with his family.

He was returning from a visit to the Roman ruin at Jerash. The governor ducked when the shots punctured the tires, smashed the windshield, and damaged other parts of the automobile. No one in the car was hurt.

WARNS OF SOVIET AIR MANEUVERS ACROSS NORWAY

Oslo Paper Sees Test of Strength in Arctic.

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The newspaper Tidens Tegn claimed evidence today that mysterious airplanes seen flying over northern Norway during recent months are Russian, and that their flights are part of soviet military maneuvers.

By establishing listening posts, the newspaper stated, it has been possible to determine that equally mysterious radio signals, apparently guiding the airplanes, originate on the Russian side of the Finnish-Russian border.

The listening posts have reported identification of some 50 different letter groups, of which only two have any reference to the international code book.

Testing Defense Lines.

In a warning to the Scandinavian countries as to the significance of Russian military operations, the Tidens Tegn said:

"The flights and signals must be part of Russian military maneuvers, the aim of which is to ascertain to what extent it is possible to meet an eventual aggressor coming from the northwest, and if it is possible to destroy hostile ships while they are still in the Atlantic or Arctic ocean.

"Naturally, the intense activity on Russia's Arctic front during the last years has a meaning. Russia now has her triple transport and defense line north of Leningrad, the Murmansk railway, the canal, and the airway system, the last including several highly modern subterranean hangars and airdromes.

Between Belligerents.

"This is undoubtedly the real background and purpose of the mysterious airplanes and radio signals. The situation promises no bright future for the Scandinavian countries which will find themselves between the nails of the belligerent powers during an eventual warlike settlement on the borders of the Arctic ocean."

An opposition newspaper, the Aftenposten, asserted the investigations of the Tidens Tegn were not conclusive since they were stopped by Norwegian military authorities who themselves are conducting an investigation.

Moscow Denies Report.

MOSCOW, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Government press representatives denied emphatically today a report in the Oslo newspaper Tidens Tegn that soviet planes flew over northern Norway.

CHARGE ATTEMPT TO CAUSE FIRES ON FRENCH LINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Criminal tampering with the electric wiring, intended to bring about destruction by fire of the Normandie, the world's largest liner in process of construction at Saint Nazaire, has been discovered, according to the afternoon daily newspaper La Liberte. Police have been assigned to closely guard the premises.

The case recalls destruction by fire of the Atlantique Jan. 4, 1933, off Cherbourg, and of the Georges Philippar in May, 1932, off Italian Somaliland. Loss of life in the two disasters was near 70. In both instances officials declared criminal tampering was to blame.

It is impossible to confirm reports by officials of the French Line, who maintain absolute silence, but the reports circulated freely among the workmen on the Normandie. The latter say that steel needles have been found deliberately driven through the conduits with apparent purpose of provoking short circuits. At other points wires have been cut. All material now is being closely inspected.

The Normandie, 1,020 feet long, is the French rival of the British Queen Mary, 1,018 feet long. Construction on the French ship is several months ahead of that on the British.

FRAU KOERWIN ON WAY TO GERMANY FROM GALAPAGOS

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Frau Dora Koerwin has sailed to rejoin her family in Berlin and find a publisher for the experiences of herself and the late Dr. Friedrich Ritter in their "back to nature" Galapagos island settlement.

Transferring here to the motorship Oakland, bound for Hamburg, on her long trip back from the lonely Pacific island, Frau Koerwin said she was quite happy despite the recent death of her companion with whom she deserted civilization.

1,000 SPANIARDS IN ROME TO SEE INFANTA MARRIED

ROME, Jan. 13.—(AP)—More than a thousand Spaniards, rich and poor, arrived in Rome today for the marriage of the Infanta Beatriz, daughter of former King Alfonso, to Prince Alessandro Torlonia tomorrow.

The wedding, uniting American blood with the royal family of Spain, will be in the Church of the Gesu, the principal church of the Jesuits and one of the richest and most gorgeous in Rome. Prince Allesandro's mother was the former Elsie Moore of New York and Bridgeport, Conn.

Three thousand persons will attend the wedding.

CANNERS OF U. S., FRUIT GROWERS CONVENE TODAY

Take Up Problems Arising Out of New Deal.

Problems of the nation's canning and fruit and vegetable growing industries under New Deal legislation will be the subject of a week of round table discussions at the joint convention of the National Canners' association, the National Food Brokers, and the Canning Machinery and Supplies association opening at the Stevens hotel this afternoon, and the convention of the American Fruit and Vegetable association convening in the Palmer House for a four day session.

Most formidable of the problems facing the canning industry is the government proposal of uniform labeling of canned goods. Regulations of the industry under the proposed Copeland pure food and drug act and internal difficulties arising from the agricultural adjustment act and thirty hour week proposals will also be discussed.

Expect Record Attendance.

The advance guard of officials and committee members filled the hotel headquarters over the week-end and a record attendance is expected during the week.

The labeling question is the outgrowth of a six month dispute between the canners' association and Division Administrator Armin W. Riley of the NRA, who favors enforcement under the industry's fair practices code of an A-B-C grading of canned goods.

The industry is not opposed to labeling but favors a grading of produce under the terms "fancy," "choice," and "standard."

The government grading system, spokesmen for the industry declare, favors the manufacturer of fancy canned goods and would be a hardship on the canner of standard brands, which constitute the bulk of the half billion dollar a year industry.

AAA Presents Big Problem.

The principal problem for discussion among delegates to the fruit and vegetable association convention will be effects of AAA crop regulation and proposed increases in freight rates. Members of the industry will discuss their problems with Dr. W. H. Spencer, dean of the school of business, University of Chicago, and chairman of the regional labor board; Jesse W. Tapp, assistant director of the AAA commodities division; Charles H. March, member of the Federal Trade commission, and W. D. Bennett, director of the California Fruit exchange.

More than 500 fruit shippers are expected to attend the convention.

Addressing a preliminary session of the food brokers' association last night when the election of officers was begun, Armin W. Riley, administrator of the NRA division over agricultural and food products, told the 800 delegates that in his opinion the NRA will be continued in some form indefinitely.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Jan. 13, 1935.

THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm has sold 44 of the 117 steers that have been at the Yorkville place since Sept. 18, 1933. They brought $9.25 a hundred pounds, weighing an average of 1,162½ pounds, and were purchased by Wilson & Co. at the Union Stock yards last week.

The steers brought a total of $4,731.37. During the time of nearly 16 months at the farm the steers gained an average of 549½ pounds. They were purchased in a herd of 117 steers at a cost of $5.27 a hundred pounds. The total cost of the 44 steers up to the time of leaving the farm was $2,336.68. The trucking and transportation insurance in bringing the cattle to market amounted to $80.24, and the terminal marketing costs totaled $63.15, making a total cost of $2,480.07, not including pasture and labor at the farm.

Terminal marketing costs, amounting to $1.43½ per steer, are made up of the following items:

Yardage charge	$17.60
Straw for bedding [100 lbs.]	1.20
Hay [200 lbs.]	4.20
Fire insurance at market	.15
National Live Stock and Meat board.	.40
Commission for selling	39.60
	$63.15

Records of the way the steers were handled show that after they were taken to the farm in September, 1933, they were kept on pasture for about two months and then fed timothy and clover hay, mixed, for a month. In the middle of December, 1933, they were put on silage and soybean hay until the first of last March. During that time they consumed about 100 tons of silage and 40 tons of soybean hay. In the next 30 days, from March 15 to April 15, they were fed a mixed hay, and during the last half of April they were given alfalfa hay. They were turned out on pasture the first week in May.

The following summary gives the costs of the 44 steers, feed, transportation to market, and terminal marketing costs:

Feed, winter 1933-'34—
Silage, 26 tons @ $4 a ton	104.00
Mixed hay, 28 tons @ $10	280.00
Feed, fall 1934 up to Jan. 9, 1935—
Corn silage, 4½ tons @ $34.50	155.25
Green corn fodder, 26 tons @ $4.	104.00
Alfalfa hay, 5 tons @ $20	100.00
Silage, 25 tons @ $4.00	100.00
Soybean hay, 6 tons @ $12	72.00
Trucking and transport'n insurance.	80.24
Terminal marketing costs	63.15
Total costs [exclusive of pasture and labor]	$2,480.07
Total sale	$4,731.37
Margin for pasture, labor, interest, and profit	$2,251.30

The remaining 73 head out of the original herd of 117 Herefords are being finished for the market and will be sold sometime within the next few weeks.

PLANS TO LINK PARTISAN CHIEF TO FIVE KILLINGS

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Albert L. Thomas, special state's attorney, says Joseph J. Bruno, former county detective and justice of the peace, will be linked by testimony tomorrow with an actual part in the killing of five and the wounding of thirteen in Kelayres on the evening of Nov. 5 last year.

Thomas said he would produce a bullet-torn American flag as part of the evidence in the trial of the 50 year old political leader for his life. Thomas indicated that a woman will be one of those to identify Bruno as among the men who crouched at an upstairs bedroom window and fired on a political parade.

Six of Bruno's relatives are in jail on murder charges. Mrs. Mary Krensavage, first of the eyewitnesses to testify, implicated three of them.

Carl Vacante, 20, the color bearer in the parade, was unwounded, though several shots tore the flag. He has testified to feeling "some sort of shocks" as he held the flag aloft on a slender bamboo pole.

During the first week of the trial weapons were shown in court as having been taken from the Bruno house. These included an automatic rifle, to the purchase of which Brune was linked by other testimony.

The anti-Bruno faction, now in control of the school board, has announced the reopening of schools tomorrow in Kelayres and the other two sections of Kline township.

JUDGE TO TALK TONIGHT.

Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas will speak tonight at the annual banquet of the Calvary Community Brotherhood in the Calvary Methodist Episcopal church, 78th and Morgan streets. The Rev. Olin Clarke Jones is pastor.

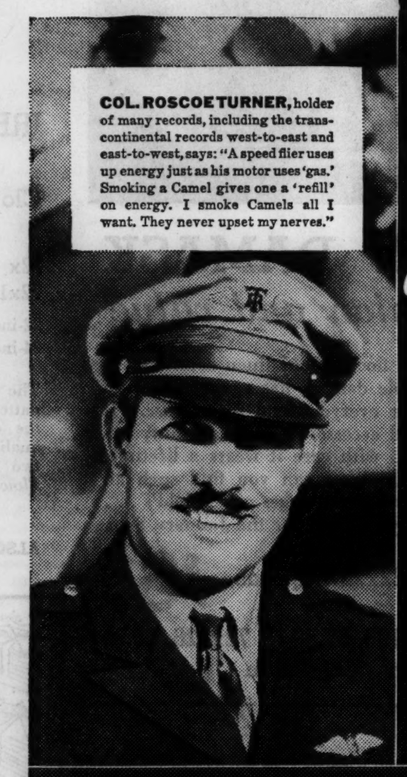
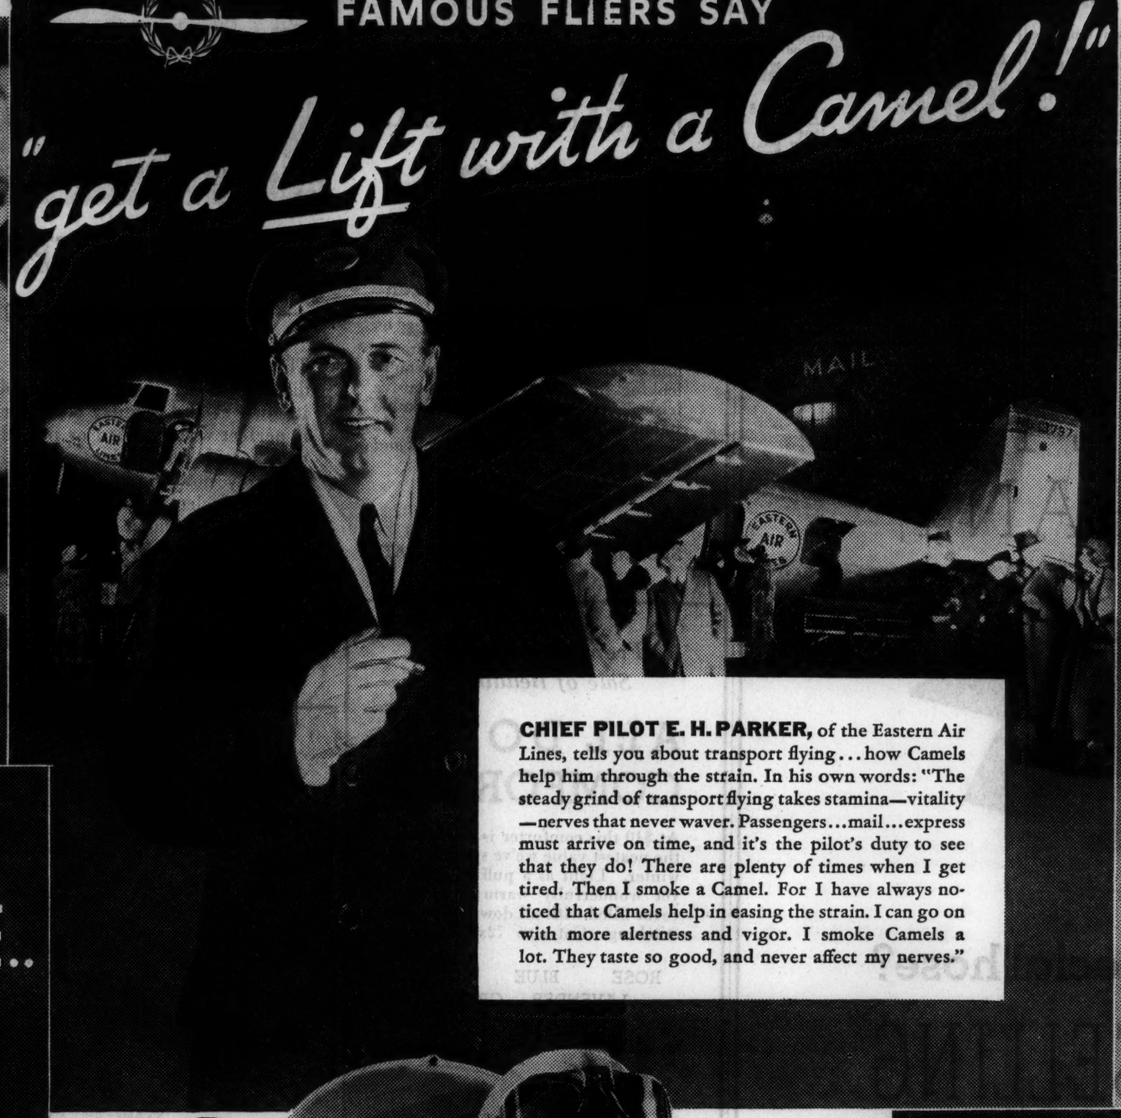
FAMOUS FLIERS SAY

"get a Lift with a Camel!"



COL. ROSCOE TURNER, holder of many records, including the transcontinental records west-to-east and east-to-west, says: "A speed flier uses up energy just as his motor uses 'gas.' Smoking a Camel gives one a 'refill' on energy. I smoke Camels all I want. They never upset my nerves."



CHIEF PILOT E. H. PARKER, of the Eastern Air Lines, tells you about transport flying... how Camels help him through the strain. In his own words: "The steady grind of transport flying takes stamina—vitality—nerves that never waver. Passengers... mail... express must arrive on time, and it's the pilot's duty to see that they do! There are plenty of times when I get tired. Then I smoke a Camel. For I have always noticed that Camels help in easing the strain. I can go on with more alertness and vigor. I smoke Camels a lot. They taste so good, and never affect my nerves."

SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD-SMITH, famous flier who holds the record from Australia to California—7300 miles in 51 hours—says: "Once you've had a real chance to appreciate the mild, mellow flavor of Camels, no other type of smoke seems to satisfy. I always want a Camel, especially when I'm fatigued. They refresh me so. Camels are my 'supercharger'—they lift up my vim—give me new energy and 'go.' And they are so mild that I can smoke any number of Camels without throwing my nerves off key."

CAMEL PAYS MILLIONS MORE..

Jere Richards to Be Bride of Russell Scott

Engagement Made Known at Small Tea.

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a small tea yesterday afternoon in her residence at 73 East Elm street, Mrs. Harold Wyles Richards announced the engagement of her daughter, Jere, to Russell Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Scott of 2000 Lincoln Park West.

A young woman of beauty and charm, Miss Richards is the niece of Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, for her mother and Mrs. McCormick are sisters. After being graduated from the Faulkner school, Miss Richards attended Miss Risser's in Rome and Wells college. She was presented to society at a tea at the Woman's Athletic club in 1930 and is a member of the Junior league and the Service club.

Mr. Scott is a graduate of the University of Illinois. The wedding is to be an event of the spring.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch to Give Recital Feb. 3.

As if an antidote for these dark midwinter days, Durand Smith relays a letter announcing that the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene is going to present the conductor of the Detroit Symphony concert, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, in his only piano recital of the season the afternoon of Feb. 3 at Orchestra hall.

Sponsored for the benefit of the society's program in the interest of mental health, the concert will be, without doubt, one of the highlights of early 1935. Mr. Gabrilowitsch and his work need no introduction in Chicago. It will be recalled that he married Clara Clemens, daughter of Mark Twain.

Of the work of the society Mr. Smith says: "The society gives expert service and advice on specific behavior problems and mental difficulties. It gives information regarding psychiatric clinics and private psychiatrists, sanitoria, and institutions. It gives lectures and radio talks and issues monthly the Mental Health Bulletin."

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. is chairman of the benefit concert committee that includes in its membership, besides Mr. Smith, Mrs. Arnold Joerns, Ronald P. Boardman, Miss Emeline Bush, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Stuart H. Otis, Mrs. Hermon D. Smith, and Margaret Walsh. Dr. Ralph C. Hamill is president of the Society for Mental Hygiene.

Woman's Exchange Opens Fire Sale Today.

It will be more than a mild surprise if there is not a bargain counter rush every day this week in room 204 of the building at 952 North Michigan avenue. Beginning today the directors of the Woman's Exchange are going to conduct a fire sale at this location as the result of the recent fire that damaged the permanent quarters at 942 North Michigan avenue.

The prices will be unbelievably low, according to Mrs. Philip Loring Reed, president of the exchange, and everything from pincushions to hand painted china will be among the sale merchandise on a cash and carry basis.

The directors of the exchange will take turns as "salesgirls" with an hour off for luncheon. This means that Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Frederic W. Keith, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, among others, may be found behind the counter any day.

Reopening of Exchange Scheduled for Jan. 21.

Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, and Miss Helen Gurley will not be at the sale before Thursday, for they are in New York getting new models and ideas for the reopening of the exchange itself on Jan. 21. They will return home Wednesday.

While the fire sale is in progress the painters and decorators are holding forth in the exchange, doing it over from stem to stern. And when it is reopened Mrs. Reed predicts that the merchandise will even surpass the former stock. The last two weeks the homeworkers and consigners for whom the exchange furnishes an outlet have been at work preparing the new stock.

The Chicago Harvard club is giving a luncheon for Prof. Harlow Shapley, head of the department of astronomy and director of the Harvard observatory, at 12:30 o'clock today at the Mid-Day club. Prof. Shapley has been in Chicago for several days lecturing at Northwestern university under the Harris foundation. G. Cook Kimball, the club president, will make the introduction.

Samuel Insull Jr. Buys Seats for Birthday Ball.

According to the reservations for President Roosevelt's birthday ball and barbecue supper to be held the evening of Jan. 30 in the new amphitheater at the Union stockyards, the Insull family will make its first social appearance in many, many months. Samuel Insull Jr. has taken a block of six seats.

As the result of the party it is expected that $100,000 will be turned over to Chicago hospitals and other institutions treating infantile paralysis. There are to be three separate ballrooms with dancing to a 100 piece orchestra in the main room, dancing to an old fashioned orchestra in the north wing, and a floor show ranging from opera stars to night club performers in the south wing. Howard F. Gillette is the general chairman.

A TINY visitor in Chicago for a short time last week was Mary MacArthur, the "act of God" baby, daughter of Helen Hayes of the movies and Playwright Charles MacArthur. She arrived with her nurse and drove straight to the Passavant hospital to visit her aunt, Mrs. Alfred MacArthur, who is confined there for a few days. Her blonde hair was plaited into tight little braids tied with ribbons and she wore a scarlet sweater that she said her mother had knitted for her for Christmas. Mary visited the Shedd aquarium, had lunch and went on to New York. Her mother will fly back from Hollywood to New York shortly, and in the spring she definitly will come to Chicago in "Mary of Scotland."

FRANK SWINNERTON in "The Georgian Scene," writing about J. M. Barrie, says that his first full length novel was written and offered to a publisher the year before he went to Edinburgh university. It was rejected with the assurance from the publisher that the author was a "clever little lady." This was a shock, Swinnerton writes, and for some time the impulse to write novels was checked.

My favorite Barrie story deals with the friend who put a query to him as to the success of his plays. To which Barrie is said to have replied:

"O, some peter out, and some pan out."

PERHAPS you know about the work being done at the trachoma clinic in southern Illinois, at which people living in the delta land between the Ohio and the Missouri rivers are being treated. Gov. Horner, with whom Dr. Harry S. Gradle [I hope he will forgive the mention of his name] conferred about the matter, appropriated $5,000 from the state contingent fund for the control of communicable diseases for the clinics, and the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness matched the sum with another $5,000. There have been some 900 cases treated since June. One of these was an elderly woman who was blind when the clinic opened. A lid operation and treatments have practically restored her sight. One day recently a case worker from the emergency relief saw the woman, who last spring had to be led in, coming in unattended.

"I certainly think what you're doing is wonderful," she told an attaché of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. "Last spring that woman had to be led in to ask for relief, and now"—there was the slightest trace of malice in her voice—"she walks in by herself and asks for relief."

ALL RIGHT. Then Dennis King doesn't hit the cowbell every night, using a slingshot, in "Petticoat Fever" at the Harris. A dozen theatergoers write in to refute the statement, including a girl who says the night the Theta Gamma Lambda sorority went to the play he tried four or five times before he hit it. . . . I don't know what kind of an office B. M. Mertz is in, but he writes that Actor King has nothing on the fellow in his office, who can "throw a pin 20 feet and hit the party aimed at with the point." Wonder what they do in that office that they can pin it on them at twenty feet.

Good Morning!

So far as the music goes, this movie will be an old, delightful story to you For the radio has made familiar the tunes ["I've Told Every Little Star." "There's a Hill Beyond a Hill." "The Song Is You." "One More Dance"] of the Kern-Hammerstein operetta, which had a long run on the New York stage.

Otherwise, "Music in the Air" is a disappointment. Because it never seems real. Even the hair [I suspect a wig!] of the supposedly naïve Tyrolean blonde ingénue shows dark at the roots.

Exaggeration is expected and permissible, of course, in a piece of this sort, but illusion must travel with it hand in hand; fine singing and faultless casting must be there to lend glamor if it is to seine enthusiasm from an audience.

Miss Swanson and Mr. Boles are seen, respectively, as a temperamental prima donna and an equally unhinged librettist, between whom fond relations have existed for seven years, despite the frequency and furor of their disagreements. They are due to put on a production in the Munich theater.

Up in the Tyrolean Alps an old musician composes a tune to be sung by the Edendorf villagers at a cattle show. The words are the contribution of a handsome hill-billy school teacher, whose inspiration has been Sieglinde, the musician's blonde (?) and O, so carefully made up daughter.

These three go to Munich, where their interests become idiotically commingled with those of Frieda, Bruno, Weber—the producer [an old friend of Papa Lessing]—and Uppmann, stage director.

And, so—you find Bruno making violent love to Sieglinde, insisting—and winning his point for a time—that she supplant Frieda in the show, and Frieda, naughtily endeavoring to seduce the stalwart Karl. . . .

Everybody returns to his own back yard eventually. . . .

Mr. Boles and Miss Swanson acquit themselves commendably—but you just can't believe in 'em! The former isn't the type for high strikes and the latter hasn't enough voice to even win consideration as a prima donna. You have to hand it to Gloria, though! She plays Frieda with zest and humor, and, so far as stage presence is concerned, commands your admiration. What a long, long way she's traveled since those old Essanay days.

Mr. Boles CAN sing—as you very well know. Unfortunately he has little opportunity to do so in this production.

Douglass Montgomery, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginald Owen, and Sara Haden give the piece a lift.

$45 Seats Sold Out for 'Nero,' Mascagni Opera

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 13.—Pietro Mascagni, 70 year old Italian maestro, told an audience at the Verdi conservatory in Milan this afternoon that he had meditated thirty-three years on the composition of the opera "Nerone" [Nero], which he will produce for the first time next Wednesday evening in the famous Scala Opera house at Milan.

"It probably will be my swan song," said Mascagni, who became famous with the production of "Cavalleria Rusticana" at Costanzi theater in Rome on May 17, 1890.

The eyes of the whole operatic world will be turned on Milan tomorrow, where the dress rehersal of Mascagni's latest and perhaps last work will be held. It is considered an international artistic event and is crowding Italy's favorite topics, politics and economics, off the boards.

Every seat in the Milan opera house for the first performance Wednesday night has long since been sold out in spite of the fact that orchestra seats cost $45.

In the new opera Mascagni hopes to have rehabilitated the character, Nero, showing that the famous Roman emperor was not the cruel, inhuman monster he has been pictured in history, but only a tortured megalomaniac and artist.

"Of five Julian emperors, Nero was certainly not the worst," said Mascagni. "I studied the most critical writers and am convinced that he was less abject and cruel than is believed.

"I began to meditate on the theme Nero in 1891 and on how I could set the famous drama of Pietro Cossa to music."

Mascagni's opera will be produced in New York in about a month's time.

The drama of Nero's flight and death is reduced to three acts of four scenes in Mascagni's work, the libretto of which was done by Targiani Tozzetti.

The first act and scene shows a Roman tavern at Ostia, then the port of Rome. The second scene is on the terrace of the golden palace of emperors on Palatine hill, which Nero set fire to and fiddled as it burned. The third has two scenes, one showing the triellnium, or dining room of the palace, and the second a poor farmhouse on Via Nomentana, where Nero met his end.

Prof. Macchioro, in collaboration with Maestro Mascagni, has been working on the stage settings since last August, and they are described as a realistic reconstruction of ancient Rome in the time of the Cæsars.

The opera is the drama of Nero's loves with Eglogia and Attia. Three beautiful musical episodes are described in it. First is the bacchic scene showing Nero drunk in the first act. There is then a notable love duet between Nero and Eglogia in the second act, and a duet between Eglogia and Attia.

Stock Award Winner Proves Talent as Soloist with Woman's Symphony

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ralph Dobbs, who made himself known as a talented pianist by winning the Frederick Stock award four years ago, confirmed and strengthened the opinion yesterday afternoon by appearing as a soloist with the Woman's Symphony orchestra. Playing Dohnanyi's First Concerto, he made a great hit with the audience, and if part of the impression was that he was better than the music he played, so much the better for him.

He would seem to be in easy command of everything that confronts him on the keyboard. He has the poise that banishes all idea of hard work, and with it he plays with brilliancy, unfailing accuracy, and a fine tone.

Conductor Ebba Sundstrom made a special event of one number of the program by playing Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration" to the memory of three women who when they were alive were devoted friends and admirers of the orchestra, Mrs. A. J. Ochsner, its first president; Mrs. Charles H. Dennis, and Miss Helen Sears. The performance was in the spirit of high reverence and devotion. It was preceded by the Mozart "Jupiter" symphony, which was alert, light, and in excellent balance and tone.

The Chicago String quartet, following its practice of playing programs somewhat out of the ordinary course, borrowed the services of Walter H. Steindel, pianist, at the Chicago Woman's Club theater yesterday afternoon and began a pleasant concert with Gustav Lazarus' Trio in E minor. This is a work of the late nineteenth century and written according to nineteenth century conventions, tuneful, attractive, and with no notion of upsetting preconceived ideas about pleasant harmony. It was excellently played, and was followed by Albert Stoessel's "Suite Antique" for two violins, and the Brahms piano quartet, opus 25.

Smart Women Buying Suits at This Early Date

Stylish Models Available for Double Duty.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The most surprising fashion news is the early run on suits. Smart women are buying them weeks ahead of all previous records. They're wearing them under fur coats, under dark wool fur trimmed coats and with swanky tweed top-coats on every mild day that dawns.

Suits are anything but new, as far as the name and idea are used, but you should see the combines, the crisp slim streamlines and the snap of these midwinter beauties.

We told you about the smooth one color wools some time ago, those coral, old gold, bright green models of jacket, sweater, and skirt, each tagged with an amazingly low price.

Now watch the newest pets get around. Chevron patterned tweed wools, almost as thin as heavy silk, are fashioned into tailored skirts with a self material band and go with the snappiest jackets ever unpacked.

These jackets have all the dash imaginable, with an inverted plait down the back, loose hip pockets in the best British manner and all the tailored details known in any tailor shop. The trick is this: Wear the entire suit of the chevron tweed with a high necked sweater in all the good high colors, such as green, gold, canary, blue and red, or try the tweed jacket with a plain skirt of the same gorgeous color or just the reverse . . . the tweed patterned skirt and a plain jacket. When used with a casually knotted neck scarf of wool or silk you have the smartest outfit in town.

If you have one of those ageless and good top-coats in dark tweeds hanging around you can buy your suit to contrast the color of the top-coat, and try, for a change, some daring and unusual color contrasts, the bright gold suit with a deep purple tweed coat, or the gold with a bright blue checked tweed.

A screaming Kelly green suit is perfect under an Oxford gray or with black and gray checks or diagonal. One of the nicest combines is the powder blue suit worn under a ginger brown coat and contrasted with very dark brown accessories. Pale beige with sooty black is still another knockout, as well as henna red with the same shade of beige.

Fashion photograph. . . . Three pieces in tweed, a snappy tailored tweed suit and a contrasting topcoat of deep brown. A striped knitted scarf in rust brown and white accents the neckline of the suit. Both suit and coat have plenty of pockets. SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather, and grew up with the large brood of children of a peasant family. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant roles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin, the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparents of the peasant children Stephen had grown up with, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Irina, a beautiful communist, wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Scenting danger, Stephen departs with Elizabeth for the border, stopping en route at Tronsk, where they are overtaken by Petroff and Irina. Stephen plans to outwit them by denouncing Elizabeth, claiming he never suspected her identity until she began to talk in her sleep. Petroff believes his story, as does Irina. Elizabeth is put in prison, thinking Stephen has turned against her.

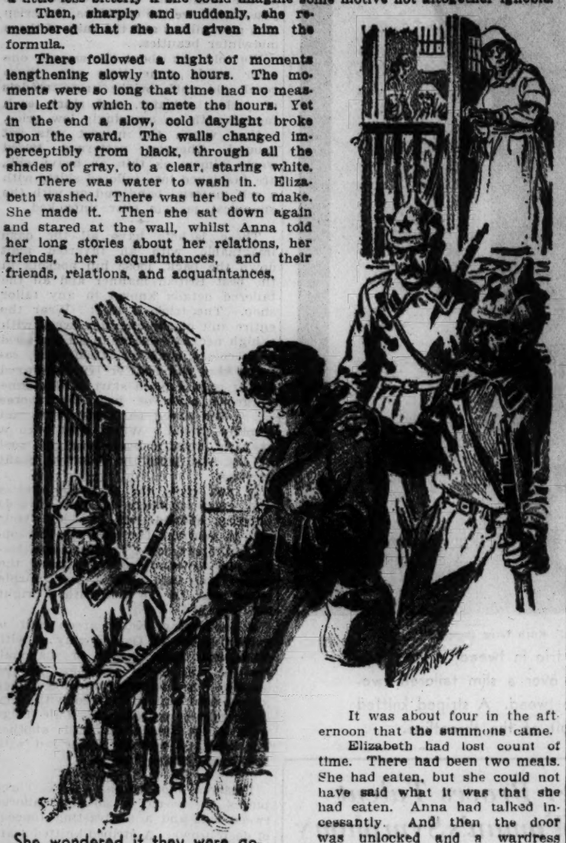
AWAITING EXECUTION.

Elizabeth sat and stared at the prison wall and thought how she had trusted Stephen. She had given him her trust and her friendship. She had been ready to give him her love—if he had wanted it. She wondered whether it would hurt more to think that he had not wanted it at all or that he had wanted it lightly for the pleasure of a passing moment. As the thought shaped itself she knew the answer. She could bear the thought of his indifference. She knew very well that he had not been indifferent. The pain of her wound was the pain of knowing that he had wanted her, and, wanting her, had held her cheaply—a mere pawn to be sacrificed without compunction the moment the game or his safety demanded the surrender of a piece. She would do him the justice to suppose that it was the game to which she had been sacrificed. She would try and believe that. Her wound would ache a little less bitterly if she could imagine some motive not altogether ignoble.

Then, sharply and suddenly, she remembered that she had given him the formula.

There followed a night of moments lengthening slowly into hours. The moments were so long that time had no measure left by which to mete the hours. Yet in the end a slow, cold daylight broke upon the ward. The walls changed imperceptibly from black, through all the shades of gray, to a clear, staring white.

There was water to wash in. Elizabeth washed. There was her bed to make. She made it. Then she sat down again and stared at the wall, whilst Anna told her long stories about her relations, her friends, her acquaintances, and their friends, relations, and acquaintances.



She wondered if they were going to shoot her without a trial.

It was about four in the afternoon that the summons came.

Elizabeth had lost count of time. There had been two meals. She had eaten, but she could not have said what it was that she had eaten. Anna had talked incessantly. And then the door was unlocked and a wardress told her to put on her coat and cap.

"Are they going to shoot you?" said Anna with an interested stare.

In the corridor there were three men in police uniform. They closed around her, one going in front and two behind, and so down a flight of steps and out into the street. She wondered if they were going to shoot her without a trial or whether some travesty of justice would come first and the shooting afterward. She had given Stephen the formula; there was, therefore, no further reason for keeping her alive. She had heard of so many summary executions that she did not doubt she was going to her death.

She felt a curious indifference. It was growing dark. The wind blew out of the north. Now and again a tiny stinging point of snow touched her face. Her feet were cold and so heavy that she could hardly lift them. She wondered whether they had far to go and whether they would shoot her in the open or drive her down some cellar stair. She felt a sick horror at the thought of the cellar.

She had not been noticing the way they took. When they stopped before a door her heart turned over. Now it would come—now in the next few moments.

The door opened. One of the men went in and she followed him. There were two steps down, which she took instinctively, because in the old house where Petroff had his flat there were two steps down as you come in. Her feet had grown accustomed to them. She drove her nails into the palms of her hands. This time she must not faint. It was just the waiting that was dreadful. She would probably not feel the shot.

And then all at once she was walking, not downstairs but up, and she knew why she had found the steps familiar. This was the house in which she had lived for a year. Even in the heavy dusk she would have recognized it if her thoughts had not taken her so near death as to make all other impressions meaningless. The fear of death slipped away and another fear took its place. Her foot stumbled and she was thrown against the man on her right. He took hold of her roughly and pushed her on. They continued to mount the stairs.

In the middle room of the flat above, Petroff was drinking scalding tea well laced with vodka. A large samovar steamed pleasantly upon a side table. Petroff sat in his writing chair, his tumbler of tea all mixed up with a froth of papers. On the opposite side of the table Stephen bestrode a wooden chair. He had a smoking glass in his hand. He drank from it and set it down.

"Of course, it's all the same to me what you do with her and whether I go or stay."

"You've said that before," said Petroff.

"Well, then, but have you thought of this, comrade? She's a cunning one—as cunning as they make them, I should say. Suppose she only pretends to tell you what you want to know. Have you thought of that? She might do it if she thought it would save her skin. And that, comrade, is where I come in. You bring her in here and you tell her. There's your husband, who heard you talk in your sleep, and if you alter so much as a single word he'll know it, and then it'll be no good pleading and asking for mercy because you won't get any.'"

Petroff frowned at his steaming drink.

"That is not badly thought of," he said.

"I have these ideas," said Stephen. "Sometimes they come to me when I'm drunk and sometimes when I'm sober. Just now I'm not as drunk as I'd like to be. That's the worst of having a head like mine—it costs such a lot to get drunk."

"O, be quiet!" said Petroff, and with that there came a thumping on the door. Stephen swung around and watched it open. The man who had knocked came into the room and behind him two others, with Elizabeth between them. One of them held her by the arm. There were blue marks like bruises under her eyes and her face was quite white. The eyes themselves had a frozen look of fear. All her movements were slow and stiff.

"Leave her and wait downstairs!" said Petroff sharply.

Stephen leaned over the table and began to whisper.

"Do you really want them to wait? I shouldn't have said you did. It may take some time to make her speak and they're an interfering lot. Why not say you'll ring them up when you've finished with her? They'll be glad enough not to wait about in the cold."

He went over and spoke to the men at the door.

"It will not be necessary for you to wait. It may take me some time to interrogate this person. I will telephone for an escort when I have finished with her."

The man he addressed looked sulky.

"We have orders to wait."

"Very well then, wait!" said Petroff with a shrug of his shoulders.

The man hesitated.

"If you take the responsibility——" he said.

"I do not care whether you wait or not!" said Petroff, and slammed the door.

Elizabeth heard their feet go clattering down the stair and then Petroff's hand was on her shoulder.

"Well, now, my girl—are you going to be sensible?" he said.

Closely Knit Family Bond Aids Fiance

Girl Considers It Good Omen for Future.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl tells of becoming engaged to a chap whose family lives in a distant state. One of the things she disapproved of in this chap was his disparaging references to his family. Outside of that he seemed to be a satisfactory suitor.

But she was invited into a family group where there was the most harmonious relationship between each and every member. The father's and mother's friendly relations with their children pleased her immensely. There was a young son whose charming manner with his brothers and sisters and mother and father touched her completely. When said young man proved that on his part, at least, the meeting with the girl was love at first sight, she wished she had never got herself engaged to the other man.

"That's the kind of family I should like to marry into," the girl reports. "My own family is close knit and I've noted in my fiancé an occasional irritation over the way we like to do things together. I mean my family and myself. We like to go to the movies together, for instance, and have fun talking it over afterward. We play bridge together a good deal.

"Perhaps my fiancé only wants to be alone with me because he is in love. But what I want to ask is, if a man who is nice to his people isn't a safer matrimonial bet than one who is adrift from his?"

A hard one to answer. We'd have to know the fiancé's parents before a fair judgment could be passed on the young man. Perhaps his parents have not been so kindly in their relationship with him as are the parents of No. 2.

But the query does bring up the question of the influence of one's family on a sweetheart's reasoning. If said family's relations, one to the other, are kindly, considerate and affectionate, the sweetheart part of the happy scene himself, or herself, is a good matrimonial risk. However, we couldn't dismiss the other young man without more evidence. He might turn into one of those mates determined that his unhappy home life will not be repeated in his own case.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A CURIOUS AND VERY FAR-FETCHED SQUEEZE SITUATION.

The hand I will give you today was sent to me from Cleveland where fine card playing is still cultivated as an art and bidding has not blotted out every other aspect of the game, as I sometimes think is the case nearer home.

South, dealer, rightly bid a no trump in preference to the spade. He realized that his hand would gain—might even depend for its safety—on being led up to at the first trick and concealed afterward, if no trumps should turn out to be its ultimate destiny. An opening spade bid was likely to force the no-trump declaration into the wrong hand. North responded with two spades; South wisely raised to three spades, as it now appeared probable that North's distribution was uneven, and unless he held enough high cards elsewhere to take the bid back to no trumps, it is better to tell him immediately that spades suit the opening bidder very well, and he wants to leave the choice to North. The latter now made a belated slam try—five spades. This says: "My distribution emphatically calls for suit play; I was not quite strong enough in primary values for an immediate slam try of three spades but I know, and tell you, that the hand is in no danger at five spades, and I hope you can go to six, which should be the right spot if you have anything in reserve of the minimum required for an opening no-trump bid. Count on me in all likelihood for an ace and, probably, a singleton. Without the latter, I might as well have jumped in no trumps, as we are playing under match-point scoring. My belated slam try shows, naturally, at least two and a half primary tricks as well as suit strength." South, with four primary tricks, bids six spades, hoping that the lead through the diamond king, if it come immediately, will not be fatal.

The Play.

East made a sound opening lead—the queen of clubs. The only hope seemed to be to knock out a club stopper in the hope of getting in with the ace of diamonds in order to make a trick in clubs should that be the weak spot in the no-trump hand. This was the right lead, in my opinion; but two Easts who made it lost their ace of diamonds, and did not take a single trick. Their partners were not slow to reproach them for letting the ace go to bed; but actually it was the West players themselves who slaughtered the ace by what seemed at the time to be a very innocent, harmless discard of a small club. Here is how it came about: The small slam is always in the bag, we are concerned only with the making of grand slam when the ace of diamonds is not laid down at the first trick. Declarer wins the club and plays three rounds of trumps; East echoes in diamonds. Now declarer runs four hearts, discarding his own small diamond, next, he leads a spade, and if West discards a club, the party is over. East is squeezed and cannot escape. Two more leads of spades force East either to throw away his ace of diamonds, or to blank his jack of clubs. Dummy discards after him, and retains the suit he throws away. The thirteenth trick is won either by the king of diamonds or by the five of clubs. Is this not a queer kind of a squeeze? It shows how hard it may sometimes be to realize the terrific importance of a very small card.

Sweet Peas.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Sweet Peas" is an ideal applique pattern to use in a room which already has a definite color scheme. The various shades of the natural flower allow a wide selection of colors. The block may be in two shades of pink, and leaf green, or it may be that lovely combination of harmonious red and purple flowers with a suitable moss green. This latter suggestion has a distinctly modern note which is not at all out of place in early American or colonial surroundings.

Another edition is out—Nancy Cabot's second book of quilts is ready. It contains 96 more illustrations of favorite quilt patterns, together with one complete pattern, "The Rose Basket." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY MARY MEADE.

Squeeze a pineapple and out marches the gayest collection you ever saw of tantalizing desserts, palate piquing sauces, scrumptious dressings, and tinkling drinks that cheer, and cheer, and cheer!

Just for instance, there's a corking new way we're gladdening flank steak—that most browbeaten and plate-hammered section of cow. We call it deviled steak, and instead of tenderizing its fibers with hammers and such we calmly stand aside while the acid of the pineapple juice goes after the toughness, leaving the flank tender hearted and delectably flavored. We do it this way:

DEVILED STEAK.

2 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, sliced
1 teaspoon mixed powdered herbs
1 flank steak
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1½ tablespoons vinegar
2 cups hot pineapple juice

Melt the butter in a Dutch oven or a heavy top stove kettle. Add the powdered herbs. Brown in this the sliced onion. Cut the steak in two inch pieces and roll them in the flour. Remove the onion and brown the steak pieces in the same pan. When well browned on all sides, sift in the remaining flour and the pepper, paprika, mustard, and vinegar. Pour in gradually the hot pineapple juice, stirring to make a smooth sauce between the meat squares. Cover closely and let simmer for several hours, or until the steak is tender. Serve hot with buttered rice and a fresh green vegetable.

Or have you ever astounded the family with a combined peach and pineapple juice dessert? The response at our house is most flattering, and it's a trick the busiest homemaker can turn in just a little more than nothing flat. Here it is:

BAKED PEACHES IN PINEAPPLE JUICE.

12 canned peach halves
¾ cup pineapple juice
½ cup sugar
Thin cream

Place the peach halves close together in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle over them the sugar, then pour on the pineapple juice. Cover the pan and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 15 to 20 minutes. Then uncover the peaches and let them brown slightly. Serve them hot with thin cream. When fresh peaches are in season choose medium sized ones, peel, and continue as directed above, adding an additional ¼ cup of sugar.

No room today for the complete recipe, but we're loud in our praises of smoked ham baked in a combination of pineapple juice and ginger ale. If it sounds good to you, write us and we'll send out the directions mit haste.

Pineapple juice likewise does interesting things to stuffing for duck, goose, or a pork roast. It's a blend of four large apples, chopped; 2 cups of bread crums, 1 teaspoon each of sage and salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, the grated rind of half a lemon, and 1 cup of pineapple juice. Blend them all and pack into the bird or a boned shoulder of pork.

Last comes a pie to which even a king would surely doff his crown. By name:

PINEAPPLE CREAM PIE.

3 eggs, separated
2-3 cup sugar
2-3 cup pineapple juice
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Beat the egg yolks until light and fluffy. Add half of the sugar and beat again. Cook this mixture in the top of a double boiler, over boiling water, until thickened, then add the pineapple juice and lemon juice. Continue cooking until the sauce again thickens, stirring frequently. Have ready the egg whites, beaten stiff and thoroughly whipped with the remainder of the sugar. Fold these into the custard and pour into a baked pie shell. Let stand for 5 minutes, then bake in a hot oven [400 degrees F.] until golden brown. Cool before serving.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

If you've thought there was anything commonplace about pine oil for the bath, you haven't seen it in its newest and swankiest version. There's one on the market now that will thrill you.

As a bath glorification it has all sorts of good points. The scent of it is what pine lovers have been searching for—cool, calming and indescribably pleasant. The most hurried bath, taken when you're at lowest ebb, becomes a delight if a few drops of it are tossed into the water. And it's one of the best pick-ups you can find. Nervous people find it soothing; those who're completely let down find it exhilarating. The scent of pine, it seems, has a mysterious quality that appeals to all comers.

The bottle, as befits a bath essence of such elegance, has a great richness about it. It is a stunning flask in an antique green that is soothing in itself, with a slender neck bound with gold ribbon that is held down with an imposing seal of gold wax. It looks like a bottle of something swell from some connoisseur's cellar.

Real perfume thrills are few and far between for the woman who adores fine fragrances and puts in a lot of time with them, but we'll wager you'll have one if you get acquainted with the fascinating, spicy scent that recently watted its way into our heart. It's sophisticated in a sprightly way—and that's how we can take sophistication both in scents and in sirens. The heavy touch isn't so good.

This is the kind of perfume that suits the woman of vitality and color and youth; it won't do at all for the girls who are or pretend to be naive.

Friction Among Small Children Almost Certain

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"My little girl behaves so badly when children come to play with her—which isn't often. I talk to her and scold her, but seem to get no results."

Many little children of 2 and 3, who play most of the time alone, behave what we call "badly" when they have an occasional visitor. This is only to be expected. Suppose you were 2½ and spent most of your days with grownups—then some day another 2½ year old comes to see you. Why it's as different as cheese is from chalk.

The way a 2 year old treats you—pushing when you push—wanting the same toy just when you want it—is a surprise when you're not used to it—a shock even. It's quite confusing, and in your confusion you may shout or hit or pull or cry. At the same time you like this new little companion of your own age. Only you have to learn to be with him—it's so different from the quiet patience and understanding of mother or your nursemaid.

Sometimes, of course, things get unhappy and stay so—but ordinarily, if the grownups will let you alone a lot and help a little, everything will smooth out, and you'll learn to play happily with your 2 year old friend.

Nursery school teachers have more opportunity to observe this sort of thing working out than the average mother has. I think the only child or the one who has no association with his "peers" gains a great deal from a few hours a day at nursery school, provided it is a skilfully conducted one. At the same time I must go on record as saying that I have seen "only" children with few companions who got along well without them and who suffered from no lack of "social adjustment."

On the whole, however, I do think children should have association with those of their own age, and mothers should learn something of how to handle the situations that arise as they learn to play together. Tomorrow we'll go into this matter again.

Tired Mother Asks for Quick Beauty Ritual

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Dear Miss Donnelly: Some time won't you please give a little space to the dead tired, sagging mothers of large families, telling them what is the very least care they can give their faces and necks every night before dragging into bed? And what is the correct order? Is it cleansing cream, then astringent, and then cream again, left on all night?

Why not five minutes nightly? I'll wager countless women do not give fi e minutes a day conscientiously and regularly to the care of face and throat. I'll wager more, that if five minutes were given every night, never missing, at the end of a few months there would be a great change for the better.

One doesn't have to devote hours to personal upkeep. In fact, it is my observation that the busy woman, on limited time for herself, who somehow manages with her system of daily care, outshines the rest. Except, perhaps, for an instance here and there of a woman who makes a lifetime fetish of her beautifying work. She's just the exception to prove the rule.

But such mothers as the one described above could do wonders for themselves with this mode of procedure, nightly, before retiring. They have to wash, anyway, so the couple of minutes extra will not be too much of a strain.

Slick the hair back first with a ribbon band or cap. There's good psychology in this little note of preparation. Then, cream the face with a good cleanser, not too heavy a dab, because it's best to remove the first application and give the face and throat a second.

Don't forget the throat, right down t its base. Most women do forget this. Give both face and throat its second dose of cream. Wipe this off thoroughly. Then use soap and water and one of the clever little complexion brushes now obtainable. This for toning the skin, as well as cleansing.

Rinse this soapy water off in clear warm water, then cold, and colder. Then use an ice cube from the refrigerator if you can stand it. Or, better still, keep one of those inexpensive little ice-roller gadgets on hand in the ice box for use nightly. Then, your fine film of cream to be left on overnight for aborption and skin softening. That's all. Except, while your hands are smeared with the cream, give them a massage, too.

'Twelfth Night' Starts Week's Run Tonight

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Old Globe Elizabethan players, now at the Studebaker theater, will add "Twelfth Night," one of the most popular comedies in the Shakespearean catalog, to its repertory tonight. The play will be kept in performance on the evening program through the current week, with Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus" as its companion piece.

This engagement at the Studebaker will end Jan. 26. The World's Fair Shakespeareans will then go on tour, heading eastward, with the intention of invading New York. They hope to return to Chicago in the early spring for a prolonged stay.

A meeting of Old Globe "fans," including many civic leaders, will be held in Henrici's restaurant, 71 West Radolph street, at luncheon tomorrow to discuss ways and means of perpetuating this organization as a feature of Chicago's theatrical life. Among the patrons and patronesses of the movement are:

John Alden Carpenter, William J. Bogan, John R. Thompson Jr., George F. Anderson, Mrs. Jacob Baur, George T. Buckingham, Rush C. Butler, Paul W. Cleveland, Rear Admiral Cluverius, Thomas E. Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Elston Jr., Evan Evans, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, J. E. Otis, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Lessing Rosenthal, Joseph T. Ryerson, Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, Benjamin F. Buck, Arthur Barnhart, Dr. Horace J. Bridges, Dean Edward T. Lee, and Judge Edward S. Scheffer.

"Twelfth Night" will also be staged at the Goodman theater this week as the monthly production of the school of acting. Performances will be given from Tuesday to Thursday nights.

Dennis King will end his engagement at the Harris theater in "Petticoat Fever" Jan. 26 to make way for the Abbey Theater company of Dublin, which will arrive with a repertory of Irish dramas on Jan. 28. Mr. King's company will tour eastward with a Broadway première in prospect. . . . "Stevedore" will desert the Selwyn theater next Saturday night."

Entire World Sends Fashions to Florida Resorts This Season

Miami, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—There is a new league of nations this year, born of the moment's mode and banded together by chic.

Russia contributed the tunic blouse to the cause. China came in with a coolie hat for beach wear. India registered in with a Mahatma Gandhi swim suit. Egypt joined with sandals patterned after footwear that once adorned the pink toed feet of Cleopatra, and the Balkans came along with an evening frock fully adequate to the glamor of Florida nights.

Shakespeare's Plays to Creep Into Movies, Fritz Leiber Predicts

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13.—(AP)—They call Fritz Leiber the principal American torchbearer for Shakespeare these days. And he talks of Shakespeare's future as if he were speaking of some promising youngster.

"I think Shakespeare will creep into pictures," he said today. "I don't see how the producers can overlook him. Shakespeare is almost all action. You can't get any real kick out of him just by reading him, you must see him acted. But I do hope the picture makers won't Taft him up.

"Douglass Tait, you know, rewrote 'King Lear' about 50 years after Shakespeare's death. He gave the play a happy ending. You'd get a real laugh out of reading it.

"As for Shakespeare's future in the theater, I am sure he will endure as long as any language is spoken."

MOSUL OIL LINE, 1,150 MI. LONG, IN SERVICE TODAY

Delivers Crude to 2 Ports on Mediterranean.

TRIPOLI, Syria, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Rich Mosul oil will gush across Mesopotomian deserts and the Holy Land in inauguration tomorrow of the world's longest pipe line system, costing 50 million dollars.

Built under American direction and serving oil interests of four nations, the line stretches 1,150 miles across Asia Minor, providing a 24 hour outlet to the Mediterranean for a wealth of "black gold" from the subsoil of Iraq.

It is set in a picturesque region of shifting sands and plodding camel trains, where French, British, Dutch, and American companies share the rights [formerly owned by Germany] to extract and export Mosul crude.

Parallels Caravan Routes.

King Ghazi of Iraq will preside at the opening of the Kirkuk linehead. There will be a celebration at Bagdad Jan. 16 and others at the two coastal termini, Tripoli and Haifa, on Jan. 19 and 22 respectively.

The line parallels ancient caravan routes, scales mountains, dives under the Euphrates and Tigris rivers, drops into the valley of the Jordan and thence finds its way to the sea. It has twelve pumping and two loading stations, and was two years under construction.

Tankers docked at Haifa and lying off shore near Tripoli will be able to load directly from the line, sucking in the riches of northern Iraq which heretofore had to transport overland in trucks. It is estimated that the Mosul fields can produce 4,000,000 tons of crude oil annually, and the pipe has a daily capacity of 85,000 barrels.

Airplanes Spot Leaks.

France inaugurated her branch of the line, running through Lebanon and Syria, several months ago, but the system as a whole is to function now for the first time. The line gives France her first independent oil supply and is considered a strong link in her national defense.

Airplanes will be used for patroling the line. Leaks are readily observed from the air, since the escaping oil stains the ground.

Oil pumped into the line at Kirkuk will take about 21 hours to reach Haifa and about 25 to reach Tripoli, the flow being 25 miles an hour. The branch of Tripoli is 531 miles long and that to Haifa, where the American interests represented by the Standard Oil group will load, is 617 miles in length.

ROTARY BUSINESS EXHIBIT WILL BE OPEN TOMORROW

The Rotary Business Recovery exposition, designed to show how business men and industrial concerns are fighting their way back to recovery by personal initiative, will open tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman. Exhibits will occupy the entire mezzanine floor and the grand ballroom.

Yesterday workmen were putting the final touches to 150 booths. In these booths practically every branch of human endeavor, from manufacturing to services, will be illustrated.

The opening day will be known as Rotary Family day, with wives of Rotary members as hostesses. Also held on the opening day will be the international luncheon, with Rotary officials from several foreign countries as guests of honor. The exposition will last for four days.

Cornie Ewert of the Northwest Skating club won the men's senior Silver Skates championship yesterday at the north lagoon of Lincoln park, a title he has sought for many years. And just as Ewert finally reached his long sought goal, so did his team mate, Erica Bock McConnell, who won the girls' senior championship.

These two veterans were largely responsible for the victory of the Northwest club in the battle for the Walter Eckersall memorial team trophy, for when the last two races were finished the Northwest club had 280 points as compared to the 200 points scored by the Norwegian-American A. A.

Gauges Pace Perfectly.

Ewert, named by his friends the "flying milkman," won primarily because he judged the pace of the title race accurately and had the stamina to make good his bid for victory. Twelve times the finalists circled the track on the north lagoon in the two mile senior Derby. In the early stages Ewert was tenth in the field. He never was more than thirty feet from the front position, however, as the men took the turns biding their time to make the final dash.

After the first mile Ewert moved up, but still he was trailing the leaders. Then at the tenth lap Cornie went into first place, only to relinquish this position for the next circle of the track. But Ewert always has been noted as a sprinter, and when the bell sounded for the final lap he shot into the lead, which he never relinquished. He was not seriously challenged.

Fee Finishes Second.

Wallace Fee Jr., winner of the boys' juvenile championship in 1928, finished second to Ewert and added 40 points to the Northwest Skating club's total. Fred Milverstect of the Ritter Skating club was third, while Larry Dennis of Cedar Rapids, Ia., finished fourth. Bob Harrington, Romme Skating club, was awarded the fifth place medal.

Perhaps the eighteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies yesterday may have surprised the fans who did not think it was possible to stage the meet in

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The world's champion Blackhawks, showing signs of weariness from the two lopsided road lickings they took last Thursday and Saturday nights, and the rested but obviously lazy Boston Bruins played to a 1 to 1 tie at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Gottselig scored a solo goal late in the first period and if the Bruins hadn't tied it up late in the second period the affair might have developed into something worthy of the enthusiasm of the 13,000 fans who attended. Once a tie had been effected, however, the game became a pretty listless affair. The Bruins wanted to leave town in possession of the American division lead and a tie was just enough to assure them of that distinction.

It Wasn't So Hot.

There was nothing reminiscent of those old time Chicago-Boston ice battles. Coulter was sent off early in the first period with Shill and that was the only Hawk penalty in the overtime encounter. The Bruins drew four penalties, none of the fouls being called on that supposedly ferocious person, Eddie Shore.

The Hawks again struggled along with only two experienced defense men, having failed to come to terms with Taffy Abel, the veteran who had been billed for a comeback.

The absence of Abel had a deep mystery background of which the fans were not aware when they hollered for him at the outset of the game. During the afternoon Taffy and Manager Clem Loughlin held a conference over Abel's salary for the remainder of the well progressed season. Abel, according to a Blackhawk statement, left Loughlin, saying he wanted to take an hour or so to consider the offer.

Abel Disappears.

Abel did not come back at the appointed time and after a little delay scouts were dispatched to visit all his known stopping off places. No clew was found. Abel had reserved two tickets for last night's game and it was thought some trace of him would be gained when the tickets were picked up. The tickets were not claimed, however, so deeper and deeper grew the mystery.

The first period was not so hot until it reached the five minute mark, when it livened up in great shape. At 16:45 Gottselig got the puck in middle ice and fiddled around with it for a spell before heading into the

Cardinals Beat Bears, 13-9, on Pardonner's Field Goals

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13.—The Chicago Cardinals, eager of purpose, clicking smoothly after their long stay in these parts, defeated the Chicago Bears, 13 to 9, before 15,000 at Gilmore stadium today.

The Bears, unbeaten during the regular National Professional league season, appeared sluggish on the offensive, although Hewitt, Lyman, and Musso did valiant service in the line. The Cardinals, however, held their own in line play, and as the game neared its finish they put up a sure and brilliant defense against long passes tossed in desperation by the fading Bears.

Griffith Goes 80 Yards.

Homer Griffith and Paul Pardonner were the outstanding Cardinals on the offense. Less than five minutes after the opening kickoff Griffith struck between his left tackle and end, squirmed away from a tackler, and, as his blockers removed other clutching Bears, he sped 80 yards for a touchdown. Field and Lou Gordon were accompanying him at the finish, ready to take off any pursuing hostiles.

Pardonner, former Purdue star, dropkicked the point after touchdown and usurped the rôle which Jack Manders has enjoyed all season by dropkicking two field goals from 37 and 25 yards, respectively. Those goals from field decided the issue because they were made after the Bears had regained the lead, 9 to 7, accumulated from a touchdown and safety by Russell.

Bears Score on Safety.

Russell's safety was an unusual play because the Cardinals had the ball on their own 20 yard line just before it happened. Bill Hewitt batted down a lateral to Russell and it rolled back of the goal line, where the Cardinal fell on it just ahead of several Bears. This occurred early in the second period, leaving the Cardinals still leading, 7 to 2.

Just before the half closed, the Bears began a march from the Cardinals' 40 yard line in which a forward pass from Molesworth to Hewitt and Sisk's run to the 6 inch line figured heavily. Manders went over for the touchdown and reliable Jack placekicked the extra point, so the Bears led at half time, 9 to 7

In the second half, the battle was about even except for Pardonner's drop kicks which turned the tide. The first opportunity came in the third period when Dave Cook intercepted a lateral pass from Manders intended for Molesworth. After three line plays failed, Pardonner sent the ball across the bars from 38 yards out and the Cardinals led, 10 to 9.

Bears Lead in First Downs.

Late in the fourth period, with the Bears striving desperately to beat back into the lead, Pardonner came back into the game for just one play. That one play was another field goal from the 25 yard line, leaving the final score 13 to 9.

The Bears accumulated 11 first downs to 9 for the Cardinals. Their rustiness showed most in passing, where only 4 of 18 connected. The Cardinals completed 4 of 11.

Because of the larger number of former coast performers on the Cardinals, the crowd rooted for them and booed the officials generously, although the penalties for unnecessary roughness were divided. Several times the boys appeared overzealous, but no fisticuffs developed. Coast critics called it the roughest game of the season here.

Unless victory changes their plans, the elated Cardinals, who had lost two regular league games to the Bears, 20 to 0 and 19 to 7, will return to Chicago tomorrow night.

SCHROEDER AND LAMB SKATE TO OLYMPIC PLACES

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Eddie Schroeder of Chicago and Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee today won two of the four places allotted the United States 1936 Olympic skating team.

Competing here with nearly two score of the nation's best blade artists to determine this country's Olympic skating team, they won the 1,500 and 500 meter events, respectively, to assure their membership on the team. The other two members will be chosen in the 5,000 meter event Tuesday night and the 10,000 meter next Saturday. The selections here are final.

Schroeder, winner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Silver Skates in 1931 and a member of the Olympic team in 1932, won the long event in 2:33.6 from a field of thirty-eight of the nation's best skaters. Lamb won the opening event in :44.8.

New Yorker Jumps Gun.

Only a small crowd witnessed the races in the 2 below zero weather following postponement from yesterday when a near blizzard forced officials to delay the competition. The 5,000 meter competition is set for Tuesday night and the 10,000 for Saturday.

Allan Potts of New York finished the 500 meter event in :45.9 but he jumped the gun and second place was given to John Bretz, St. Louis, in :46. Third placement to Bob Peterson of Milwaukee in :46.5. Lawrence Goldthwaite, Boston, was next with :46.6.

Finishing with the second best time in the 1,500 race was Lamb, 20 year old Wisconsin state champion, with 2:37.7, and his time was just 1-10 of a second better than Potts'. Peterson made the long distance in 2:38.6.

Schroeder brought those spectators to their feet who were not jumping to keep warm early as he started off with a spurt, and although his partner, Leo Donovan of St. Paul fell, showed plenty of stamina and speed after the last turn.

Lamb's Partner Withdraws.

Lamb, too, skated his heat alone, as his partner in the original drawings made under the European system of only two men in each heat withdrew, but he did not need a pacer and his time was only 2 3-10 seconds more than the world's record.

Valentine Bialas, New York, veteran member of Olympic teams, narrowly missed spilling as he made a turn and finished the long distance in 2:39.5 while in the 500 event he was timed at :48.9.

Billy Jones Fights Draw with Klausner in Peru

MINNESOTA GETS CHANCE TO HALT IOWA TONIGHT

Minnesota will have its opportunity to check Iowa's speedy basketball quintet tonight at Minneapolis. By their victory Saturday night over Michigan, 31 to 24, the Gophers share first place in the conference race with the Hawkeyes who now boast of three consecutive triumphs. The two teams are the only unbeaten quintets in the league.

It would seem, after watching Iowa race through Northwestern's defenses, that Minnesota can not win tonight barring a night of phenomenal shooting. If Iowa is the victor, a glance at the Big Ten standings indicates why the Hawkeyes are the logical choice for the 1935 championship. Iowa does not meet Purdue, Illinois and Wisconsin. These teams this morning are grouped in a tie for third position. In addition to Minnesota, Iowa plays Indiana, Ohio State, Northwestern, Michigan and Chicago. And these teams this morning form the second division of the Big Ten.

Northwestern Meets Purdue.

Northwestern faces Purdue at Lafayette tonight with the probability that it will lose a third consecutive game. Principal reason for Northwestern's failure so far is the lack of a balanced attack. Lyle Fischer scored eight points Saturday night in 16 minutes but was ejected because of fouls. The other players, Jess McAnally, Duke Vance, and Al Kawal, in particular, seemingly lacked confidence in their shots. But Northwestern may find the solution in several of the substitutes who played with more speed and drive in the second half against Iowa than the starting players exhibited.

Indiana Meets Hawkeyes Twice.

Should Iowa falter, Wisconsin, Purdue, Illinois, or possibly Indiana [which has two games with Iowa] will be waiting to take advantage. The choice will be determined by the results of the games between these teams. To demonstrate the possibilities of these series, Purdue already has beaten Wisconsin by one point, lost to Illinois by one point, while Indiana, victor over Illinois, has been defeated by Wisconsin.

Wisconsin should whip Michigan tonight at Madison. The Chicago-Ohio State game at Columbus will help determine the cellar position, for which Chicago is a likely candidate.

Illinois at Indiana is a feature game, second only in importance to the Iowa-Minnesota game. Indiana won at Champaign, 32 to 28, but if Froschauer, who scored 18 points against Ohio State to add to his previous two game total of 15 points, continues in form, as wel as Bob Reigel, center, the Illini must be favored despite Indiana's previous victory.

First honors in boys' juvenile division go to Marvin Thomson of Northwest Skating club.

Drouillard Battles Lee; Williams Meets Booker.

Featherweights and lightweights will head boxing shows tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street and Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. Orville Drouillard of Windsor, Ont., will meet Paul Lee, Indianapolis, Ind., for eight rounds at 126 pounds at Marigold, Holman Williams, Detroit, Mich., and Harry Booker, Chicago, will be opponents in the eight round windup at the Midway at 138 pounds.

Drouillard and Lee showed impressively in recent Chicago bouts. The former battled eight rounds to a draw with Bus Breese and Lee stopped Frank Mirabel. As a result one of the best fights held at Marigold this season is expected to develop. The winner will be in line for a bout with Young Rightmire in the same arena, probably next Monday.

Walter [Puggy] Weinert, Brighton Park welterweight, will encounter Mickey O'Shea, north side, in the six round semi-final. Weinert, a capable but hard luck warrior, has acquired new zeal since placing himself under the management of Eddie Long. Bob Tinsley will oppose Gary Baldwin, Syl Saliski is paired with Eddie Schiller, and Rudy Sterbenz will meet Biff Bennett in four round preliminary bouts. Mike London will wrestle Ed Van Herrick in an additional supporting bout.

Three of four matches which will support the Williams-Booker scrap at the Midway will involve Bobby Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., and Ted Moran, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Georgie Goodman and Floyd Embrey, and Sammy Adams and Spud Kelly. The latter engagement will be at four rounds. The others will be five rounders.

The junior welterweight contest between Frank Sagilio of Cicero and Young Joe Firpo, Philadelphia, scheduled at Cicero stadium Friday, has been postponed until Jan. 25.

Russell Nyberg and John Finn, welterweight boxers, will meet in the five round main event of an amateur show tonight at Medinah club of Chicago. John and Ed Hellstrom, twin brothers, will appear in two of seven other matches. The former will clash with Stanley Stockins at 120 pounds and Ed is matched with Phil Rosenberg at 135.

In event the proposed Tony Canzoneri-Leo Rodak lightweight affray is closed it will be presented at Chicago stadium on Jan. 29. . . . Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., heavyweight, will resume training this afternoon at Trafton's gymnasium with Dave Gray as his trainer. . . . Bob La Monte, west side 147 pounder, anticipates a bout at St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.

Gene Meany of the west side will take over his new appointment as secretary of the state boxing commission today. Meany succeeds Louis [Chip] London, who resigned a week ago in order to accept an assignment in the office of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health.

Wood, McCauliff Win Net Doubles Final at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Sidney B. Wood Jr., and Dr. Eugene McCauliff, both of New York, won the Miami Biltmore tennis tournament doubles final today, defeating J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, New York, 6-3, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

C.Y.O. Boxers Beat Portland Amateurs, 8-6

Portland, Ore., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Boxers of the Catholic Youth Organization of Chicago won eight out of 14 bouts in an intercity match with the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club here last night.

One of the standout bouts was a five-rounder between Johnny Kelley of Chicago and Freddy Lynch, far western lightweight champion. Lynch won the first round with left jabs, but Kelley came back in the second and knocked down his opponent for a short count. They were even in the third, but Lynch took the lead in the fourth as he battered the Chicagoan to the canvas. In the fifth round, Kelley smashed Lynch to the floor for a count of seven and gained the decision.

The results:

175 POUNDS — Dick Johnson, Portland, stopped Ray McNally, Chicago; Paul George, Portland, knocked out Mike Murphy, Chicago.

Habits of Winter Birds Also Revealed by Trails in Snow

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the tracks of fur bearing animals in the "snow belt" of the middle west usually interest the outdoor fan far more than the signs left by bird life, our winter birds can tell us a number of stories about their habits if we are familiar with their tracks in the snow.

The popular quail, a game bird that every farmer or landowner likes to have around the place, makes a snow track which is about the size of that made by a domestic pigeon. During the winter the Bob Whites go into the fields to feed during the day. Their tracks may be seen in old corn fields, in weed thickets where the birds consume large quantities of seeds, or in any part of the farm that will give them a meal. The peculiarity of the snow print left by a Bob White is that the mark of the hind toe stands comparatively far off the track. [See illustration.] If you see a number of quail tracks made in a sort of a circle around an evergreen tree in the woods, next to a thick hedge or in any other heavy cover, you know that there the birds roosted for a night.

Pheasant Tracks Plentiful.

One can see pheasant tracks all through Chicagoland when there is snow on the ground. They are easy to identify. The middle toe of the bird stands almost in a straight line in the trail. This is a striking feature of the imprint left by this foreign game bird, which will enable you to pick it out from snow tracks of our native game birds. [We had a good chance to check the trails of the pheasants the other day when we came upon seven of them in a buckwheat patch on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm.]

On southern hunting trips we have seen hundreds of tracks of wild turkeys in the mud of the swamps in Georgia, Mississippi, and Florida. After checking up on our sketches made of these and comparing them with the snow prints made by domestic turkeys it is apparent there is no difference between them.

Wings Make Snow Trail.

One of the interesting features of the register made by one of our northern domestic turkeys is the way a gobbler thrusts his wings into the snow when he struts. These spread wings create blurring lines parallel to the foot tracks.

EWERT CAPTURES SENIOR TITLE IN SILVER SKATES

view of Saturday night's snowstorm. Actually, however, the ice was superior to any on which the last five meets have been held. With the assistance of three teams of horses and a large crew of Lincoln park workmen, the ice was cleaned of snow after five hours of labor. From 7 in the morning until noon the crews not only cleared the course, which was laid out by Paul Staff, but they kept the ice fairly clear of surface water.

Races Truly Run.

Under the snow there was between five and six inches of solid ice, and as the temperature fell in the afternoon to well below freezing the ice was fast and firm. By the time the championships were held the thermometer read 25 degrees above zero and after the ice had been scraped the finalists found no reason to complain. The conditions for the finals were such that almost without exception the races were truly run, with none of the surviving competitors falling on the turns. For that matter, the six lap to the mile track, with broad turns, made skating easy.

More than half of the registered 3,300 contestants reported for their racing numbers despite the adverse weather conditions Saturday night. In all 147 races—preliminaries, semi-finals, and championships—were run off in less than four hours. The excellent organization of the clerks and other officials kept the races running without letup and completed the program well within the estimated time limits.

More Winners for Northwest.

Marvin Thomson, son of a former winner of Silver Skates, George Thomson, and Shirley Jameson, chairman in the girls' junior division, were also principal contributors to the point total of the Northwest Skating club. By capturing four of the seven titles, the Northwest club counted 200 points which would have tied their nearest rivals without the assistance of other point positions.

Robert Dennis of Cedar Rapids, Ia., won a pair of silver skates for which he and his brother have been striving for several years. Robert won the boys' intermediate title after a brilliant one mile battle against a field of Chicago club skaters. Dennis let others make the pace in the early portion of the race, but then came through with a driving finish which his rivals could not match.

Minneapolis Boy Wins.

Another out of town skater, Byron Moe of Minneapolis, was the winner in the boys' juvenile class. He whipped Ken Kisselberg of the Norwegian-Americans in one of the best races of the afternoon.

John McCaffrey, an unattached skater, won the boys' midget Derby. The first three boys to complete the 220 yard championship course in this age class for those under 12 years of age did not belong to any organizations. This again bears out the statement that the majority of the seven Silver Skates races are designed for the novice competitors. In all, the unattached skaters scored 230 points.

CANCEL OLYMPIC SKI TRYOUTS; MAY BE STAGED HERE

Devils Lake, N. D., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Frigid weather and high winds forced cancelation of the central United States Olympic ski tryouts scheduled here today.

As the Devils Lake club will be unable to get a sanctioned date for divisional tryouts before final Olympic tryouts at Lake Lake City, March 3, officials wired Arthur J. Barth, central association secretary, suggesting that the annual meet of the Norge Ski club at Chicago next week be designated as official tryouts. Most of the 12 class A riders entered here will attend the Norge club's meet.

LEAFS WIN FROM RED WINGS, 2-0, BEFORE 14,000

Toronto Speed, Passing Too Much for Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Toronto's clever passing Maple Leafs evened matters for the season with the Red Wings here tonight by handing the Detroit club a 2 to 0 defeat before a capacity crowd of 14,000. Each team now has won two games in their series.

The Leafs pushed the puck past Roach, Wing goalie, in the second period and again in the third with a show of power not apparent in their first period attack. Roach was beaten cleanly on both shots, but his efforts kept the score down as his team was forced to concede an edge to their opponents in skating and passing.

Boston defense zone via the left boards.

Johnny swished past Shore, but had advanced so far along the boards that Goalie Thompson apparently figured he was so near being abreast the cage that he wouldn't shoot. The goalie relaxed and Gottselig cut loose, just catching the net.

Bruins Tie Score.

The Bruins got one of those ring-around-rosies moving in the fifteenth minute of the second period, with Barry, Clapper, Kaminsky and Siebert shoving the puck hither and thither while they looked for an opening. Barry decided to take a shot, though his chances didn't seem any too good from his position in left ice and ten feet inside the blue line. But the disc gently slid to the cage, then scooted off Chabot's skate and on into the cage. It was a rather sloppy marker, but quite good enough to tie up the score for the night.

The third period was a somewhat routine interval which found the Bruins stalling with golf shots whenever opportunity offered, but still energetic enough to break up all the Hawks' attempts at team play. Boston hung back on the blue line in the overtime period, and the Hawks furnished what action there was.

C. Y. O. HOCKY TEAM DEFEATS OAK PARK, 3-1

The C. Y. O. All-Stars defeated the Oak Park Hocky club, 3 to 1, at the Stadium yesterday afternoon and went into a tie with the Baby Ruths for second place in the Stadium division of the Chicago Hocky league.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

STILL ON SET.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 13.—After luncheon at the Assistance league during our first day as a movie extra, The Wake returned to the set prepared to electrify the director with our histrionic talent. He had other plans. Nearly the whole afternoon was occupied with taking stills on the scene which had filled the morning.

The rest of the time Mr. Walthall, as guide in Dante's "Inferno," gave his dramatic explanations for the benefit of supposed visitors to the concession in the picture. These were for the sound director. How they're ever going to synchronize them with the camera, or why it was necessary, we don't know—but they do.

So we other actors sat around and rested, if you call it that, on chairs and benches, only The Wake was so interested we stood watching the camera and sound recorder until our dogs began to fret. Then we took a stool, prominently placed as if for our special convenience. We were shooed off that immediately with a horrified gesture by a fourth assistant something, who pointed to the awe inspiring inscription atop the stool. It read "For Director Only."

This interval gave us opportunity to visit with Elsie, our favorite lady devil. Before her screen career Elsie held a position at "The Brown Derby," an eating place frequented by screen folk. There her good looks attracted the attention of a director and she was engaged for Fox. At first her salary was only $25 per week, with extra pay if she worked more than that. Now she's a stock girl—we don't know exactly what that means except it's regular employment. We didn't like to ask her salary on such short acquaintance, but others told us it's from $60 to $100 a week.

Anyway, Elsie's earnings were enough so she could afford a husband, whom she promptly acquired. We don't mean to imply Elsie's husband is a gigolo, because he has a position in the business world, and we trust he's a hard working and industrious young man such as Elsie deserves. Only she says one feels more secure in these times with two pay envelopes in the family.

Meantime Elsie continues her music and also has taught it to others less advanced to help pay for her own lessons.

By this time Elsie was cold and wished to go to the warming room, an artificially heated compartment on the set where those with scant costumes resist the drafts. You see, amidst the heat from lights and vapors in hell, Elsie and the other lady devils are very comfortable, but otherwise they become chilled. As we couldn't bear to think of Elsie becoming chilled, we advised her to "Cover up well" as she retired to the warming room.

Browsing around among other employés we discovered that George Leverett, sound recorder, was associated with Quin Ryan of station W-G-N in 1927 and is a friend of Carl Meyers, W-G-N engineer.

Leverett sits on a sliding contraption quite a long distance from the stage, with earmuffs on, listening to the sound effect brought back from a microphone which extends out like a fishpole into the scene, but is not visible to the camera. He let us listen, too, and it was very clear. If the dialog or other sound is too low or too loud or blurs it has to be done over.

George introduced us to his assistant, William Brent, and we got along well with him, too, because he asked if we knew Irene Steyskal of our Metropolitan section staf back home, and we did, and he wished to be remembered to Irene, which we'll attend to as soon as we have a day off from acting. It seems they originated in the same city of New Mexico—we think it was Silver City.

Well, William took us outside the studio to a movable truck on the lot which contains an intricate machine costing $28,000 which checks on the inside sound as if he were out in the audience at the producing theater. There's a connecting telephone between him and Leverett. There were a lot of gadgets on this machine, all of which meant something, and the thing is geared to 1/10,000th of an inch. He explained everything clearly, so at the end we knew almost as much as before, which was nothing. It's all very confusing to an outsider, but he said it was very simple. However, we're glad to be an actor and not on the technical staf. More experiences at another time.

SPARTA LEADERS WIN, 5 TO 1, FROM HARVEY UNITED

The Sparta Leaders of the National Professional Soccer league yesterday defeated Harvey United of the Major league, 5 to 1, in an interleague game at Sparta stadium. Harvey United last week staged one of the biggest upsets of the season when they won from the Maccabees in a Peel cup contest.

Armour of the Major league won from Bratislava of the Czecho league, 8 to 2, in a National Amateur Challenge cup match yesterday. The Italian A. C. surprised with a 2 to 1 triumph over the strong Maccabees, leaders of the Professional league. Other scheduled games were postponed because of unfit grounds.

WOMAN IS KILLED, 2 HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE HEAD-ON

Mrs. Robert Orten, 35 years old, of Canton, Ill., was killed yesterday and her husband was injured critically in a head-on collision of two automobiles. On a curve in United States highway No. 66, 18 miles south of Joliet, Orten's car met the machine of Luke Kelly, 43 years old, 6835 Indiana avenue. Both drivers were taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, where physicians said Orten's death was probable. Kelly was not seriously hurt.

The Rev. Daniel E. Johnson, 80 years old, colored, of Little Rock, Ark., died at the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred a week ago when he was struck at State and 52d streets by the automobile of Dominick Wirastro, 47 years old, 2811 Prairie avenue. Witnesses said the clergyman walked before the machine from behind a street car. Wiarstro, whose car bore 1934 license No. 605-956, was not held.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Kay Kyser is to play the most popular fraternity and sorority songs on a new series of broadcasts planned in connection with his Monday evening Midnight Flyers show over W-G-N from the Blackhawk. First of these pan-Hellenic tributes is scheduled for midnight tonight when Kay and his boys will play "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," probably the best known fraternity song. First sorority to be complimented will be Delta Delta Delta for whom Kyser will play "Dream of Heaven" tonight. Kay is an old Sigma Nu from the University of North Carolina and a gesture for his own group is to come later.

In connection with these broadcasts Kay also plans to present salient facts regarding the fraternities in the spotlight that night. He will reveal when and where they were founded, how many chapters and alumni they have and perhaps reveal some of the best known members.

Francis X. Bushman, who is heard regularly on the W-G-N movie chats program, will become the headliner of the program, "The Little Church Around the Corner," beginning tomorrow. This program is aired over WMAQ at 11:45 a. m., Tuesdays and Fridays.

Gracie Allen will break a precedent of three years' standing when Burns and Allen broadcast before an audience in the Figueroa playhouse, Los Angeles, next Wednesday evening. Their broadcasts have been closed to spectators since first they went on the air with Guy Lombardo. Gracie has always maintained that she can't do her best when there are gawkers. Perhaps it was sponsor pressure that forced her to change her mind.

Jessica Dragonette is having a little trouble with her studio audience. The other night she announced that she could not stay to autograph albums because she was sick. Then she ducked out to watch Beatrice Lillie broadcast in another studio. Some of the autograph seekers bobbed up in the Lillie studio—and were they angry.

The March of Time will switch sponsors. A typewriter concern will pay the bills beginning Friday, Jan. 25. . . . Frances Langford is appearing on that west coast program "Hollywood Hotel." . . . Jane Froman will appear in Gershwin's "Girl Crazy" on the Beauty Box theater tomorrow night.

FRANKLIN BAKER SHERRITT, 29, TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for Franklin Baker Sherritt, 29 years old, 229 Lake Shore drive, son of Frank Sherritt, head of the Wilson-Imperial company, 53 West Jackson boulevard, railway supply house, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the chapel at 4717 Broadway. Interment will be later at the family cemetery in South Bend, Ind.

Mr. Sherritt, who was associated with his father in business, was killed early Friday in an automobile collision on the outer drive. His New Year's eve bride, the former Elaine Clemens, 20 years old, was seriously injured, but at St. Luke's hospital yesterday it was stated she probably would recover.

Sherritt's parents reached Chicago by plane Saturday night from their winter home at Coral Gables, Fla. A sister, Joan, also survives Sherritt. He was a graduate of Chauncey Hall, Boston, and of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Schwabe, Chicagoan 65 Years, Dies

Her husband, Frederick, who died last April, was formerly a north side wagon maker. She is survived by two sons, Harry and Fred. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the chapel at 3807 Lincoln avenue.

HEAVY SELLING ERASES GAINS IN STOCK MART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 13.—Speculative Wall street's interest at the moment is absorbed almost exclusively in the so-called "gold contract" clause suits before the Supreme court.

Chief Justice Hughes' pointed question to government counsel during the argument last Friday—"Where do you find any power under the constitution to alter that bond [a government obligation with a gold clause], or the power of congress to change that promise?"—fell with rather startling effect on stock as well as bond holders and started a run of selling on the stock exchange that sent prices of many of the more speculative descriptions down $1 to as much as $4 a share in a few hours. Liquidation continued in somewhat diminished volume through yesterday's abbreviated session, with the result that the list as a whole wound up about 3 points lower on the week.

Shift to Gold Bonds.

Brokers reported a rather widespread, although not particularly aggressive, movement to get out of stocks into United States government bonds which are "payable in gold." In stocks the switch was particularly apparent in the shares of railroad corporations known to have a goodly part of their funded debts in bonds containing gold clauses. There was nothing suggestive of hysteria about the move and the selling at its worst stage fell far short of a million and a half shares—a volume that would constitute a "big day" by the street's present standards of reckoning.

The effect, however, was to nullify, for the time being at least, whatever optimism traders may have felt on hopes of a spring rise in business and to erase about all the laborious gains the market was able to achieve on the score of the retail trade boomlet during the holidays.

Follows NRA Decision.

Coming as it did on the NRA oil decision earlier in the week, the high court's searching inquiries bearing on the question of the constitutional authority of congress and the executive in abrogating the gold payment clauses of government bond issues, raised visions in some quarters of a second serious upset for the New Deal's expanding powers and some weird guessing went the rounds as to just what effect such a ruling might have.

It had been taken for granted in the financial community generally, it seemed, that since the government's measures had been taken to cope with an emergency and since they had become something of a settled fact, so to speak, the high court would uphold the action taken. The oil decision was enough to show that the two branches of the government were still functioning independently of one another, and then when the gold clause arguments came up and Chief Justice Hughes began to bear down on the government's counsel, many jumped to the conclusion that another and more serious attempt to apply the brake was in the making.

Statistically the week brought some improvement. Railroad freight car loadings rose sharply from the year-end setback, but were not quite up to the level of a year ago. Retail trade last month turns out to have been better than the seasonal volume. The steel industry is forging ahead, having reached an operating capacity of around 45 per cent.

Supreme Court Deliberations on Gold Confuse Grain Pits

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The speculative markets were suffering from compound confusion when trading ended last week. The inflation ghost that has been stalking in the background for the last 18 months was all but scared off the lot by the somber shadow cast by the Supreme court deliberations in the gold clause case.

The week ended on a question mark. Speculators were busy checking the court's personnel. Does the court have a "liberal" or a "conservative" majority and if so, what does it mean? Guesses as to the course that the court will take were heard on every hand, but the guessers were the first to admit their lack of certainty. Until the court decides the momentous case, it is felt that the commodity and security markets will continue to suffer from "nerves."

Traders Lose Confidence.

The prospect that the country may be jarred from its dream of inflation to find itself back in a deflationary atmosphere was the unreassuring consideration forced upon traders by the week's events.

The first fit of fright over a possible decision adverse to the government in the case was experienced on the Chicago Board of Trade on Friday. Wheat and corn prices quickly dropped more than 2 cents a bushel after holding comparatively firm throughout the early part of the week.

The presence of a steady commercial demand for corn, as well as for wheat, was a steadying influence on the market. Millers and processing firms were willing to buy when grain became cheaper, and this demand halted the slump and brought about a slight upturn in values on Saturday. As a result, the final quotations, when compared with the preceding week's last prices, showed only moderate losses.

Debate Effect of Decision.

Opinions as to the actual consequences of an upset by the Supreme court in the gold case vary. The most pessimistic believe that it will cause a harp deflation in all prices and seriously disrupt the economic situation.

The Uhlmann Grain company, one of the leading Chicago firms and formerly an important exporting house, commenting on the possibility of restoration of the old dollar parity, said: "All commodities would be immediately deflated, importations would take place on a large scale, business in general would suffer, and the whole recovery program would receive such a setback that the depression would not only continue for years, but might become worse."

Restoration of the old dollar parity would not necessarily follow a decision upholding the gold contracts, but the prevailing opinion is that there would be no other feasible course.

CHICAGO BANKS' STOCKS RISE ON ANNUAL REPORTS

Chicago bank stocks moved sharply higher last week following publication of their annual statements, although best levels were not maintained to the close. Continental Illinois rose to 47 in heavy trading, but fell back to 42½ bid, 43 asked, a net gain of three points.

First National opened at 84, soared to 113 and closed at 100 to 104, up 16 points. Northern Trust advanced two points to 385 bid. Only limited offerings appeared at 395. Harris Trust gained 5 points to 185, while Terminal National held steady at 5½ to 7½.

In the miscellaneous division Chicago Title and Trust reacted from a top of 75 to close at 71 bid, 73 asked, down two points for the week.

CHICAGO AREA TRADE BACK TO 1931 LEVEL, COMMERCE BODY FINDS

Trade in the Chicago area continued to equal or surpass 1931 levels last week, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Among the larger retail concerns business was 11 per cent above the corresponding period of last year. While not maintaining the same improvement shown during the holidays, the increase appears steady in volume.

Wholesalers and mail order houses also reported great improvement in turnover compared with a year ago. Trade shows now being held here or planned for the near future have spurred buyers from out of town in making sizable commitments.

NEW YORK RAPID TRANSIT RAISES WORKERS' PAY

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—A wage rise of 5 per cent for 1,500 employés of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, effective as of Jan. 1, was announced today by Thomas E. Murray Jr., federal receiver for the company. It applies to workers outside the operating departments who have been getting less than $4,000 a year.

The increase supplements pay rises and changes in hours of work, applying only to the 14,000 operating department employés, which were announced by Mr. Murray in December and became effective Jan. 1.

The completed readjustment of wages and hours, Mr. Murray said, would add about $1,000,000 to the Interborough's annual pay roll.

Steel Plants Out of "Red"; Output Rises

With a gain of 3 points last week to 45½ per cent of production capacity steel mill operations have again entered the profit zone, according to the magazine Steel. In 1934 this rate was not reached until March and remained above 45 per cent only through the second quarter.

In addition to ingot output the production of finished steel is also moving up strongly. Some producers booked more finished steel during the first ten days of this month than in all of January last year, the journal said. Operations at sheet mills have risen to an average of 60 per cent with strip mills close to this figure, while tin plate is being turned out at the rate of 50 per cent of capacity.

U. S. Spending Is Factor.

"Shortly, with the approach of spring, it will be demonstrated whether demand from the leading consumers outside the automobile industry is to be propped mainly by government spending as in 1934 or whether the improvement in fact is strengthening private initiative," says the journal. "The big farm market for steel products this year is a reflex of government aid last year. The new four billion dollar federal public works program presents this difference—it emphasizes relief through work, meaning more material and equipment."

The review says further that with increasing operations among manufacturers the need for replacing outworn equipment is becoming strong enough to overcome even some of the hesitancy brought about by uncertain government policies. Many purchases in the current iron and steel markets are for requirements to facilitate production.

Auto Plants Seek Steel.

Automobile manufacturers are bringing strong pressure to bear for steel, the journal says, with automobile output last week amounting to 59,000 units, compared with 42,000 in the preceding week.

In trade circles it is stated the Youngstown district will begin this week at 59 per cent and is likely to surpass 61 per cent by the end of the week. Operations in Chicago last week held at 49 per cent.

SEC LIGHTENS ITS REGULATION FOR OLD FIRMS

Makes It Easier to Issue Securities.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The securities and exchange commission today promulgated liberalized regulations for issuance of securities by established corporations.

The new rules, primarily designed to protect investors as provided by law, are at the same time expected by Chairman Joseph Kennedy to permit the flotation of upward of $3,000,000,000 incorporate securities for development, expansion, and refinancing purposes.

They replace the much criticized regulations issued by the federal trade commission before its security division was transferred to the stock exchange commission, created last June by congress. The original regulation, however, will continue in effect on promotional corporations until the new ones are worked out. Only corporations in existence at least three years will benefit by the new requirements.

Tested by Experts.

Kennedy said the new requirements, affecting information on securities to be sold, had been tested by presentation to outside experts, who found them an improvement over the first regulations.

"This is a pretty important piece of business," Kennedy said. "It has been under consideration for four months. It strikes the commission that this is less onerous, but a great deal better for the individual investor.

"We've tested it out with active and vociferous, if you will, opponents of 'form A1,' regulation for publicity on issues, and they agree that this form can be filled out without un-

STABILIZATION DRIVE IS OPENED BY PARIS BANKER

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Jean Tannery, new governor of the Bank of France, today opened his country's campaign for stabilization of the dollar and the pound sterling at a meeting of the directors of the bank for international settlements. Making his first appearance before the board since his appointment, Tannery indicated France may propose holding a new world economic conference this year.

Stabilization was discussed by the board, but it was understood Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, said that as far as the pound is concerned the problem of stabilization is not in question.

Tannery consulted with governors of the banks of the gold bloc and assured them France intended to continue her gold standard policy, as had been forecast, and was strongly in favor of world stabilization.

It was understood Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval will make stabilization efforts at the forthcoming meeting with British officials in London.

Republic Steel looks forward

I HAVE been asked to express, and our stockholders, employees and the public have the right to know, my opinion on the deeper meaning of the impending consolidation of Republic Steel Corporation and Corrigan-McKinney, and Truscon Steel Companies.

The immediate purpose of this consolidation is obvious. It will round out the facilities of Republic and enable it to participate to the fullest extent in the extraordinary opportunities that are presenting themselves today and at the same time will result in an improved capital structure and provide ample additional working capital.

The time is ripe to begin a vigorous move forward. The outlook for the steel industry, and Republic in particular, is better than for many months. Republic is operating at a rate well above average for the industry, and Corrigan-McKinney is operating at a still higher rate. A steady improvement in financial markets is also apparent.

But there is a deeper significance in our purpose.

It is difficult to recognize the birth of a new period, even though we stand in its presence. The reason is the human tendency to resist change. New ideas and new products are under suspicion until suddenly it becomes apparent that these new things are supplanting the old. When this is recognized, there follows a sharp, widespread awakening of interest, and a general move forward to participate in it.

Such a change is now occurring. An impulse has already started that is bound to be recognized soon as another giant move forward.

You may recall how automobiles were ridiculed until the public could no longer withstand the pressure of this new idea. Suddenly, all rushed to adopt it. And our greatest modern industry was born.

The public regarded with great skepticism the earlier construction of skyscrapers, modern bridges, airplanes, stream-lined trains, air-conditioning, electric refrigerating—and hundreds of other similar products of modern engineering. It was not until the pressure of these new ideas became too strong for doubt, that they were recognized as practical realities. It was those who first shared in the forward movement who profited most.

As the leading manufacturers in America of the new high tensile steels and metals made of alloys to suit demands of industry that were incredible fifteen years ago, we know there is at hand a deep stirring presaging another great industrial development.

There is a widespread and rapidly increasing demand for metals of much greater strength and flexibility, combined with lightness. Such metals simply could not be fabricated only a few years back. Yet Republic pioneered in their production and today is manufacturing them on a substantial basis. There was no machinery capable of handling these metals ten years ago. We have the machinery today, and are producing metals virtually tailor-made for the utilization of new inventions.

Stream-lined trains, such as the "Zephyr" type, have caught the public imagination by their amazing performance. These trains are no longer experiments. They provide practical transportation, and the railroads are adopting them. They could not have been built ten years ago, because their efficiency is not just the result of stream-lined design. It is due to the fact that the new metals, notably stainless steel, effectively meet the new requirement for greatly increased strength combined with lightness.

I cannot put any limit on the demand for new metals. We know that vast replacement of old-fashioned metals and materials must soon be made. We know that the new inventions are creating a demand for new metals that ought to reach enormous proportions. And Republic is in a position today to greatly benefit by this rising demand.

Republic Steel Corporation has been built in the twentieth century. It is specially equipped for this new age. Already the leader in America in the production of new metals and better alloys, its consolidation with Corrigan-McKinney, and Truscon Steel Companies, gives it a perfect co-ordination of all necessary facilities for meeting most efficiently and most profitably the new demands upon the steel industry.

I am convinced by every evidence that America is again moving forward into a new cycle of greater achievement, greater production, and that the proposed merger equips Republic to play a highly important part in this new era.

reasonable expense, and is not unfair to any one."

Sees Aid to Business.

The first form for information on security issues has been assailed by many financiers, business men and politicians as throttling business. Kennedy said he expects the new regulations will result in improved business by encouraging investments in private enterprises that will give employment to many of the idle.

"The form protects the investor by providing him with information on which to judge the value of a security," Kennedy continued. "We hope now to get less history and more data about actual values."

Kennedy said he was under no illusions that the average investor would study the new form of information or that he would be able to draw proper conclusions.

"But the information is here," he said. "It protects the investor because the seller of the security is liable for inaccuracies or omissions. Investment services seem to have an obligation to analyze this information and make it available to investors."

Put People to Work.

Kennedy said the commission was especially concerned with seasoned corporations, because "they are the kind that will put people back to work."

A commission announcement said:

"The new form lays emphasis on the financial condition and operations of the business within the last three years. With regard to historical information questions are asked, but are limited to the pertinent transactions which may have occurred since 1922. Otherwise detailed information is restricted to the past three fiscal years of the operation of the company.

Balance Sheets Required.

"Among the new current information which companies must furnish are consolidated balance sheets and profit and loss statements, which formerly had to be furnished only if the company had prepared them in the past. The commission feels that in most cases these consolidated statements will tell the real story of the business and should therefore not be left optional with the company.

"A revision of the requirements for the prospectuses with a view to providing a clear, concise and simple document for the protection of prospective purchasers will be available within a few days."

Otis Elevator.

Answer: Continued decrease of new building, especially of office and large residential structures, has kept Otis Elevator company from reporting any sizable profits since the third quarter of 1932, although the company operated at a profit in every year prior to 1933 since 1898.

It is the largest manufacturer of elevators in the country. During the last few years most of its business has come from repairs and from modernization of elevators in use.

Net income of $101,000, which barely covered preferred dividend requirements, in the third quarter of 1934 cut loss for the first nine months to $194,000, against loss of $1,258,000 in the corresponding 1933 period.

Volume of available business in 1933 was the lowest in 24 years. Gross sales fell off about 26 per cent from 1932, and net loss was $2,465,000, against net income of $308,000, or only $4.73 per share of $6 preferred, for 1932. Net income in 1931 was $4,415,000, or $2.01 per common share, against net of $7,265,000, or $3.44 per common share, for 1930.

Current position on Sept. 30, 1934, was strong, with cash and United States government bonds alone on hand of almost $10,000,000, compared with total current liabilities of $722,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 65,000 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and 2,000,000 shares of no par common. Dividends on the common are currently being paid at the quarterly rate of 15 cents a share. The preferred is rather high grade. The common is medium grade.

Studebaker Mail Order.

Investors' Guide: Kindly furnish me with what information you have relative to Studebaker Mail Order company. If the company is out of business I desire to take my loss on my income tax return for 1934.—C. J. A.

Answer: In June, 1934, G. M. Studebaker, president of Studebaker Mail Order company, said, in reference to the company's stock, "It is doubtful if any recovery can ever be made." The company was in the process of liquidation at the time.

He said that real estate and buildings of South Bend Watch company, a subsidiary, had been transferred to creditors in settlement of debts, leaving the company with an excess of liabilities over assets of about $40,000.

In view of the fact that the $5,000 shares of common are preceded by 192,000 shares of class A stock, which is entitled to $25 a share in liquidation before the common can receive anything, and to all appearances there will be nothing available for the class A, we regard the common as worthless.

PRICES OF BONDS CONTINUE GAINS; U. S. LIENS RISE

Well Seasoned Corporate Issues at New Highs.

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Presidential recommendations for the largest budgetary outlay in the peace time history of the country failed to disturb the bond market in its forward strides during the last week.

A long list of well seasoned corporate issues broke through their old 1934-'35 highs under persistent demand of pentup capital seeking profitable employment, although there was a temporary lull in the accumulation of secondary loans later in the week as profit taking appeared among these usually fast movers and the Supreme court gold clause hearing proved an unsettling factor.

Most government obligations enjoyed a wide and progressively higher market. While there were reports in brokerage offices that treasury support was lent at times when investors appeared to hesitate, especially preceding the delivery of President Roosevelt's budget message on Monday, there was evidence of substantial accumulation by insurance companies and other large financial institutions. Friday's turnove rin this list, as well as in the general market, was the heaviest since last August.

Utility Bonds Steady.

Utility bonds, long harassed by public agitation for lower light and power rates and threats of additional governmental "yardstick" operations in large consuming areas, including New York, showed a much steadier price trend, following a series of developments calculated to clear uncertainty surrounding the future governmental course.

The Consolidated Gas company of New York finally capitulated to the demands of the city's mayor and proposed inauguration of the so-called "Washington plan" as a basis of rate structures. Indications were that the plan would be partially acceptable to city officials and that immediate construction of a municipal power plant in the metropolis has been deferred, at least temporarily.

High grade railroad bonds proved especially attractive to investors and higher prices were paid for a large number of these loans. many of which reached new tops for the last year or more. The market for lower priced issues was not so uniform and realizing brought a number of declines in these groups. Many industrial bonds were steady to firm.

Weakness in Foreign Section.

Weakness in some of the South and Central American issues, following reports that insufficient foreign exchange was available in Brazil to service outstanding bonds, unsettled the entire foreign section for a time, but there were scattered recoveries later.

German government and corporate issues were active coincident with the close approach of the next session of the "standstill agreement" committee which will be held in Berlin early in February and will be attended by F. Abbot Goodhue, president of the Bank of the Manhattan company of New York, who is chairman of the American delegation.

GEN. AMERICAN WILL ENLARGE TERMINAL PLANTS

General American Transportation corporation has just announced plans for expanding its ship terminal subsidiary, the General American Tank Storage and Terminal company. A new terminal is to be built at Houston, Tex., and present ones at New York and Corpus Christi, Tex., are to be doubled in capacity.

When completed the corporation will have storage facilities for 3,500,000 barrels of bulk liquids, said to be the largest liquid storage capacity of any such company in the world.

The Houston terminal will have direct pipe line connections with the east Texas oil fields. Construction of the terminal, covering 50 acres, will begin immediately, it was stated. Capacity of the first unit there will be 500,000 barrels and additional units may be built later in the year.

The New York terminal now has a capacity of 500,000 barrels, which will be increased to 900,000 barrels by the construction of additional tankage. New tanks at the Corpus Christi plant have doubled the capacity to 600,000 barrels.

BRITISH EXPECT BRAZIL TO FAVOR U. S. ON DEBTS

See Threat in Selection of Ambassador.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Dr. Oswaldo Aranha seems emerging as the evil genius of the unhappy British investor in Brazilian bonds. In February a year ago when he was Brazilian finance minister he abruptly imposed upon British bondholders an elaborate unilateral debt settlement which provoked intense resentment here.

This was due almost as much to the manner in which it was imposed—without even a pretense of consulting London investment banks—as it was to a substantial scaling down of Brazil's obligations.

Some months later Aranha resigned as finance minister and became ambassador to Washington, whereupon there was a rush to buy Brazilian bonds on the theory that Brazil was repenting somewhat its anti-British policy and that Aranha had been kicked upstairs to Washington.

Expect Deal with U. S.

Today comes complete disillusionment and the market feels that as ambassador to Washington Aranha is in a position to make a deal with New York which will clinch the all but hopeless situation of British bondholders.

Brazil owes American bondholders about $145,000,000 and owes British bondholders around $450,000,000. Scaled down, the debt service to London was fixed at $40,000,000 yearly, but when New York gets through imposing terms on the Brazilian debt mission London cannot see much left.

British investments in foreign bonds and stocks far exceed their investments in any other category except British government bonds. British have invested more money in American and other foreign railways than in British industrials.

Uneasy About Japan.

Top hats in the city cover heads full of doubts. There is a deep uneasiness about Japan's ability to find foreign exchange essential for full debt service on her foreign borrowings. When Japan went off gold her foreign debt—principally sterling and dollar obligations—totaled about 3 billion dollars. In yen the annual service of that debt must be costing about 70 per cent more per annum than it did when the yen was tied to gold.

The strain of finding this foreign exchange, must, it is felt, be severe, as a large part of these foreign loans pay 5 and 6 per cent. Japan's record has been unimpeachable, but the market expects an agreement scaling down the service before the year is over.

Bank Profits Higher.

During 1934 the big six among the British joint stock banks reported profits of £9,493,000 compared with £9,034,000 in 1934. But in 1933 they paid an income tax gross at the rate of five shillings to the pound and in 1934 at the rate of 4 shillings 6 pence the pound.

When allowance is made for this, the increase in the declared profits of the six biggest banks of the British empire amounts only to £200,000 or about $1,000,000. However, their resources were smaller in 1934. The monthly average of deposits in London clearing banks in 1933 was £1,899,000,000, whereas in 1934 it was down to £1,853,000,000 in the first 11 months.

Furthermore, discount paper last year almost disappeared from the market and competition forced banks to lower rates on loans and advances.

TRANSVAAL GOLD OUTPUT SHOWS DROP IN OUNCES

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Transvaal's gold output in December was 866,037 ounces, compared with 878,847 in the preceding month and 894,156 in December, 1933. For 1934 as a whole, production was 10,486,393 ounces, against 11,017,495 for 1933 and 11,553,564 for 1932, which was the high record. Last year's output was the lowest since 1929, when it was 10,414,066 ounces.

The change is due to alteration of the policy of treating lower grade ore, but the price now being obtained is much higher.

LETTERS

Letters of not more than 200 words, addressed to the financial editor, will be printed in these columns from time to time.

The Desire Is Mutual.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—During his radio address last Sunday Father Coughlin charged that the treasury department has upward of eight billions in gold metal. He stated this holding entitled the treasury to print and issue 22 billions in currency and therefore there was 17 billions in greenbacks that could be issued now and still be termed sound money.

This argument goes on forever. Surely there must be some common basis of understanding between both sides of the question. He asks what difference is shown between 8 billions in noninterest bearing greenbacks and 8 billions in interest bearing yellow backed bonds? There are millions of people who are unable to answer and are confused and misled by both sides of the argument.

We are told the printing of greenbacks is inflation. We are also told when the treasury had only 2 billions in gold it had the same 5½ billions of currency in circulation. If it has four times as much gold now is it not entitled to four times as much currency? And if that is true why is it not used instead of using every dime that should be a part of industrial or business investment?

The retirement of 10 billions in war bonds would force that money to seek industry and business as a means of investment and would open up credit to deserving firms. I'm not presenting an argument. I am among the millions who find only bewilderment in the fabulous figures issued by the federal government. Like the rest, I would greatly appreciate some light on the greatest mystery of the age.

BRITISH TRADE SLACKENS, SAYS REPORT BY U. S.

Seasonal Influence Is Noted in Letup.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—British trade and industry slackened somewhat in the early part of December, due partly to seasonal influences, the commerce department said today in its weekly survey of business conditions abroad.

The cotton yarn market continued slow during the first half of the month although it was more active than in much of November. The cloth market was generally dull. Wool spindlers and manufacturers and the clothing trades were active.

Developments in other countries were reviewed as follows:

Germany—After the temporary setback during the summer, industrial production resumed its upward movement during October and November, though at considerably slower rate.

Reports Import Surplus.

Greece—Foreign trade in October closed with an import surplus of 166,000,000 drachmas, as compared with an export surplus of 94,000,000 drachmas in the same month of 1933.

Poland—The industrial production index rose from 63.6 during October, to 67.1 in November [1928 equals 100]. Wholesale prices, however, declined to 53.6 in November, the lowest so far in 1934, against 55.0 the preceding month.

Union of South Africa—The slightly downward trend in commerce and industry has continued with little change other than that effected by the Christmas trade.

Holiday Trade Good.

Brazil—Holiday trade this year was encouraging to the retail trade, and stores were in many instances left with small carryover. The demand for imported goods was particularly strong.

Japan—With the exception of holiday retail trade, which was brisk, business in general was dull during the last week of 1934.

U. S. RETURNS 8C IN EVERY DOLLAR OF TAXES TAKEN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Eight and a fraction cents out of every dollar of internal revenue collected eventually is forfeited by the government in one form or another.

This fact was disclosed today through a compilation by the bureau of internal revenue which showed collections of $52,619,919,309 beginning with the fiscal year 1917 through the first quarter of the present fiscal year. But this sum was offset by refunds of $1,507,435,853, and credits and abatements of $3,153,185,786 during the same period.

A refund is a cash repayment for overassessments or for taxes illegally collected, while "credits" represent an overcharge the government has collected which will be applied to other or future assessments. An abatement is a bookkeeping transaction in which the government acknowledges an error in assessment and wipes out its claim against a taxpayer.

Only $15,639,952 was returned in the fiscal year of 1920—which witnessed the heaviest receipts for any year during the period. Cash refunds began to mount with the fiscal year 1923 when for the first time more than $100,000,000 was returned. Thereafter, for eight successive years, refunds were above the $100,000,000 mark, reaching a peak of $190,164,359 during the fiscal year 1929. Beginning with the fiscal year 1931 cash refunds have been considerably below this level, amounting in 1934 to $45,820,318, while only $5,752,364 had been returned during the first quarter of the present fiscal year.

LAGUARDIA AGAIN DEMANDS UTILITY REDUCE RATES

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia today replied to the Consolidated Gas company's offer to arbitrate gas and power rates in New York City with a repitition of his demand for immediate and substantial reduction in rates.

In a letter to Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of the board of the company, he asserted that rate reduction must come first and the working out of a plan for future charges afterward.

"This is no time for sparring and delay," the mayor wrote, saying the negotiations prior to adoption of the Washington plan of rate revision, or any other plan might take years. "I cannot see any necessity for arbitration on the city rates when you now concede they are too high."

LaGuardia concluded his letter by saying that nothing it contained should "be construed as suspending or even delaying the engineering studies and plans now being carried on by the city," looking toward city-owned power plants.

14 NATIONS SEEK WAY TO CONTROL EXCESS SHIPPING

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Shipping men of 14 nations, who feel that more vessels are plying the world's shipping lanes than can operate profitably, are meeting tomorrow in a preliminary session to draft agenda for an international shipping conference.

Nations controling 90 per cent of the world's mercantile tonnage will be represented in an attempt to rationalize operating conditions with the drop in freight rates as compared with the pre-war year of 1913.

For more than 100 years shipping tonnage, from the viewpoint of any one nation, has not been satisfactorily agreed upon, and an attempt is to be made here to devise some harmonious scheme to reduce the excess.
